About this Edition

The great reformer, Swami Dayanand who ushered in a renaissance of Indian society towards the end of 19th century had ordained that:

The vedas are the source of true knowledge. To read and understand the vedas is the supreme duty of one and all.

This is one of the ten Principles of the Arya Samaj as laid down by Swami ji. Importance and relevance of the Vedas has been succinctly said in the Upanishadas also:

वेदेन वै देवा असुराणां वित्तं वेद्यमविन्दन्त तद् वेदस्य वेदत्वम् । (Taittiriya samhita : 1.7.4.6 तैत्तिरीय संहिता)

The Vedas are so called because each statement therein informs a man of the ideals of human life, called the Law of Righteousness, to understand which there is no better source.

To meet the need of a modern, easy to understand English translation of the Vedas, the Veda Pratishthan of DAV College Managing Committee, New Delhi had been publishing complete translation of the four Vedas in twenty-two volumes since 1977. The first edition was well produced and well received. Later as this important task slipped into inexperienced hands, quality of printing and paper became inferior while the price was unduly raised.

In the year 2008, the responsibility of publishing and propagating the Vedas has been taken over by the Publication Division of the DAV College Managing Committee. This new 2008 edition has far superior production values and is priced at less then one-third of the price it was being sold so far.

Our object is to make the Vedas easily affordable for every one who is interested in having a set of the four Vedas in his home for him and the family members to read and benefit by their divine message.

We propose to publish the Hindi translation of the four Vedas also in the near future and offer at a very moderate price. We seek your cooperation in this noble task.

Foreword

The Vedas enshrine the cosmic vision and vitality of our ancestors and epitomise a living legacy of divine inspiration, intuition and insight.

The glory of the Vedas is their universal and timeless quality. The subtle and symbolic invocations of the Śruti and the mystic and melodic music of the celestial hymns have hallowed human consciousness through trackless centuries with a sublime glow.

The Vedas exemplify a carefully nurtured and elaborately systematized oral tradition which is unrivalled in the annals of civilization.

The evocative poetry of joyous and spontaneous affirmation of life and nature, the unravelling explorations of the seers into the terrestrial and transcendental destiny of mankind, the pervasive immanence and the pristine omnipresence of primeval reality and primordial matter, and the wisdom and philosophy of Moral and Social Order in an harmonious equilibrium unfold the luminous realm of the spirit of the Vedas.

The Vedas are unique in their perspective of time and space. Early in the history of human civilization, the Vedas proclaimed the essential unity of mankind, untrammelled by geographical barriers and tribal parochialism.

The Vedas declared the enduring filial allegiance of Man to Mother Earth: माता भूमि: पुत्रोऽहं पृथिव्या: ...अथर्व. 12.1.12.

The Vedas articulated the essential equality and intrinsically equal dignity of men and nations and the need for cooperative effort for common benefit: अन्येष्टासो अकनिष्टास एते, संभ्रातरो वावृधु: सौभगाय। ऋक. 5.60

The Vedas cautioned against recrimination, jealousy and ill will among the human kindred: मा भ्राता भ्रातरं द्विक्षन् मा स्वसारमुत स्वसा. अथर्व. 3.30.3.

The Vedas aimed and aspired for an ambiance of unfailing and ubiquitous friendship:

मित्रस्याहं चक्षुषा सर्वाणि भूतानि समीक्षे। मित्रस्य चक्षुषा समीक्षामहे। यजु. 36.18.

The true Vedic faith does not countenance dogma; the Vedic reason is not a euphemism for sophistry; the Vedic word is not a victim of verbiage. The essential perception of the Vedas is not a prisoner of perversions. The humanism of Vedas is not a hypocrisy and the Vedic teaching of tolerance is not a transient contrivance. The core commitment of Vedas is to truth and dharma, to harmony and happiness, to freedom and justice. The soulful Vedic voyage in ceaseless quest of the experience of inner illumination and with its rich symbolism and manifold meanings is perhaps the oldest and the most magnificent and many-splendoured pilgrimage of the human spirit.

The Vedas gave the Magna Carta of Human Brotherhood and Universal Goodwill and proclaimed a noble prayerful preamble to the humanitarian Constitution of One World based on friendship, fellow-feeling, freedom and fearlessness in words which are immortal and ever inspiring and which are central to the basic teleology and technology of building impregnable defences of peace in the minds of men. The Vedic seers who viewed the world of perception and the world of thought as a continuum prayed for the composite benediction of hearing noble thoughts and seeing noble deeds:

भद्रं कर्णेभि: शृणुयाम देवा भद्रं पश्येमाक्षिभिर्यजत्राः। यजु. 25.21.

In that endeavour of building a universe of noble thoughts and noble deeds, the Vedic seers convened a cosmic convocation based on the fundamental human quest for truth and the acceptance of its many facets (एकं सद् विप्रा: बहुधा वदन्ति:)

आ नो भद्राः क्रतवो यन्तु विश्वतोऽदव्धासो अपरीतास उद्भिदः। देवा नो यथा सदमिद्वृधे असन्नप्रायुवो रक्षितारो दिवेदिवे।। ऋक् 1.89.1.

In the Vedic vision of human society, man in his relation to man was not predatory, aggressive and oppressive as in the Hobbesian nightmare which conjured up homo homini lupus. The Vedic ideal was that Man was under an obligation to protect and preserve and to aid and comfort mankind everywhere: पुमान् पुमांसं परिपातु विश्वतः। ऋक् 6.75.14.

The Vedic philosophy of freedom and fearlessness is aptly described in the following Mantra:

अभयं मित्रादमयममित्रादभयं ज्ञातादभयं परोक्षात् अभयं नक्तमभयं दिवा नः सर्वा आशा मम मित्रं भवन्तु।। अथर्व. 19.15.7

Equally, the Vedic hymn of togetherness remains a refreshing reminder and a beacon light to the fractured and fragmented world out of whose womb the new world order is struggling to be born:

सङ्गच्छध्वं संवद्ध्वं सं वो मनांसि जानताम्। देवा भागं यथा पूर्वे सञ्जानाना उपासते।। ऋक्. 10.191.2.

These noble thoughts made the culture of the Vedas the first and foremost foundation of the edifice of universal values: सा प्रथमा संस्कृतिर्विश्ववारा:। यजु. 7.14.

These enduring teachings of the Vedas are not a relic of the past, nor are they the exclusive preserve or the sole inheritance of Indians and Indo-Aryans. They belong to the common heritage of humanity and are relevant in our contemporary world and in our age. We owe it to ourselves and to the peoples and the nations of the world to share this precious heritage and to disseminate its message and meaning.

Preface

The Vedas are the Word of God. At the very beginning of the Creation, man received knowledge of the Vedas. The Rgveda is the most ancient of all the holy scriptures in the world.

Knowledge of the Vedas is not intended for a particular race or country. God revealed this knowledge for the greatest good of mankind.

The Vedas have been translated into several languages. Scholars like Griffith, Wilson and Max Muller have written commentaries on the Vedas in English. But the need for bringing out an unconventional and standard translation of the Vedas has been felt for quite sometime. The task, however, involved dedication, hard work and considerable financial resources.

Col. Ved Ratna Mohan, ex-M.P., was a promising young man, the scion of a family which had implicit faith in the Vedas. His brilliant career was cut short by untimely death in 1973. His father, late Shri Narendra Mohan, was a leading industrialist of India. Daily he would perform yajna. He had named his eldest son Ved Ratna (Jewel of the Vedas). He had desired the late Ved Ratna to do some service to for the cause of the Vedas. But fate had willed otherwise. Col. Ved Ratna died before he could fulfil his father's wish.

His younger brother Major Kapil Mohan, who has great reverence for the Vedas like his father, made noble resolve to create an endowment for the English edition of the Vedas.

Dr. Govardhan Lal Dutta, President, DAV College Managing Committee, requested the Vedic scholar Swami Satya Prakash Saraswati to undertake the highly onerous responsibility. Indeed one could think of no other scholar better qualified than Swami Satya Prakashji to accomplish this task. In this task, he is collaborating with Shri Satyakam Vidyalankar, a renowned Vedic scholar.

Thanks are particularly due to Shri Vishwa Nath for his unstinted cooperation in the excellent production of this work.

Our labours would be fully rewarded if through this English translation of the four Vedas, attempted for the first time in India, the divine message enshrined in the Vedas impregnates human consciousness everywhere.

Introduction

Swami Satya Prakash Saraswati

INTRODUCTION

the pettiness and parochialism of politics and strove to reinforce our national life with the tensile strength of our quintessential heritage. He lived and worked for national goals. In national politics he was the ambassador of the larger cultural claims on life. In his tragic and untimely death, Mother India lost an illustrious son who distinguished himself not by the office he held, nor by his wealth or material acquisitions, but by his dedicated and singleminded service to the cause of the nation. In his death, Veda Pratishthana lost its moving spirit, regained mainly because his memory is a motive force. We savour the exhilarating fragrance and see the inspiring and exhorting presence of his personality, pervasive and perdurable, in the fruition of this project and pay our affectionate homage to his everlasting memory.

I take this opportunity to thank all my colleagues and to reiterate my debt of gratitude to my esteemed friend and munificent philanthropist, Brigadier Kapil Mohan, and to revered Svami Satya Prakashji. Both of them have been invaluable "resource persons" for this project. To revered Svamiji, and the intrepid team of translators including Pandit Satyakam Vidyalankar and Shri Udai Vir Viraj Vidyalankar, who have assisted Svamiji, we owe the quality and the steady progress of this work. To my colleagues, Shri Shiv Kumar Shastri, Professor Ved Vyasji, Shri Ram Nath Sehgal, Shri Naunitlal, and Shri Ram Saran Das Ahuja, I convey my cordial thanks for their unfailing support in our labour of love. There are many other friends and workers of the project who have quietly and unobtrusively extended a helping hand and to whom I owe a word of appreciation. On this occasion my thoughts go to the memory of the late Dr. G.L. Datta and the late Dr. Suraj Bhan who were associated with the project closely.

I close my prayerful thanksgiving on this happy occasion by invoking the luminous vastness of Truth in the form of Sarasvatī, the goddess of learning and inspiration, who awakens our consciousness, enlightens our understanding of the universe, and showers her bountiful blessing on noble pursuits.

SOME HIGHLIGHTS OF THE YAJURVEDA

In fact, there is hardly a literature which is so highly held in esteem as the Vedic Samhitās. It would be futile to assign any date for the composition, collection or revelation of the Vedic texts. It is difficult to evaluate the four Samhitās exclusively. To a traditional Indian, the entire Vedic text is held sacred. The Rk, the Yajuh and the Sāman are embodied and incorporated in all the four Vedas. The knowledge is one; it exists as if within us and thus becomes a part of our own being, of our own mind, of our own consciousness. Perhaps in this reference, one of the mantras with a refrain tan memanah, siva samkalpam astu elaborates that the Rk, Yajuh and Sāman are the spokes of the same wheel existing within our consciousness: यत्मिच्च सामन्यजूध्य यत्मिमतिष्ठता रयनभाविवाराः। यत्मिश्चित क्षेत्रांची प्रजानां तन्मे मनः शिवसङ्कल्पमस्तु ॥ (Yv. XXXIV.5)

Wherein the Rks (praise verses), the Samans (lyrics) and the Yajuḥs (sacrificial formulas) are well placed like spokes in the nave of a wheel, wherein like a warf the thought of all the creatures is woven, may that mind of mine be always guided by the best of intentions.

All the four Vedas, the Rk, the Saman, the Yajuh and the Chandas (the Atharva) have come out of the same Cosmic Man or the same Cosmic Sacrifice:

तस्माधन्नात् सर्वष्टुत ऋचः सामानि जिहारे । छन्दार्श्वसि जिहारे तस्माधजुस्तस्मादजायत ।। (Yv. XXXI.7) Here by Chanda (छन्दस्), we do not mean Gayatrī and other metres: they are included in the Rk, the Saman and the Yajuḥ; here Chandas means the verses of the Atharva (Mahidhara and Uvaṭa have erred on this score). It is traditionally believed that the Vedas were not given to men in a language which pre-existed their composition. The language of the revealed Samhitās became the origin of all the languages which followed this literature. The superb plasticity of the language of the Samhitās is by itself an argument in favour of a revealed theory of language and culture.

Işa and Ürja — Food and Energy

The text of the Yajurveda starts with an invocation for the sake of isa (food) and urja (vigour, energy or fuel). Food in body burns up to give energy which sustains life. The solar energy through plants synthesizes food and the cycle between food and energy goes on. It is a cycle of mass and energy. Food, energy and consciousness are the elements through which life gets manifested, and this triple-function has reached its climax in the human-system. The largest source of uria or energy for the terrestrial life is the sun. The sun has its own isa or fuel, the atomic nuclei, which by the process of disintegration, fission or condensation, give rise to enormous energy. The lightning is a manifestation of  $\overline{urja}$  in the near midspace where move the clouds. The distant wide space is traversed by the micro-energy waves. To maintain our body-equilibrium, we need food or is and this by slow combustion furnishes energy to our system. Every factory needs the raw material or is and the urja, the energy. The mind - complex and sub-conscious complex also need their own types of isa and urja. The vital - complex of our makeup has also its characteristic im and urja. And therefore, the opening words of the Yajurveda are the invocations for this isa and ūria:

इषे त्वा । ऊर्जे त्वा (1.1)

We invoke you, O Lord, for food; we invoke you for vigour. These are the first two Yajuṣī of the Yajurveda. We have several passages in this Samhitā where the words in and urja occur in pairs. Haviṣ (हिन्प, or the oblations) of ghṛṭa or ājya (the clarified butter) provide in one substance, butter, iṣa and urja both:

रिवष्टबृद् देवेभ्य इन्द्र ६ आज्येन हविषा भूतवाहा,

(May the resplendent Lord be gracious to learned people by his oblation of melted butter, Svaha) - 11.9

Here we give a few passages where the term, is a and  $\overline{u}rja$ , simultaneously occur;

- (a) इपमूर्जमहमित अादमृतस्य योगि महिषस्य धाराम् (XII. 105)
- (b) जर्जी नपाज्जातवेदः मुशस्तिभिर्मन्दस्य धीतिभिर्दितः। त्येडहपः संदधुभृरिवर्षसश्चित्रोतयो वामजाताः॥ (XII.108)
- (c) इपे पिन्वस्वोर्जे पिन्वस्व (XXXVIII.14)
- (d) पूर्णा दवि परा पत सुपूर्णा पुनरायत । वस्नेच विक्रीणावहाऽइपमूर्गर्थ शतकतो (III.49)

In the cosmic creation, isa and  $\overline{u}rja$ , matter and energy, play the same role as rayi, xfa, and prana, xfa of the Prasno'panisad (For  $\overline{u}rj\overline{u}$  and rayi together, See Rv. VI.70.6). isa = rayi;  $\overline{u}rj\overline{u} = prana$ ).

In the Saptapadī ritual of a marriage ceremony, the first step advanced by the couple is for the iṣa and the second step is for  $\overline{urja}$ , and the five more steps, the couple moves for other blessings.

The term i sa and  $\overline{u}rja$  have a good deal of significance in the Rgveda also, for we have the pair occurring in several verses:

- (a) इपमूर्ज च पिन्वस मत्सरिन्तमः Rv.IX.63.2
- (b) इपमूज पवमानाभ्यपीत Rv.IX.86.35

Yoga and Ksema

Yoga is the acquisition of anything worth having and Kṣema is its preservation. Usually Kṣema becomes more vital than Yoga or acquisition. This is true in personal matters as much as in the national. The last words of the universal National Anthem are:

योगक्षेमो नः कल्पताम् (XXII.22)

which mean that for a country, not only Yoga, or the acquisition of freedom, land, prosperity, or wealth is needed, she should have also Kṣema, i.e. the capacity of preservation of all that she has acquired by efforts and sacrifice. Life in no case is static. Its dynamism requires care and caution. This care and caution for the future is Kṣema.

Rāyaspoṣa or Prosperity or Riches and Nourishment for Healthy Growth

There are dozens of instances where the word rāyaspoṣa (plentiful riches) has been used in the Samhitā. Rāyas (रायः) is the riches, prosperity of wealth of any kind—wealth of learning, wealth of money, wealth of cattle and wealth of worldly treasures. This word is closely related to rayi (रिय). We have in several verses the phrase : वयं स्थाम पतयो रियोणाम् न् may we all ecome Lord of Treasures (X.20; XXIII.65; Rv. X.121.10; Av. VII.79.4).

The word rāyaspoṣa in the Yajurveda for the first time occurs in Chapter III, verse 20: अन्य त्यान्यो वो मक्षीय मह स्य महो वो मक्षीयार्ज स्थोर्ज वो मक्षीय रायस्योप स्थ रायस्योपं वो भक्षीय ॥

You are food; may I eat your food.
You are respectable; may I also enjoy your respect.
You are vigour; may I receive your vigour.
You are plentiful riches; may I also enjoy your plentiful riches.

The four material gains invoked in this verse are अन्यस् (food), महः (respect), ऊर्जाः (vigour or energy) and रायस्योपः (all riches and sustenance in plenty for healthy growth).

(i)	अस्मे रमस्वास्मे ते बन्धुरत्वे रायो मे रायो मा वय रायस्पोषेण वियोध्य तो तो
	रायः (IV.22)
	Play with us. We are your brothern. Your riches
	(are) my riches. May we never be deprived of riches and nourishment. Yours be the riches.
1000

(ii) रायस्पोषदे विष्णवे त्वा (V.1) (iii) सिहासि सुप्रजावनी रायस्पोषविनः स्वाहा (V.12) (iv) सुवोरो वीरान् प्रजनयन् परीहाभिरायस्पोषेण यजमानम् (VII.13)

(v) त यज्ञ धुक्त महि में प्रजाया १५ रायस्पीयं विस्वमायुरशीय स्वाहा(VIII.62)

(vi) रायस्यावेण समिषा मदन्तोऽग्ने मा ते प्रतिवेशा रियाम (XI.75)

(vii) मिय गृह्णाम्यगे अर्गिन रायस्पोपाय सुप्रजास्त्वाय सुवीर्याय (XIII.1) (viii) इपं त्वा, ऊर्जे त्वा, रप्यै त्वा पोषाय त्वा (XIV.22)

(AIII) and real' control of the state of the

(I invoke you for food. For vigour. For riches. For nourishment).

In the Saptapadi ritual of the marriage, the couple advances the third step for rayasposa.

Yajña and Yajamana

Yajāa is the performance of one's duty in the widest sense. Performance of one's duty is also karma. All the four Veda Samhitās are one in respect to these performances. It is through yajāa that one attains the highest attainable. It is the yajāa that liberates one from the shackles of bondage; it is again the yajāa through which one gets worldly prosperity—wealth, reputation, enlightenment, family comforts. Yajāa is not a ritual; it is a dedication to the society and the environments, and finally, it is an obligation to the Lord Supreme.

The word yajāa is derived from yyaj, र्यम, which has three connotations, dāna (दान), devapūjā(देवपूजा) and saṅgatīkaraṇa (संगतीकरण). Charity and benevolent help given to others are dāna; reverence to men of enlightenment, harnessing Nature's bounties for social good and keeping environments free from pollution—this is devapūjā; strengthening and enriching the society by organizing benevolent institutions, helping mechanical and chemical industries, developing science and technology, all is saṅgatīkarana. What Dayānanda understands by yajāa is:

"Yajña is a term covering all the actions done for showing reverence to the men of learning, all scientific inventions and their application, all chemical processes, all educational activities and charities, all performances of Agnihotra, Homa etc. (fire-rituals) for the purification of air, rain, water, herbs etc. for the increase of human happiness". (Dayānanda: Beliefs and Disbeliefs, 28).

In such contexts, the yajña is regarded as the supreme duty (श्रेष्ठतम कर्म- ŚBr. I.7.1.5). The words "श्रेष्ठतमाय कर्मणे" occurring in the first verse of the Samhitā refer to this sort of yajña. The superb duty is one which is done for the sake of general good, without any expectation of reward and return; it is the duty performed without an attachment.

Yaiña is the duty for excellence, incorporating all works and performances of benevolence. Dealing with the subject, Mahīdhara, the reputed commentator on the Sukla Yajurveda Samhita says that all the actions, works or performances, the karmas can be classified under four heads,* aprasastam (objectionable), prasastam (commendable), srestham (excellent), and sresthatamam (excellent in the superlative).* Normally, srestha is also the superlative or the best, but the sresthatamam is the highest, the noblest conceivable. All actions illegal and unsocial, like cheating, stealing, torturing etc. are aprasasta. Actions good for the family and a small group of friends and relations, like helping and rearing the family are prasasta; the actions enjoined by the smrti or the moral and legal codes of the State or Society are srestha; and finally, the actions enjoined by the Veda, or the divine enlightenment, based on the principles of satya (the high value of life) and rta (the universal law) and meant to serve humanity at large, and aimed at establishing a universal kinship are śresthatama, and such actions alone are known as the yaiña.

There are two ways of interpreting the line: "यज्ञो वे श्रेष्टतमं कर्म": (i) the yajña is the most excellent performance, and (ii) all most excellent performances constitute yajña. The particle vai (व) indicates an identity. The yajña is identical with the most excellent. Unfortunately so many acts passed under the name of yajña, that yajña became a term of disrepute (just as the term sacrifice, a synonym for a sacred act of dedication). The term adhvara, अन्तर, a synonym of yajña, means a performance free from all types of violence. The animal sacrifice is not even a praśasta karma, or a śrestha karma; how can it be a śresthatama karma? Such sacrifices made the yajñasālās a place of horror and disgust. Here lies the difference between Dayānanda's and Mahīdhara's interpretations. It was actually not the fault of Mahīdhara that he interpreted the texts as he has done. His has been the traditional translation only based on the Kātyāyana and other Śrauta Sūtras. Dayānanda was a Rṣi, a person of vision; he possessed the courage of a truth-seeker, and hence he could see the identity that the most excellent karma is the yajña, and hence the yajña is also the most excellent karma. The yajña is an anti-thesis of violence. The yajña is a karma per excellence, a karma which is enjoined by the two texts of Ī sopaniṣad. (Yv.XL.1-2).

Introduction 7

तेन त्यक्तेन मुझीया। कुर्वन्नेवेह कर्माणि जिजीविषेत् शतं समाः॥ (Yv.XL.1-2).

Any act of public utility, performed with non-attachment with its fruit is  $yaj\bar{n}a$ . The one who performs such an act, the leader, the house-holder is  $yajam\bar{a}na$ . The performance of a token ritual on such occasions is also traditionally known as  $yaj\bar{n}a$ , but the real  $yaj\bar{n}a$ , the benevolent institution, follows the ritual and continues so long as the yajamana feels dedicated to it. A great  $yaj\bar{n}a$  may pass on to the posterity also. Organizing industry, technology, establishing academies for research and development, running a factory, raising a hospital—all these benevolent acts constitute  $yaj\bar{n}a$  as enjoined by the Veda; they are the benevolent acts of universal character meant to serve all and sundry.

Since the  $yaj\bar{n}a$  is the most excellent sacred performance, we have the following series of the  $yaj\bar{u}\dot{m}\dot{s}i$ :

आयुर्यक्षेन कल्पताम् । प्रास्तो यक्षेन कल्पताम् । चसुर्यक्षेन कल्पताम् । श्रोत्रं यक्षेन कल्पताम् । पृष्ठं यक्षेन कल्पताम् । यक्षो यक्षेन कल्पताम् । –(Yv.IX.21)

May my longevity be secured by sacrifice. May my breath, may my vision, may my hearing, may my back, may the sacrifice be secured by sacrifice. A few more similar Yajūmṣi are added in the Samhitā to the above elsewhere.

वाग्यक्षेन कत्यताम् । मनो यक्षेन कत्यताम् । आत्मा यक्षेन कत्यताम् । ब्रह्म यक्षेन कत्यताम् । ज्योतिर्यक्षेन कत्यताम् । स्वर्यक्षेन कत्यताम् ॥

-(Yv.XVIII.29).

May the speech be regulated by sacrifice; may the mind, may the conscience, may the intellectual power; may the light, may the bliss be secured through sacrifice.

All the five prāṇas have been invoked in a similar verse in the same strain along with āyu, cakṣu, śrotra, vāk, manas, ātman, brahmā, jyotiḥ, svaḥ, pṛṣṭha and yajña. The five prāṇas or vital breaths are prāṇa, apāna, vyāna, udāna and samāna.

प्राणो यज्ञेन कल्पता शंस्वाहा । अपानो यज्ञेन कल्पताशंस्वाहा । व्यानो यज्ञेन कल्पताशंस्वाहा । उदानो यज्ञेन कल्पताशंस्वाहा । समानो यज्ञेन कल्पताशंस्वाहा । (Yv.XXII.33).

In fact, the entire life, all the body organs are to be strengthened with the concept of yajña or the spirit of dedication and sacrifice. The sacrifice itself has to be inspired and spiritualized by the feeling of yajña. Yajña is a process of spiritualization of all our human activities. Our science and technology, including biological and social sciences need complete spiritualization in this respect before they can be effective in the right sense in raising the stature of man and his society.

Yajamana - The person who performs the yajña is a yajamana. Usually, he is a house-holder. Later on as the culture developed, it became one of the obligatory duties of yajamāna to keep himself engaged in the five mahāvaiñas. (i) the Brahmayajña(ब्रह्म यज्ञ), which normally means (a) study of the Veda and scriptures, and (b) prayer and silent worship commonly known as the sandhyā; (ii) the Devayajña (देवपज्ञ) which means all our efforts to fight against environmental pollutions; traditionally, it got restricted to the performance of Agnihotra or Homa, a fire-ritual; (iii) the Pitr-vaiña (पितपज्ञ) which includes reverence to all the elders of the family and an obligation to serve them as best as one can, even at the cost of personal comforts; traditionally, it also means submitting to fire certain oblations of the edible material: (iv) the Atithi yajña (अतिथि यज्ञ) or taking good care of the persons, who have selflessly dedicated their life to the services of the society.

Introduction 9

The word atithi, अतिथि, stands for a sannyāsin. who temporarily comes to stay at the house of a householder, but keeps on usually moving; here again in the ritual, there are a few yajūmṣi, which are recited and oblations offered to fire; (v) the Balivaiśvadeva yajña, (बिनवेशवदेवयम्), where offerings are given to All-Gods, the Viśvedevāh; the portions are allotted suiting to the needs of cattle, domestic helpers or servants and social dependents. Dayānanda has elaborated the details of these five Great Duties in his reputed text, the Pañcamahā-yajña Vidhi, and his other writings. These five mahāyajñas have no direct bearing with the Yajurveda exclusively. Of course, şome of the yajūmṣi have been utilized in the yajñas (particularly from Chapter III of the Yajurveda for the Devayajña (5,1,2,3,9 and 10):

मूर्मुवः स्वर्धौरिवः,समिधाऽग्निः, सुत्तमिद्धायः, तं त्वा समिद्भिर्ः अग्निज्यौतिः, सजूर्देवेन सवित्राः।

For the pitṛyajāa, see also Yv.II.31-34: अत्र पितरो मादयष्टं ः, नमो वः पितरो रताय ः; आधत पितरो ॰ and ऊर्जं वहन्तीरमृतं ॰ and Yv.XIX.36 (पितृम्यः स्वधायम्यः स्वधा नमः; पितामहेम्यः स्वधायम्यः स्वधा नमः। प्रपितामहेम्यः स्वधायमः। प्रपितामहेम्यः। प्रपितामहेम्यः स्वधायमः। प्रपितामहेम्यः। प्रपिताम

The words mantra, chandas, stoma, yajuḥs and sāman have been thus derived in the Nirukta: Mantras (stanzas or verses, say the Rk) are so called from thinking (मन्त्रा मननात); Chandas or metres from covering (छन्दांति छादनात); hymns or stoma from praising (स्तोमः स्तवनात). Yajuṣ is derived from the root yaj, √यन, to sacrifice (यनुर्यजतेः). Sāma is so called because it is measured out by the stanza, or it may be derived from the root as, √अस, to throw. He thought it equal to the stanza, say they who are well-versed in the Vedic metres (सामसम्मित्रभूचा । अस्यतेर्वा । ऋचा समे येन इति नैदानाः)—Nir. VII.12.

The yajamāna is a person of respectability; he is the unit of the society and he is the measure, मान, of the yajāa. The Supreme Lord is invoked to take care of him; to keep care of his cattle and to bless him with riches, long life, health, vigour, cattle, home and progeny. As on him depends the society and the state, his needs and desires are to be taken care of. He is blessed by the priest, who is his philosopher and guide. The yajamāna honours the priest with reverence and looks to his needs, while the priest, the purchita, blesses him in his projects (सत्याः सन्तु यजमानस्य कामाः) (XII.44), may the wishes of the yajamāna come out true.

We shall quote here a few verses where the yajamāna (sacrificer) has been invoked. The yajamāna is also often called as the yajñapati or the lord of the yajña, or gṛhapati as the householder, or master of the house.

- (i) यजमानस्य पशून् पाहि (1.1) Preserve the cattle of the yajamāna.
- (ii) परमेण धाम्ना इछहस्व मा ह्रामा ते यज्ञपतिह्राचीत् (1.2) —Remain firm in your supreme abode. Don't you forsake, nor may the sacrificer (yajñapati) forsake you.
- (iii) यजगानस्य परिधिरति (II.3). You are the protective peg for the sacrificer.
- (iv) अग्ने गृहपते सुगृहपतिस्त्वयाङग्नेड्हं गृहपतिना भूयासछसुगृहपतिस्त्वं मयाङग्ने गृहपतिना भूयाः (II.27). O adorable Lord, master of the household, you being a householder, by your grace, may I also be a good householder. O Lord, due to my being a householder, you become a good householder.
- (v) अयमिनगृहपतिर्गार्हपत्यः प्रजया वसुधित्तमः (III.39). The fire is the Lord of the home. This is most useful for the household. This bestows wealth for the sake of progeny.
- (vi) रायस्पोषे यज्ञपतिमामजन्ती रायस्पोषे अधि यज्ञो अस्यात् (XVII.54). May they grant riches and nourishment to the sacrificer; and may the sacrifice flourish in the midst of riches and nourishment.

Introduction 11

(vii) इयक्षमाणा भृगुभिः सजोपाः स्वर्यन्तु यजमानाः स्वरित्त (XVII.69)

May the sacrificers, willing to perform sacrifices in accord with the fire-producers (Bhṛgus) reach the auspicious world of bliss.

(viii) उद् बुष्यस्वाग्ने प्रति जागृष्टि त्विमिष्टापूर्ते सद्युप्तजेयामयं च । अस्मिन् सपस्ये अप्युत्तरस्मिन् विश्वेदेवा यजमानश्च सीदत । (XV.54)

O fire-divine, wake up, keep the sacrificer ever alert and watchful. Let him be engaged in sacrifices and in benevolent deeds. May in this place of sacrifice and in higher realms all the enlightened ones and the sacrificer occupy good positions.

The entire terminology of the ecclesiastical yaiñas is based on the terms used in the Rgveda, but when I say this, I do not mean that the Rgveda gives a sanction to the yajña rituals. These rituals came into existence milleniums after the revealed knowledge of the Veda. As in so many other cases, so in the case of Kalpa or the Karmakanda, the terminology is derived from the Sruti: in the Sruti, the terms occurred in their most natural connotations, with the plasticity of their etymology. The very first verse of the Rgveda has the term agni, purohita, yajña, deva, rtvija, and hotr-these terms were later on utilized in the technical sense, when firerituals attained a concrete form. The word rivik has an association with rtu or season; a participant in a seasonal ritual came to be known as a rtvik; he is expected to be an enlightened person, rich in the Vedic lore. The number of rtviks may be one, two, three or four. If there is one rtvik, he is the purohita also, or the leading priest of the ceremony. If there are two participants in the ceremony, other than the yaimana. one is known as the purchita, and the other a rtvik; when there are three participants, they are known as rtvik, purohita and the adhyaksa (or the head); and when there are four participating priests, they are known as hotr, adhvarvu, udgatr and brahmā (Dayānanda, the Sanskāravidhi), of course, the details are not so simple, as Dayananda has conceived. There are a host of terms by which the priests and participants are known according to their functions in the elaborate ceremonies. Taking the hint from the various texts of the Rgveda (e.g. II.1.2), the ecclesiastical experts of the Brahmanic period and of the period of the Śrauta Sūtras drew out a long list of the priests and the participants in the yājāik-rituals.

नवाग्ने होत्रं तवपोत्रमृत्वियं तव नेष्ट्रं त्वमग्निहृतायतः। तथप्रशास्त्रं त्वमध्वरीयसि ब्रह्म चासि गृहपतिश्व नो दमे॥

(Rv.II.1.2)

According to the yājñikas, the verses 31 and 32 of Chapter V of the Yajurveda contain formulas for the consecration of the eight dhiṣṇyās, i.e. eight side-altars or hearths each of which is addressed in turn.

- The hearth of the Agnīdhra, आग्नीम, the fire-kindler priest; the formula is विभूरित प्रवाहणः—you are all-pervading, the carrier.
- 2. The hearth of the Hotr, होतृ, the invoking priest; the formula is बह्रितीस हव्यवाहनः, you are the fire that carries the oblations.
- 3. The hearth of the Maitrā-varuṇa, मैत्रावरुण, the assistant of hotr priest; the formula is खात्रोडिस प्रचेता:; you are swift and wise.
- 4. The hearth of Brāhmaṇācchansi, बाह्मणाच्छेति, the formula is नुयोऽति विश्ववेदाः, you are tutha or the Divine Supreme, the omniscient. (Tutha means Brāhmaṇa priest, who knows how priestly fees are to be distributed Griffith). (These four in reference to verse 31).
- The hearth of the Potr, पोतृ, or cleansing-priest; the formula is उशिगति कवि:, you are the yearning one, the sage.
- 6. The hearth of the Nestr, বৈদ্ধ, the priest who leads forward the sacrificer's wife. He is addressed by the names Anghari and Bambhari, अङ्घारिरसि वम्भारिः, two guardians of the celestial soma (cf. IV.27); you are the enemy of the sin, the nourisher.

- The hearth of the Acchavak, अच्छावाक, or inviting priest; the formula is अवस्यूरित दुवस्वान, you are the bestower of food, the possessor of supplies (or aidseeker and worshipping — Griffith).
- 8. The mārjālīya hearth of the cleanser on which the sacrificial vessels are cleansed. The formula is गुन्ध्यूरीस मार्जालीयः. After the completion of these eight dhiṣṇyās, the Āhavanīya, आहवनीय, fire is pointed at and addressed as समाइति कृशानुः, you are sovereign, the glowing fire. Mahīdhara supplies further details of the verse 32, corresponding to परिषद्योइति प्रयमानः, नमोऽति प्रतक्वा, मृष्टो इति हव्यस्दनः and ऋतथामाति स्वज्योतिः you are the member of the assembly, the pure one; you are the sky, the pleasure-showering, you are swept clean, the preparer of oblations; you are the seat of law, heaven's light and lustre.

The Cosmic Man of Purusa Sükta

In the Rgveda (X.90), we have a full hymn of 16 verses, known as the Puruṣa-Sūkta, with Nārāyaṇa as its Rṣi. The entire hymn is repeated in the Yajurveda Chapter 31 of 22 verses (i.e. 6 new verses, not taken from the Rgveda). Out of the sixteen verses of this hymn, which deal with the cosmic creation, coming out of the Cosmic Man with thousands of heads, thousands of eyes and thousands of feet, six (or seven) verses deal with yajāa, the cosmic sacrifice. This yajāa is the Supreme Performance of the Cosmic Puruṣa, who is known as Puruṣa (XXXI.18). He is also Prajāpati (XXXI.19). Yajāa is referred to in the following verses of this Chapter of the Yajurveda.

ी. नत्माद्यज्ञान् सर्वहुदः तम्भृतं पृथदाज्यम् (6) From that cosmic sacrifice, to which all things have been offered as oblations, milk and curd are obtained.

- 2. तस्याद्यक्षात् सर्वहुतङऋचः सामानि जिक्करे (7) From that cosmic sacrifice, in which everything has been offered as oblations, the Rks and Samans are born. Also verse (8).
- 3. तं यज्ञं बर्हिषि प्रौक्षन् पुरुषं जातमगतः (9) The cosmic Man, who is born earliest of all is placed on the cosmic sacrificial altar.
- 4. यत्पुरुपेण हिवेषा देवा यज्ञमतन्वत (14) In the cosmic sacrifice arranged by gods with Cosmic Man as oblation.
- 5. देवा यद्यक्षं तन्त्रानाऽअबध्नन् पुरुषं पशुम् When the gods preparing for the sacrifice tie up the Cosmic Man as an offering.
- 6. यज्ञेन यज्ञमयजन्त देवास्तानि धर्माणि प्रथमान्यासन् (16) Gods worshipped the Supreme Lord with Sacrifice. These have been the earliest ordinances. (See Rv.X.90.8; 9; 10; 7; 6; 15; 16)

Since this hymn is essentially of the Rgveda, we shall not elaborate it here. There are certain terms used in this yajña of cosmic creation, which later on became popular in the havya-yajña, or the fire-ritual which developed round the yajūmsi: Pṛṣad-ājya, मुपदाज्य — butter mixed curds, yajñambarhisi, यत्रं वर्डिपि, the place of yajña scattered with grass; (9) prauksan, प्रोक्षन्, cleansed and purified, ajyam आज्यम्, butter (14); idhma, इप्प, or fire wood (14); havih, हविः or oblation-material (14); paridhih, परिषिः, encircling lines seven in number, samidhaḥ, समिषः, or wood-sticks, three into seven (3×7 = 21) in number. abadhnan pasum, अवध्नन् पशुं, the animal bound to stake; sadhyas साच्याः and rsis (9, 16), the experts in the technicalities of the ritual and persons enlightened with the Vedic lore. These are some of the terms, which were used in elaborating the details of cosmic creation and later on became the basis of the fire-rituals, developed round the texts of the Yajurveda.

The Purusa Sūkta of the Rgveda and the Yajurveda not only deals with the cosmic representation of the Supreme

Introduction 15

Creator, from which everything has emanated out in the sense that He is the First Cause of the creation, and the creation is the divine manifestation of His Art at the multidimensional canvas of the mother Prakṛti which is also known by numerous synonyms as Aditi, Svadhā and sometimes as Akāśa also. The cosmic Puruṣa created the inorganic and organic world both. He is responsible for the birth of cattle, grāmya paśu, (cows, horse, goat, sheep and man), besides the forest-dweller animals (āranya paśu), and winged creatures flying in air, Vāyavya creatures (पश्चानारच्यो पाच्याश्च ये —Yv. XXXI.6)

To the civilised man, He gave the concept of a social life divided into four classes: (i) the intellectuals, (ii) the ruling class or warriors, (iii) the business class and agriculturists responsible for production and distribution of social wealth, and (iv) the labour class — these came to be known as Brāhmaṇas, Kṣattriyas, Vaiśyas and Śūdras. We have the following two verses in this connection:

(i) यत्पुरुषं व्यदयुः कतिधा विकल्पयन् । मुखं किमस्यासीत् किं बाहु किमूरू पादा ७ उच्येते । (10)

The man (purusa, the mankind or society) they created, in what portions do they figurize it? Which is His mouth, which the two arms, which the two thighs and which are said to be His feet?

The Brähmana (the intellectual) is His mouth; the Kṣattriya (rājanya or administrator) is made His two arms; what is the Vaiśya (producer of wealth) is His two thighs; and Śūdra (labourer) is born of His two feet. (The beautiful metaphor is expressed in four styles).

The revealed knowledge or the Veda (the divine speech) is meant for every man in the Society, as is indicated in the following Yajuh verse:

ययेमां वाचं कल्याणीमावदानि जनेभ्यः । सहराजन्याम्याछं शूद्राय चार्याय च स्वाय चारणाय च । प्रियो देवानां दक्षिणायै दातुरिष्ट भूयास— मयं मे कामः समुध्यताभुग मादो नमातु ॥ O Lord, may I address this auspicious speech of yours (the Veda) to all the people, intellectuals (Brāhmaṇas) and administrators (Kṣattriyas), workers (Śūdras) and producers of wealth (Arya or Vaiśya), our kinsman and strangers. May I become favourite of the learned ones and of him who gives liberal guerdon. May such and such wish of mine be fulfilled, and may I get affection of so and so.

The society is a living organism, and its people divided into classes are its organs. The classification is not by birth or parentage, but by attainments (guna or attributes; karma or actions or professions and svabhava, the aptitude). The Veda speaks of the dignity of profession, and the dignity of labour. Each section, just like head or brain, the shoulders, the belly and feet, functions in unison, with inter-dependence, and mutual cooperation.

The Yajurveda speaks of another type of classification of mankind. This gives us the concept of Pañcajanya or pañcajanāḥ, (पाश्चनन्य, पश्चननाः). For pañcajanāḥ, see Yv. XXV.23:

विश्वदेवाऽअदितिः पराजना अदितिजीतमदितिजीनित्वम् ।

Eternity is all the gods; eternity is the penta-classified men; eternity is all that hath been born and shall be born. (See Rv. 1.89.10 also).

In fact the concept of pancajanya is of the Rgveda: for this term, See Rgveda:

पाद्यजन्य, पाद्यजन्यः -1.100.12; IX.66.20; पाद्यजन्यम् -1.117.3; V.32.11; पाद्यजन्यम् -VIII.63.7; पाद्यजन्यम् -III.53.16; पाद्यजन्यम् -VII.72.5; 73.5.

We have the following terms also in the Rgveda*:

पद्यक्षितीः ; पञ्चिक्षतीनाम् -1.7.9; 176.3; V.35.2; VI.46.7; VII.75.4; 79.1.

Again, चत्वारी वर्णाः निपादपश्चमाः पञ्चजना इत्यन्ये -- Sayana on I.171.3.

*चर्पणानाम् मनुष्याणाम्, men or people, —Sāyaṇa on I.7.9 क्षितीनाम् निवासार्हाणाम् वर्षानाम्, those who have a right or claim to stay in abodes or houses —Sāyaṇa on I.7.9; पञ्चक्षितीनाम् । क्षियन्ति निवसन्ति गच्छन्ति वा क्षितयः देवा मनुष्याः, पितरः, पशवः, पक्षिणश्चेति पञ्चजनाः।

पञ्चजनाः —I.89.10; III.59.8; VI.11.4; 51.11; VIII.32.22; IX.92.3; X.45.6.

पञ्चकृष्टयः, पञ्चकृष्टिषु —II.2.10; IV.38.10; X.60.4; 119.6; 178.3. पञ्चचर्षणीः —V.86.2; VII.15.2; IX.101.9. पञ्चमानुषी —VIII.9.2

The division into five has been variously described. At one place, according to Sāyaṇa, the five classes of beings are devāḥ, (gods or enlightened persons), manuṣyāḥ, common people; pitaraḥ or elders, manes; paśavaḥ, cattle, and pakṣiṇaḥ, birds with wings (Sāyaṇa on I.176.3). He at the same places gives an alternative classification: people of the four varṇas, Brāhmaṇa, Kṣattriya, Vaiśya and Śūdra, and the fifth one is Niṣāda.

At another place (I.89.10), the five classes of people, pañcajanāḥ, have been enumerated as alternatively: of gandharvas, pitṛs, devas, asuras and rakṣas, गन्पर्वाः पितरो देवा असुरा रक्षांति; persons, who indulge in luxury, and are specialists of fine arts and asthetics are gandharvas; the elders of the society by age, rank or experience are pitṛs; the enlightened persons, learned and wise, are devas; evil persons not abiding to the Vedic discipline are asuras; and persons indulging in crimes and violence are rakṣas, or demons.

The word kṛṣṭī is the same as cultured. The word pañ-ca-kṛṣṭiṣu has also been translated as pañcaṣu janeṣu (II.2.10); niṣāda is the fifth, and people of four varṇas constitute the four, and hence the cultured community is classified under five heads.

Who are these nisādas? We have the word occurring only at one place in the Yajurveda (XVI.27) — निषादेम्य:-

(Yv. XVI.27)

गालिकाः); according to Mahīdhara, niṣādas are hilly-tribes, flesh-eaters of Bhilla community, निपादा गिरिचरा गांसाशिनो भिरलाः। According to Dayānanda, the people who belong to hills or forests are niṣādas: (निपादेभ्यः वनपर्वतादिषु तिष्ठन्ति तेभ्यः). In other words, niṣāda is that group of human society, which is away from the city life of cultured people, the unscheduled tribal class of hilly tracts and wild culture. This class has not been bestowed with the civic rights. In modern terminology, they have no voting in the social management, and ordinarily they are not governed by the usual social laws.

The classification into the four categories of varna only comes after the age of maturity. A child, a boy or girl under discipline of education, and yet not graduated, a person who has left the house-hold life, a vānaprasthin (a forest dweller) or a sannyāsin, the one who has renounced the privileges of a social life — all these constitute the fifth class of mankind.

It is interesting to note that the word niṣāda, निपाद, occurs only once in the Yajurveda, and no where else in the Rgveda or the Atharvaveda.

Social Vocations and Employments

The Yajurveda is known for its lexicon character. The sixteenth Book of this Veda, according to the traditionalists consists of Satarudriva, शतहबीय, a litany accompanying 425 oblations, addressed to the hundred rudras. This Book, the Rudrādhyāyī refers to a large number of professions in an indirect manner. We have another Thirtieth Book, commonly treating of the Purusa-medha, (so often translated as a book of human sacrifice) is in fact a book of human professions in a cultured and highly developed society. This is a sacrifice or a ceremony, traditionally performed by a Brahmana or a Rajanya to show respect to people of all types of trades and occupations. The horse-sacrifice is a national Zoo-fair, or Animal Fair (wild and cattle life), and similarly the Purusamedha is a National Fair of people of all vocations. The reader is requested to go through all the lines of this Book and find out for himself the vocations envisaged by the Samhita in a well-developed society.

Introduction 19

- 20. Village-headman, lute-player, drum-player, flutist, cymbal musician.
- 21. Disposer of dead bodies.

Concept of State or Rastra

What we call today a nation, a state, motherland, fatherland or country may be visualized in the connotation of a small term  $R\bar{a}$ stra, the head of which was known under different names such as Indra,  $R\bar{a}$ jan, Samrāt etc. The word  $R\bar{a}$ stra occurs at several places in the Rgveda:

राष्ट्र, राष्ट्रम् —rāṣṭram, IV.42.1; VII.84.2; X.109.3; 124.4; 173.1; 2; 5. राष्ट्रस्य —rāṣṭrasya, X.124.5 राष्ट्रस्य —rāṣṭrānām, VII.34.11 राष्ट्राय —rāṣṭrāya, X.174.1 राष्ट्राय —rāṣṭrī, VI.4.5; VIII.100.10; X.125.3

In the Yajurveda, we have the following occurrences of this word:

राष्ट्रदा — rāṣṭradā, X.2; 3; 4 राष्ट्रद् — rāṣṭram, X.2; 3.4; XII.11; XX.8 राष्ट्रे — rāṣṭre, IX.23, XX.10; XXII.22

According to Sāyaṇa, the word rāṣṭrī, राष्ट्री, means king or lord, since rāṣṭra is kingdom (राष्ट्री ईश्वरनामैतत्—Rv.VI.4.5; राष्ट्री राजनशीला—VIII.100.10). Rāṣṭra is rājya or kingdom (राष्ट्र राज्यम्—Rv. VII.84.2 —युवो राष्ट्र वृहदिन्वति, may you both, Mitra and Varuṇa, give joy to the kingdom of heaven, celestial region, with rains). Varuṇa is so often addressed as rājan or king of all kingdoms (राजा राष्ट्रानाम्—Rv.VII.34.11).

There is a reference to the maintenance of secrecy of the state from the enemy —राष्ट्रं गुपित क्षत्रियस्य —Rv. X.109.3. At one place, Sayana translates  $r\bar{a}stram$  as kingship or state as well as the place of  $yaj\bar{n}a$ , the ground or land of sacrifice ( $\pi v = 0$ )

राज्यं यज्ञभूमिम् -X.124.4).

In Book X of the Yajurveda, we have two passages (2 and 3) with the repetition of the formula : राष्ट्रवा राष्ट्र मे देहि, राष्ट्रवा राष्ट्र अमुष्मे देहि (2) and राष्ट्रवा राष्ट्र मे दत्त, राष्ट्रवा राष्ट्रममुष्मे दत्त (3) (Bestower of kingdom, bestow kingdom on this sacrificer so and so (2) Bestow the kingdom on me; bestowers of kingdom, bestow kingdom on this sacrificer so and so. (3).

There is a prayer or pious wish : विशस्त्वा सर्वा वाञ्छन्तु मा त्वद्राष्ट्रमधिमभात् (may all the subjects like you; may your kingship never fall -Yv.XII.11).

One of the most powerful and forceful invocation is : वर्ष राष्ट्रे जागृयाम पुरोहिताः (Yv. IX.23).

(Stationed in the forefront, may we always be active and alert for our nation).

We shall end this note with an inspiring National Anthem from the Yajuh Samhita:

आ बहान् बाहाणो बहावर्चती जायतामराष्ट्रे राजन्यः शूर इषव्योडितव्याधी महारयो जायतां दोग्गी धेनुर्वोद्धानह्वानाशुः सप्तिः पुरन्धियाया जिष्णू रवेष्ठाः सभेयो युवास्य यजमानस्य वीरो जायतां निकामे निकामे नः पर्जन्यो वर्षतु फलवत्यो नडओपधयः पच्यन्तां योग-क्षेमो नः कल्यताम् ॥

(Yv. XXII.22).

O Supreme Lord! May there be born in this rastra (the State) the learned intellectuals, illustrious for their sacred knowledge; may there be born the rajanya or the men of defence, heroic skilled archers, with piercing shafts, mighty warriors; the cows giving abundant milk; the ox good at carrying; the swift courser; the industrious ladies; may this householder be blessed with a son ever victorious, driving in the forefront, impressive in assemblies, and youthful; may we have timely rains according to our needs and desires; may our fruit-bearing plants ripen; may acquisition (yoga) and preservation (keema) of property be secured to us.

Different types of Sovereignties. There are certain terms in the Yajuh formulae which need elucidation.

राझ्यिस प्राची दिग्, विराडिंस दक्षिणा दिक्, समाडिंस प्रतीची दिक्, स्नराडस्युदीची दिग्, अधिपत्न्यसि बृहती दिक् — Yv. XIV.13.

You are the Rajni (queen) of the eastern region. You are the Viral(glorious sovereign) of the southern region.

You are the Samrāt (empress) of the western region. You are the Svarāt (autocrat) of the northern region. You are the Adhipatnī (paramount queen) of the upward region.

The same terms again appear in Book XV of the Yajurveda (verse 10 — Rājñī; 11 — Virāt, 12 — Samrāt, 13 — Svarāt, 14—Adhipatnī). Rājñī and adhipatnī are the feminine terms, whilst virāt, samrāt, and svarāt, are non-feminine (Iṣṭakās or bricks have been given these royal names).

Mahīdhara has explained these five terms as :

राजी	राजमाता	पूर्वा दिक्	गायत्री रूप
विराद्	विविधं राजमाना	दक्षिणा दिक्	त्रिष्टुप्-रूप
सम्राद्	सम्यग् राजमाना	प्रतीची दिक्	जगती-रूप
स्वराट्	परनिरपृेक्षं स्वयमेव	उदीची दिक्	अनुप्दुप्-लप
	राजमाना
अधिपत्नी	अधिकं पाति,	ऊर्ध्वा दिक्	पंक्ति-रूप

(Mahīdhara refers to the Satapatha Brahmaṇa, VIII.3.1.14, for these details. (তদ্বাহানি ব বিশা: VIII.3.1.13).

The Yajurveda and the Upanisads

The Yajurveda is known to be associated with two basic Upanişads, the Iśa and the Bṛhadāranyaka of Maharṣi Yājñavalkya. The Iśa is mainly the reproduction of the Fourtieth Chapter of the Yajurveda with slight variations at the close. The Bṛhadāranyaka constitutes in major the last part of the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa.

Introduction 23

The Yajurveda Samhitā has seventeen verses in Book XL, whereas the Īśa Upainṣad has 18 verses, the extra verse being

पूषन्नेकर्षे यम सूर्य प्राजापत्य व्यूह रश्मीन् समूह । तेजो यत्ते रूपं कत्याणतमं तत्ते पश्यामि यो ६ सावसौ पुरुष: सोड हमस्मि ।(Īśa. 16)

This verse may be compared with the last verse of the Yajurveda:

हिरण्ययेन पात्रेण सत्यस्यापिहितं मुखम् । योड सावादित्ये पुरुष: सोड सावहम् "ओ३म् खं बहा" ॥

The philosophy of the upanisads is based on the philosophy of the Veda; philosophy is simple, clear and dynamic. The basic principles may be outlined under several phases as given below:

- (i) God, the Infinite Eternity, the unchangeable, immutable and the First Cause of the universe is one and the entire universe, living and non-living, moving and stationary, throbs with the activity of our Lord. God is Supreme Artist, and the Creation a manifestation of His Art. (1)
- (ii) The Infinite Supreme Existence may be described as one that moves, and yet that moves not, far and yet so near, within all, and yet extending to infinity outside all. (5)
- (iii) He attains the bodiless, uninjurable, sinewless, pure and sinless bright one. He the Supreme self, far-sighted, wise, surpassing all, and self-existent, creates the objects in all propriety for all times to come. (8)
- (iv) In the world, we have the destructive impulse (asambhūti), and constructive impulse (sambhūti); one cannot be ignored in favour of the

- other. Both have to be taken care of to get across death and to gain immortality. (9-10)
- (v) Our human system (man as an organism), and hence our entire life is a continuum between the physical or worldly aspect and the spirit at the other end. Neither spirit can be rejected nor the flesh. Those who carry worldly (avidyā) and spiritual existences, (vidyā) and the knowledge thereof can face death with peace and attain immortality.

Vidyā is knowledge, and avidyā is non-knowledge, i.e. karma. Knowing and doing are the two phases of our purposeful life to be taken good care of simultaneously. (12-14)

- (vi) Life is dynamic and so is the creation. A change means purposefully well-planned systematized change; it is by no means unreal, myth or a dream. And hence one should desire to live for a hundred years, i.e. a full human span of life, always actively engaged. Only inactive idlers cling to life, and hence they suffer through a cycle of births and deaths. (2)
- (vii) The face of the ultimate reality is hidden by a golden cover, attractive and deluding. This cover has to be removed to realize what the reality is. Behind the sun, and within the sun, the most effulgent, is the existence of the Cosmic Supreme, the Divine Self. (17)

The Brhadaranyaka Upanisad is the rich annotation on the Isa Upanisad or the Fortieth Chapter of the Yajuh Samhitā. This being the last chapter of this Veda, it has come to be known as the Vedānta. The entire philosophy of the Vedānta is an exposition of the Vedic ideas involved in these seventeen verses.

There is an echo of the Iṣa Upanisad or the Fortieth Chapter of the Yajuḥ Samhitā in the Bṛadāranyaka Upaniṣad

(Br. Up.): (i) In Br. Up. IV.4.10; 11, we have:

- 1. अन्यः तमः प्रविशन्ति येऽविद्यामुपासते । ततो मूप इव ते तमो य उ विद्यायां रताः॥ (10)
- 2. अनन्दा नाम ते लोका अन्धेन तमसाऽऽवृताः । तां स्ते प्रेत्यामिगच्छन्त्यविद्धांसोऽबुधौ जनाः ॥ Bṛ. Up.

In Br. Up. V.15, we have

- 3.(a) हिरण्मयेन पात्रेण सत्यस्यापिहितं मुखम् तत्त्वंपूषन्नपावृणु सत्यधर्माय दृष्टये।
  - (b) पूषच्रेकर्षे यम सूर्य प्राजापत्य व्यूह रश्मीन् समूह । तेजो यत्ते रूपं कस्याणतमं तत्ते पश्यामि योडसावसौ ॥ पुरुषः सोडहमस्मि ॥
  - (c) वायुरनिलम् मृतम् थेदं मस्मान्तं शरीरम् । ओं क्रतो स्मर कृतं स्मर क्रतो स्मर कृतं स्मर् ॥
  - (d) अग्ने नय सुपद्या राये अस्मान्त्रिश्वानि देव वयुनानि विद्वान् । युयोध्य स्मज्जुहुराणमेनो भूयिष्ठां ते नम उक्ति विद्येम ॥

We are giving the English translation of these passages, as rendered by Robert Ernest Hume (1931; reprinted 1968).

- I. Into blind darkness enter they
  That worship ignorance;
  Into darkness greater than that, as it were, they
  That delight in knowledge (Br. Up. IV.4.10.; Yv.
  XL. 12).
- Joyless are those worlds called,
   Covered with blind darkness,
   To them after death go those People that have not knowledge, that are not-awakened. (Br. Up. IV.4.11; Yv. XL.3).
- 3(a) With a golden vessel

  The Real's face is covered o'er

(That do thou, O Püşan,uncover For one whose law is the Real to see). (Br. Up.V. 15; Yv. XL. 16).

- (b) O Nourisher (Pūṣan), the sole seer, O controller (Yama), O Sun, offspring of Prajāpati, spread forth thy rays; gather thy brilliance. What is thy fairest form—that of thee I see). He who is yonder, yonder person (puruṣa) — I myself am He! (Br. Up. V.15; Yv. XL. 17)
- (c) My breath to the immortal wind (anilam amṛtam)! The body then ends in ashes. Om!

  O Puruṣa with purpose (Kratu), remember! The deed (Kṛtam) remember!

  O Puruṣa, remember! The deed remember!

  (Br. Up.V.15; Yv. XL.15)
- (d) O Agni, by a goodly path to prosperity (rayi) lead us,
  Thou, god, who knowest all the ways!
  Keep far from us the crooked-going sin (enas)!
  Most ample expression of adoration to thee would we render.
  (Br. Up. V.15; Yv.XL.16)

Fearlessness, Peace and Happiness

The essence of the Vedic culture is the attainment of personal and social peace for the entire community. Peace does not come to a coward, a person terror-stricken. One who has not subdued fear and who has not enjoyed fearlessness would surrender to evils, malpractices, untruthfulness, and timidity.

There are certain terms which have a special connotation in the Vedic literature! Sam, Santi, Samyuh Svasti, Bhadra, Siva, Maya (शम्, शान्ति, शंपुः, स्वस्ति, भद्र, शिव, मय); a theist craves for them, and invokes God, Natures' bounties, and everything that is friendly and kind to him for the attainment of peace, happiness, prosperity, affluence, and physical and moral sustenance. The Yajurveda has numerous verses in common with the Rk verses in respect to sam and svasti, and yet there are certain passages unique of the Yajurveda and of universal popularity. One such verse is the following:

धौः शान्तिरन्तरिक्षश्चं शान्तिः पृथिवी शान्तिरापः शान्तिरोपधयः शान्तिः वनस्यतयः शान्तिर्विश्वेदेवाः शान्तिर्बह्य शान्तिः सर्वश्वशान्तिः शान्तिरेव शान्तिः तो मा शान्तिरेषि ॥

(Yv. XXXVI.17

May the sky be peaceful; may the midspace be peaceful; may the earth by peaceful; may the waters be peaceful; may the annual plants be peaceful; may the forest trees be peaceful; may the bounties of Nature be peaceful; may the knowledge be peaceful; may all the things be peaceful; may there be peace and peace only; may such a peace come to me.

The peace that we invoke for is not the peace of the dead — not the static peace. The dyau (the celestial region) is full of activity, and so are the other regions. We also crave for dynamic peace of ever-new activity—the peace and music of a flowing rivulet, covering over the distant past and looking for a distant future.

We have a few beautiful passages in the Yajurveda following the above Santi-mantra

दुते दृश्ः ह ना नित्रस्य मा चक्षुषा सर्वाणि भूतानि समीक्षन्ताम् । मित्रत्याहं चक्षुषा सर्वाणि भूतानि समीक्षे मित्रस्य चक्षुषा समीक्षामहे ।

(Yv. XXXVI.18

O Lord, make me firm in times of distress. May all the beings look at me with a friendly eye. May I see all the beings with a friendly eye. Thus may we all be looked at with the friendly eye.

हुते हुर्ध्ह मा ज्योक् ते संहुशि जीव्यासम् । ज्योवते संहुशि जीव्यासम् । (Yv. XXXVI. 19)

O powerful Lord, may you steady me in the calamities.

May I live long beholding you; may I live long beholding you.

यतोयतः समीहसे ततो नोऽअमयं कुरु । शत्रः कुरु प्रजाम्योऽमयं नः पशुम्यः ॥

(Yv. XXXVI.22

From whatever quarter, you strive to lead us, may you provide us safety thence; may you grant happiness to our progeny and safety to our cattle.

In the midst of the people friendly to us, there may be vicious people who hate us; the Samhitā is very much clear as regards our attitude towards them.

सुगित्रिया नडआपड्योषधयः सन्तु दुर्गित्रियास्तस्मै सन्तु योडस्मान् द्वेष्टि यं च वयं द्विष्मः ॥ (XXXVI.23

May waters and herbs be friendly to us, and unfriendly to him who hates us and whom we do hate.

But why should we hate anybody, or anybody hate us? There is always a tussel between evil tendencies and the godly ones. One who is the worshipper of evil ones, who sides with untruth, one who is violent and aggressive, only him we shall hate, in response to the hatred he shows. Only such persons are despised; they hate us, the virtuous ones, and the virtuous ones keep away from them.

Valour, Courage and Heroism

While one covets for peace, it should not be the peace of cowards and timids. The Vedic philosophy is the philosophy of incessant karma, for dynamism. Every noble act is yajña; sometimes done with the expectation of worldly desires or personal awards (kāmya karma), and more so for the public good (niṣkāma). The latter does not bind the doer with the fruit of his actions; by and by it leads him to emancipation. This type of life is the life of detachment. A detached doer does not cling to his actions, nor the actions cling to him ever. He does not worry when he fails; the failures lead him to more planned detached actions. Of such a person, the motivation is sincere selfless work, and not its fruit. In him, there is no greed, no temptation, no allurement. Such a person enjoys also, but this enjoyment has a different spectrum, which is all humility — no arrogance and no pride.

Only a detached person can be brave, strong and of superb virility. He has tejas (lustre), vīrya (manly vigour), bala (strength); ojas (strength), manyu (wrath, pride or passion) and sahas (compassion and conquering might). (See

Yv. XIX.9)

Only a brave person can defend righteousness, property, family, land and the state. The society needs valiant fighters. In the words of the Vedic verses, we invoke our Lord to give us heroic youths, worthy of the great traditions of the society (tokma and tanaya), a progeny that lives to our highest ideals. We have an invocation:

भूर्भुवः स्वः सुप्रजाः प्रजामिः स्याध्सुवीरो वीरैः सुपोपः पोषैः । नर्यं प्रजां मे पाहि शध्स्य पशून् मे पाहसर्यं पितुं मे पाहि ॥

(Yv. III.37.

O being, becoming and bliss, may I be a good progenitor with children; may I be a good father with sons; may I be opulent with riches. O frindly to men, protect my progeny. O praiseworthy, protect my cattle; O unperturbable, protect my food.

Truth, Virtue, Discipline, Austerity and Dedication

A householder or Yajamāna is expected to take a solemn pledge (vrata or vow) at the time of his undertaking any new project of public good (a  $yaj\tilde{n}a$ ). The words of this pledge are:

अग्ने वृतपते वतं चरिष्यामि तच्छकेयं तन्मे राध्यताम् । इदमहमनृतात् सत्यमुपैमि ॥ (Yv. I.5).

O adorable Lord, uphold r of vows, I have determined to observe a vow. May I be able to accomplish it with success: "Renouncing falsehood, I hereby embrace truth".

A person dedicated to the Vedic culture lives for truth

(satya). He accepts it for his life; and it is imperative to him to discard untruth. After having lived successfully to the ideals of truthfulness in the closing ritual, he further declares with humility that he has lived to the ideals of truthfulness, and to his best ability, he has been successful in discarding untruth.

अग्ने वतपते वतमचारिषं तदशकं तन्मेऽसधीयमधं यऽएवाऽस्मि सोऽस्मि ॥ (Yv. II.28).

O adorable Lord, upholder of vows, I have observed the vow. I am able to observe it with success. Whatever I am, I am.

The Supreme Lord is our progenitor and is known as Prajāpati; He alone is the giver of Eternal Law (rta), and the great human values known as sarya. The pair of rta and sarya is so often invoked in the Vedic literature. What is not rta is known as anrta, a term which has become synonymous with falsehood and untruth. The Nighantu of Yāska has given us several synonyms of truth.

बद्। श्रत्। सन्ना। अद्धा। इत्या। ऋतमिति षद् सत्यनामानि। — Nigh. III.10.

Bat, Śrat, Satrā, Addhā, Itthā, and Rta are the six synonyms of satya (truth) in the Vedic literature. The word Śraddhā, अद्या, is so called on account of being based on Srad (truth) अदा अद्यानात्—Nir.IX.30), and Yāska quotes a verse from the Rgveda:

श्रद्धयाग्निः समिध्यते श्रद्धया हूयते हविः । श्रद्धां भगत्य मूर्यनि वचसा वेदयामसि ॥ (R.v. X.15.1)

Through  $\dot{s}raddh\bar{a}$ , faith, is fire well kindled; through faith is oblation well offered. With our speech we announce faith to be at head of bhaga (fortune, prosperity or success).

The Yajurveda Samhitā speaks in an equally forceful form the relation between truth and faith. The adoption of truth for all concerns of life is śraddhā. Śraddhā, in other words, is an applied truth.

हुम्दवा रूपे व्याकरोत् सत्यानते प्रजापतिः। अश्रद्धामनतेऽद्याच्युक्तत्यं प्रजापतिः॥ — Yv. XIX.77.

Viewing both forms, Prajāpati gave truth and falsehood different shapes. Prajāpati assigned the lack of faith to falsehood, and faith to truth. (Griffith)

A blind faith or a superstition or credulity which is not based on truth is not "faith" or śraddhā at all.

Besides satya (truth) and sraddhā (faith for adopting truth), three noble qualities are associated with it; vrata, dīkṣā and dakṣiṇā). Vrata is a vow or pledge undertaken to seek truth and to adopt it. Dīkṣā is a name of consecration; it is the discipline which urges a disciple to sit at the feet of a teacher or preceptor to get acquainted with the intricacies of the truth which he seeks to explore. The last is dakṣiṇā which in rituals is merely a priestly guerdon (some coins, gold, silver, food, and gifts of cows offered at the concluding ceremony). Dakṣiṇā is merely a sincere expression of thankfulness on behalf of the disciple to his preceptor. Dakṣiṇā is a debt to be paid to the teacher for the enlightenment one has received from him. This debt is paid up only when the disciple passes his knowledge to his pupils in succession, or to the society in general. We have the following verse in this connection:

वतेन दोक्षामाप्नोति दीक्षयाप्नोति दक्षिणाम् । दक्षिणाः श्रद्धामाप्नोति श्रद्धयाः तत्यमाप्यते ॥ — Yv. XIX.30.

He gains by vrata (vow)  $d\bar{i}k\bar{s}\bar{a}$  or consecration; by consecration he gains  $dak\bar{s}i\bar{n}\bar{a}$ , the priestly guerdon; he gains by guerdon  $\dot{s}raddh\bar{a}$  or faith, and by  $\dot{s}raddh\bar{a}$  comes satya or the knowledge of truth.

Vrata leads by stages to satya (enlightenment); and the satya once attained leads to higher and stiffer vratas for higher truths, and throughout our cycles of life, the process continues on. Persuance of truth lies on an endless journey; and the determined efforts made for it is tapas or austerity, harsh disciplines, single-mindedness at the cost of momentary pleasures. Tapas is a deliberate rejection of pleasures and rewards of today for the attainment of a better tomorrow.

Just as we have terms like vratapati from vrata, we have also the term dīkṣāpati from dīkṣā and tapaspati from tapas:

अग्ने वतपास्त्वे वतपा या तव तनूरियश् सा मिय या गम तनूरेषा सा त्विय सह नौ वतपते वतान्यनु मे दीक्षां दीक्षापतिर्मन्यतामनु तपस्तपस्पतिः। — Yv. V.6— See also V.40.

O Fire-divine, you are the protector of vows. Let your this form, which protects the vows, become mine, and let my this form, which I have got, be yours. O Lord of vows, let your and my vows proceed side by side. May the Lord of Consecrations approve of my consecration, and the Lord of Austerities approve my austerity.

Our adorable Lord (on the mundane plane the fire-divine) is the vratapati, dīkṣāpati and tapaspati simultaneously.

Traditionally, the concept of brahmacarya (celibacy) is one of the great virtues of life. Maharsi Patañjali has given it a place in his five yamas (satya, ahimsā, asteya, brahamacarya and aparigraha) or the public disciplines. Dama and indriyanigraha (self-control, control over sense-organs) are other facets of the same. We have always invoked our Lord for vīrya, tejas and ojas. But it is strange to find that the word "brahmacarya" does not occur in the Rgveda and the Yajurveda (also the Sāmaveda), though we find the word brahamcārin (which means the person who studies the Veda (Brahma = the Veda or the divine knowledge) occurring only once in the Rgveda (X.109.5): बहाचारी परित वैविषत्।

We have a beautiful hymn on the brahmcarya in the Atharvaveda (XI.5).

A householder is expected to produce and earn wealth, but he should not be miser. One who liberally and generously gives food and money to that section of the society which is poor and needy, is highly praised. Those who have wealth, but are miser and non-liberal (अरातयः) are regarded as infidels and non-believers and are looked down upon with contempt. The word arāti also means an enemy.

Mind and its Behaviours

The entire human body complex is divided into five sub-bodies: (a) the annamaya; i.e. the one made of food that we take; (b) the prāṇamaya or the vital complex; (c) the psychic or mental complex or the manomaya; (d) the vijāanamaya — knowledge-sheath and (e) the ānandamaya, the sheath of bliss. In the Yajurveda, they have been compared with (a) pṛthivī (anna), earth, (b) antarikṣa (prāṇa), (c) the dyau(manomaya), (d) the celestial region or the svar—region; and (e) the region of bliss (anandamaya). (Yv. XVII.67; पृथिव्याहमुदन्तरिक्षमाहहम् ). The thirty-fourth Book of the Yajuḥ Saṁhitā starts with six beautiful texts (शिवरांकल्प सूक्त) in connection with our mental behaviour. We shall give them here with their translations.

Introduction 33

 यञ्जागतो दूरमुदैति दैवं तदु सुप्तस्य तथैवैति । दूरद्वम ज्योतियां ज्योतिरेकं तन्मे मनः शिवसङ्कल्पमस्तु ॥

The mind which of a person awake, endowed with divine virtues moves far and high; that of a person asleep moves in the same way; reaching far and wide and the sole enlightener of all the lights — may that mind of mine be always guided by the best of intentions.

2. येन कर्माण्यपसो मनीषिणो यज्ञे कृण्वन्ति विदयेषु धीराः। यदपूर्व यक्षमन्तः प्रजानां तन्मे मनः शिवसङ्कल्पमस्तु॥

Whereby the wise and talented ones perform their duties in assemblies and the active ones at sacrifices; which is the foremost motivating spirit embedded within all the creatures—may that mind of mine be always guided by the best of intentions.

यत्प्रज्ञानमुत चैतो धृतिश्च यञ्ज्योतिरन्तरमृतं प्रजासु ।
 यस्मान्न आते किं चन कर्म क्रियते तन्मे मनः शिवसङ्ख्यमस्त् ॥

The mind which is the knowledge Supreme, the awakening as well as the resolution, and which is immortal light embedded within all the creatures; without which no action whatsoever is performed — may that mind of mine be always guided by the best of intentions.

येनेदं भूतं भुवनं भविष्यत्परिगृहीतममृतेन सर्वम् ।
 येन यज्ञस्तायते सप्तहोता तन्मे मनः शिवसङ्कल्पमस्तु ॥

Wherewith the immortal one, all this that ever existed, that at present exists and that will ever exist in future, is comprehended; wherewith the sacrifice with seven priests is spread — may that mind of mine be always guided by the best of intentions.

 वस्मिन्नुचः सामयजृक्षि यस्मिन् प्रतिष्ठिता रथनाभाविवाराः । यस्मिश्यतक्षु सर्वमीतं प्रजानां तन्मे मनः शिवसङ्कल्पमस्नु ॥

Wherein the Rks (praise verses), the Samans (lyrics) and the Yajuḥs (sacrificial formulas) are placed like spokes in the nave of a wheel; wherein like a warp the thought of all the creatures is woven—may that mind of mine be always guided by the best of intentions.

Which like a skilful charioteer his speedy horses, leads and controls men as if holding them by the reins; which is well-placed within the heart; which is free from decay, and the speediest of all—may that mind of mine be always guided by the best of intentions.

Numerals in the Yajurveda

Numerals are as divine and hence most natural as the letters of an alphabet. The vocal organ of a man consists of a complex starting from throat and ending on lips and hence human speech starts from a (3) and ends in m (7) – letters consisting of gutturals, palatals, dentals, linguals, and labials (vowels and consonants). A palm has five figers (this has given us a popular pañcaka, पञ्चक five elements, five sense-organs, five pranas, five yamas, etc.); total fingers are ten (and hence the popular dasakas - groups of ten; ten cardinal points, deci and decimal systems of calculation, leading to the discovery and significance of zero, kha, or v, sūnya, (भून्य); and by the groups of two (दिक), of three (त्रिक), of four (चतुष्क) , of six (पदक), of seven (तजक), group of eight (अप्टक) etc. The Yajurveda Samhita, in human history of literature, has been the first and foremost to represent these groups by certain names, also known sometimes as devatas. (Yv. IX. 31-34).

Numeral	Devatā	Numeral	Devatā
1	Agni	7	Marut
2	Aśvins	8	Brhaspati
3	Vișņu	9	Mitra
4	Soma	10	Varuņa
5	Pūşan	11	Indra
6	Savitr	12	Viśvedevas

On the basis of numericals, other analogies also emerged out:

Two - bipeds, like men,
Three - triloka (three regions - c

Three - triloka (three regions - earth, midspace and heaven),

Four - Catuspāda, cattle (four-footed).

Five - five regions, five seasons.

Six — Six seasons (vasanta, grīsma, varsā, sarad, hemanta and sisira).

Seven - Seven cattle (ox, horse, sheep, goat, mule ass and man) sapta-gramyapasus.

Eight - Gayatrī metre with eight syllables.

Nine - Trivṛta Stoma.

Ten - Virāj.

Eleven - Tristup metre with eleven syllables.

Twelve - Jagatī with twelve syllables

Similarly, in the next verse of the Yajurveda are ennumerated the metres of 13, 14, 15, 16 and 17 syllables, associated with the corresponding stomas (thirteen-fold stoma to seventeen-fold stoma).

The most astonishing verse of the Yajurveda is the one associated with the name of a seer Medhātithi. It deals with brick-laying (a conceptual term dramatized in brick-laying of five altars). In this context, we have an enumeration from one (eka) to parārdha, English billion, 10<sup>12</sup> (American trillion).

इमा में अग्न इष्टका धेनवः सन्त्वेका च दश च दश च शतं च शतं च सहसं च सहसं चायुतं च नियुतं च प्रयुतं चार्बुदं च न्यर्बुदं च समुद्रश्च मध्यं चान्तश्च परार्थम्वैता में अग्न इष्टका धेनवः सन्त्वमृत्रामृष्यित्तोके ।। (Yv. XVII.2).

एक, eka,  $l = 10^\circ$ , one दश, daśa,  $l0 = 10^\circ$ , ten शत, śata,  $l0^\circ$ , hundred सहस, sahasra,  $l0^\circ$ , thousand अयुत, ayuta,  $l0^\circ$ , (ten thousand) नियुत, niyuta,  $l0^\circ$ , (hundred thousand) प्रयुत, prayuta,  $l0^\circ$  (million) अर्जुद, arbuda,  $l0^\circ$ , (ten-million) न्यर्जुद, nyarbuda,  $l0^\circ$ , (hundred-million) सम्प्र, samudra,  $l0^\circ$ , (billion) मध्य, madhya,  $l0^\circ$ , (ten-billion) अन्त्य, antya,  $l0^\circ$ , (hundred-billion) परार्थ, parārdha,  $l0^\circ$ , (trillion)

The Yajurveda enumerates odd and even numbers also. For odd numerals (1-33), see Yv. XIV. 28-31, and XVIII.24:

एक, तिस्न, पच, सप्त, नव, एकादश, त्रयोदश, पञ्चदश, सप्तदश, नवदश, एकवि इंश त्रयोवि इंश, प इंवि इंश, सप्तवि इंश, नववि इंश, एकत्रि इंश, त्रयस्त्रि इंश,

It may be noted with interest, that the Vedic text uses the term (navadaśa) for nineteen, rather than एकोडनविंश (ekonavimśa, one less twenty), and similarly for twenty-nine, it uses the term navavimśa), and not the modern term एकोनिन्न (ekona-trimśa, or one less thirty). For the term, ekonavimśati for nineteen, see Atharvaveda XIX.23.16).

For a multiplication table of 4, i.e., 4, 8, 12, 16, 20, 24, 28, 32, 36, 40, 44, 48 we have :

चतस्रक्ष में अप्टौ च में अप्टौ च में द्वादश च में..... चत्वारि शृश्च में चतुश्चत्वारि शिष्ट मे एटा चत्वारि शिष्ट में यज्ञेन कल्पताम् : (Yv. XVIII.25).

In fact, the entire Chapter XVIII of the Yajurveda is rich in terminology: an earliest example of lexicon. A few terms may be illustrated here:

(a) Pṛthivī, antarikṣa, dyau — three regions of space; Samāḥ (year), nakṣatra (constellation), dik (directions of ## space) -XVIII.18.

(b) A list of sacrificial implements, Soma cups, three sets of oblations called grahas (XVIII. 19-21)

उपाशु, अन्तर्याम, ऐन्द्रवायव, मैत्रावरुण, आश्विन, प्रतिप्रस्थान, शुक्र, मन्धी, आग्रयण, वैश्वदेव, धुव, वैश्वानर, ऐन्द्राग्न, मरुत्वतीय,..... खुच, चमस, वायव्य, द्रोणकलश, गावा अधिषवण, वेदि, बर्हि, etc.

- (c) Tryavi and tryavī (eighteen months steer and heifer); dityavāṭ and dityauhī (two year bull and cow); pañcāvi and pañcāvī (thirty months bull and cow), trivatsa (three year old), turyavāṭ and turyauhī (four year old bull and cow), (XVIII.26); ṣaṣṭthvāt and ṣaṣṭhauhī (six year old bull and cow), bull and barren cow (ukṣā, vaśā); young bull and calf and slipping cow (ṛṣabha and vehaṭ); ox and milch cow (anaḍvān and dhenu). (XVIII.27).
- (d) A list of grains and cereals  $-v\bar{r}ihi$  (rice), yava (barley), maṣā (beans), tila (sesamum), mudga (kidney beans), khalva (vitches), priyaṅgu (millet), aṇu (Panicum Milliaceum), śyāmāka, nīvāra (wild rice), godhūma (wheat), masūra (lentil). (XVIII.12).
- (e) A list of minerals and metals—Stone, clay, hilly gravel, mountain-rocks, pebbles, trees, gold (hiranya), bronze (ayas), copper (śyāma), iron (loha), lead (sīsa) and tin (trapu). (XVIII.13)

Divisions of Time - Years, months and days

The usual term for a year in the Vedic literature is samvatsara. We have a very singular passage in the Yajurveda describing units of time in relation to earth going round the sun, and moon going round our earth: सम्प्रासरोऽति, परिवाससे अंत, इदावत्तरोऽति, इद्वत्तरोऽति, वत्तरोऽति उपसस्ते कत्पन्ताम् । अशेरा गस्ते कत्पन्ताम् । अर्थमासास्ते कत्पन्ताम् । मासास्ते कत्पन्ताम् ऋतवस्ते कत्पन्ताम् । संवन्तरस्ते कत्पनाम् । (Yv. XXVII.45).

In the five year cycle, the first year is known as samyat-sara, the second year parivatsara, the third year idāvatsara, the fourth year idvatsara, and the fifth year vatsara. (In the later astronomical calculations the cycle of five-years was reckoned as a cycle of four years only, and the each year was known consecutively as krtayuga, tretā, dvāpara, and kali (कृतयुग, जेना, हायर, कांतयुग). In fact, in the vedic age, a yuga is a cycle of four years, a caturyugī = 4 - 365 1/4 = 1461 days. As a modified version of the Yajurveda text, we have a mention of a four-year cycle also. Samvatsara, parivatsara, idāvatsara, and anuvatsara, associated with Agni, Āditya, Candramas and Vāyu. Yuga is definitely a cycle of five years as in the Kauṭilīya Artha Šastra (II.20) : पञ्चसम्बत्तररे युगमिति (a yuga consists of five years). Also "पञ्चसंवत्तरमयं युगाध्यक्षं प्रजापतिम्"; also युगं भवेद वत्तरपञ्चकेन (ज्योति-जास्त्र)।

We have an interesting passage in the Aitareya Brāhmana, clarifying the concept of a yuga:

क्लिश्शयानो भवति, संजिहानस्तु द्वापरः। उत्तिष्ठम् त्रेता भवति कृतं सम्मद्यते चरन्। चरैवति चरैवति।(Ait. Br. VII.15).

The year kali is lying down;  $dv\bar{a}para$  is leaving (the bed); standing erect is  $tret\bar{a}$ , and krta happens to walk here and there.

The word vatsa means "calf" from which the term vatsara is derived for a year. There is a reference to this infant, the calf (śiśu, বিশ্ব) in the Rgveda:

नक्तोपामावर्णमामेम्याने धापयेते शिशुमेकं समीची (R.v. 1.96.5)

Night and dawn, influencing each other's radiance, both together nourish a child,

As each of the succeeding years of every cycle of four years advances, a quarter of a day more and steps beyond the night or day limits of its predecessor before bringing out a complete day, personified as a child here, the verse speaks of the last nights and days of the three years previous to the fourth as "influencing each other's radiance", or mutually effacing each other's complexion", and bringing forth a child.

We shall now return to our verse, Yv.XXVII.45: May the uṣās, dawns (bright days) be secured for you; may the ahorātra (pair of day and night) be secured for you; may the ardhamāsas (the half-months) be secured for you; may the māsas (months) be secured for you; may the rtus (seasons) be secured for you; may the samvatsara (the year) be secured for you.

Thus the year is classified into bright day or dawns, pairs of day and night, half-months, months, seasons, and years.

For the names of six seasons, see Yv. XXIV.11; 20 (Va-santa, Grīsma, Varsā, Śarad, Hemanta and Śiśira).

Sometimes only five seasons corresponding to five cardinal directions (eliminating Sisira from the list of seasons and nadir or dhruva from the list of directions) are mentioned. (Yv. XIII. 54-58). In one of the verses, Hemanta and Sisira pair is classified as one (हेमन्तिशिशरावृत्, Yv. X.14), whilst the other four, (वसन्त, गीष्म, वर्षा and शरद्) are dealt with separately. (X. 10-13).

The Yajurveda gives the following names of the twelve months in a year, corresponding to the six seasons of two months each:

Seasons

Vasanta, spring Grīṣma, summer Varṣā, rains Śarad, autumn Hemanta, winters Śiśira, frosty season Pairs of months

Madhu and Mādhava Sukra and Suci Nabhas and Nabhasya Iṣa and Ūrja Sahas and Sahasya Tapas and Tapasya

For these Vedic names of twelve months, see Yv. XXII.

मधवे स्वाहा । माधवाय स्वाहा । शुक्राय स्वाहा । शुचये स्वाहा । नमसे स्वाहा । नमस्याय स्वाहा । इषाय स्वाहा । अर्जाय स्वाहा । सहसे स्वाहा । सहस्याय स्वाहा । तपसे स्वाहा । तपस्याय स्वाहा । अहसस्यतये स्वाहा ॥

(See also Yv. VII.30 for these thirteen names).

In these verses, we have the name of an extra-month, or the left-out month, reckoned in Indian astronomy, looked with a little contempt. This month is known in the Vedic terminology as amhasaspati, अंहसस्पति (Yv. VII. 30) and also as malimluca, मिलम्लुच, now known as adhimāsa, अधिमास and malamāsa, मलमास (Yv. XXII.30).

The full or expected life of a man as species is hundred years, and as such, we pray to live full hundred years, and a little beyond it. The technical term for a year is samvatsara or vatsara, and often as varşa, वर्ष, sarad, शरइ, and even hemanat, हेमन्त; the word समाः for years is also used sometimes in this sense.

1. जिजीविषेक्यतं समाः (XL.2)—Should wish to live a hundred years.

2. जीवेम शरदः शतम् (XXXVI.24) — May we live for hundred autumns.

The word varṣa, वर्ष, or varṣā, is used only for rains in the Yajurveda, but not in the sense of a year.

वर्षम्, floods of rain, XVI.64 वर्षवृद्धम्, rain grown, I.16 वर्षा, rain-term, X.12; XIII.56 वर्षाभः, with rains, XXI.25 वर्षाभ्यः, to the rains, XXIV.11; 20

The word  $him\bar{a}h$ , winters (in the sense of year) is used in the Rgveda, but not in the Yajurveda.

तोकं पुष्येम तनयं शतं हिमाः।

(Rv. I.64.14)

(May we live for hundred winters with a prosperous family of children and grand; children).

शतं हिमा अशीय भेषजेभिः

(Rv. II.33.2)

Introduction 41

(May I enjoy hundred winters with the help of the most blissful medicinal cures).

(See also Rv. V.54.15; VI.48.8)
We have two interesting verses in the Rgveda (X. 161.
2-4) in this context:

तमाहरामि निऋतेरुपस्यादस्याषमिनं शतशारदाय । (2)
सहस्राक्षेण शतशारदेन शतायुषा हिष्काहाषमिनम् ॥
शतं यथेमं शरदो नयातीन्द्रो विश्वस्य दुरितस्य पारम् ॥3॥
शतं जीव शरदो वर्धमानः शतं हेमन्ताञ्छतमु वसन्ताम्न् ।
शतमिन्द्राग्नी सविता बृहस्पतिः शतायुषा हिष्केषं पुनर्दुः ॥4॥

Here we have a reference to hundred autumns (शतशारदाय), hundred lives (शतायुषः), hundred winters (शतं हेमन्तम्), hundred springs (शतं वसन्तम्), but not for hundred rains.

THE YAJURVEDA INTRODUCED

In our introductory volume to our translation of the Rgveda, we have said that the Yajurveda has in all 1975 verses spread over forty chapters, known as adhyāyas. The biggest chapter is twelfth with 117 verses, and then the following: XVII (99); XXXIV (98); XXXIII (97); XIX (95); XX (90); XI (83); the shortest chapter is XXXIX with 13 verses, followed by XXXIII (16) and XL (17).

In another classification, what normally we call verse or mantra (দর) is called  $kandik\bar{a}$  (কণ্ডিকা) in the Yajurveda, and each  $kandik\bar{a}$  is further subdivided into a number of mantras (দেরা:). Some of the  $kandik\bar{a}$ s have only one mantra while some of them have many. The first  $kandik\bar{a}$  of the Yajurveda has thus five mantras; the tenth  $kandik\bar{a}$  of Chapter XXXIX has as many as eighteen mantras.

In the first  $kandik\bar{a}$  of Chapter I, we have the following mantras:

इषे त्वा।(1) ऊर्जे त्वा।(2) वायवस्य।(3) देवो वः सविता प्राप्यतु श्रेष्ठतमाय कर्मण आप्यायध्वमध्या इन्द्राय मागं प्रजावतीरनमीवाऽअयक्मा मा वस्तेनऽईशत माघशंक्षसो धुवा अस्मिन् गोपतौ स्यात।(4) बह्वीर्यजमानस्य पशून् पाष्टि॥(5)

According to this classification, we would say, that the Yajurveda has forty chapters (adhyāyas), 1975 kandikās, and 3988 verses (mantras). The distribution of mantras (verses), kandikās (paras) and adhyāyas (chapters) in the Yajurveda is as follows:

There has been a considerable difference of opinion regarding the total number of verses (Rk) and the Yajuh in the white Yajurveda.

(a) According to the Brahmanda Purana (Pūrva, 35, 76-77) and the Vayu Purana (6, 67-68) Rks 1900; with Sukriya and Khila, the total number Rks and Yajūmsi 8880 + 4 pada (i.e. Rks 1900, and Yajūmsi 6980) + 1 pada.

(b) According to the Carana Vyūha, the Vājasaneyi Samhitā has a total of 8820 plus 1 pāda.

(c) According to the Pratijñā-Parisista, the total number of verses is 8800, which includes all the Khilas and Sukriya adhyāyas.

Which is older: White or Black?

Usually the Yajurveda is regarded as a ritual Veda, or a guidebook for the Adhvaryu priests who had to do practically everything in the sacrifices excepting reciting the mantras and chanting the melodies. Considering that more variations are very likely to occur in a manual work like this, we have a large number of recensions of the Yajurveda available (two for the White Yajurveda—Mādhyandina and Kanva and three for the Black-Taittirīya), Kathaka, Maitrāyanī and Kapisthala.

It has been a difficult problem for scholars to decide which of the two Samhitās is really older. A scholar has put the arguments like this:

The fact that the Gopatha Brāhmaṇa (I.29) in citing the first words of the different Vedas quotes in the case of the Yajurveda the beginning of the Vājasaneyi Samhitā, may suggest that the White Yajurveda represents the original tradition of which the Black Yajurveda with all its recensions is a later variation. But the truth should rather be just the opposite for it is hardly possible that Mantra and Brahmaṇa mixed up throughout, in order to the White Yajurveda in which the Brahmaṇa was separated from the Samhitā perhaps in imitation to the Rgveda model. In the Taittirīya Brāhmaṇa too, which is merely a continuation of the Taittirīya Samhitā (but not necessarily later than it for that reason) and which, too, owes its tradition, Mantra and Brāhmaṇa have not been separated. It is a peculiar feature of the Taittiriya texts that the Samhitā and the Brāhmaņa of this school supplement each other in such a way that each seems to presuppose the other.

The Śukla Yajurveda Samhitā and the Brāhmaņa

Do we have in our present text of the Śukla Yajurveda, the Mādhyandina Samhitā, some portions which may be called as belonging to the category of Brāhmaṇic literature? The general consensus is that the Śukla Yajuḥ is purely a Veda, without any admixture of "Brāhmaṇa" character. Contrary to this view is the testimony of a text of later date, of which the author is Katyāyana; the name of the text is Sarvānukramaṇī (सर्वानुक्रमणी), with its two redaktions, one following the Mādhyandinī text and the other the Kāṇva text. We have the following passage in this Sarvānukramaṇī:

देवा यज्ञं बाह्यणानुवाको विंशतिरनुष्टभः सोमसम्पत् (एकोनविंशोऽध्यायः), which means that the twenty anustup verses of the Nineteenth Chapter, beginning from the verse 12 (which starts as देवा पन्नं etc.) to the verse 31 (एताबद्रूक्ष) belong to the type with Brāhmaṇa features.

Further, the entire 24th chapter is the Brāhmaṇa portion, i.e., the verses starting from अश्यातूपरा॰ (XXIV.1) to खड्गो वैश्वदेवः (XXIV.40).

अश्वस्तूपरो बाह्मणोऽध्यायः (चतुर्विशोऽध्यायः) शादं दद्भिस्त्वचान्तश्च (पंचविशोऽध्यायः) and the twenty-lifth starting from the शाद दद्भिः (XXV.1) to त्यं वाजुम्बकाय स्वाहा i.e. to the end of the kandika 9) (XXV.9).

Further, in the Thirtieth Chapter, the two kaṇḍikās 5 and 6 (beginning from ब्रह्मणे बाह्मणम् and the whole anuvāka starting from तपसे कोलालम् (kaṇḍikā 7) to the end of the Chapter—all these constitute the Brahmana part (XXX. 5-22).

बह्मणे बाह्मणमिति दे कण्डिके तपसेऽनुवाकश्च बाह्मणम् (Sarvanukramanikä, संहितायां त्रिशोऽच्यायः)

In case, we rely on the Sarvānukramaņī, we shall have to accept that the Sukla Yajurveda is not entirely the pure Veda but an admixture of the Brāhmaṇa portion also. And then, where would be its superiority over the Black Yajurveda?

Yudhişthira Mīmāmsaka, one of our erudite scholars, has discussed this point in details in his paper on

"यजुषां शौक्त्यकाणर्यं विवेकः"*

According to his testimony, the Sarvanukramani is neither an old text, nor very reliable:

इयं शुक्लयजुः सर्वानुक्रमणी न प्राचीना प्रामाणिकी च,

This Sarvānukramaņī was not available to Uvaṭa, the commentator of the Yajurveda, who depended entirely on the contents of the Gurūpdeśa-Tarka (गुरूपदेश तर्क) and the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa for the Rṣis, Devatās and the metres of the Yajurveda.

गुरुतस्तर्कश्चैव तथा शतपयश्रुतेः। ऋषीन् वस्यामि मंत्राणां देवता छान्दसं च यत्॥ (Uvața in Introduction, Stanza 3)

Evidently, the Sarvanukramani was not available to him, and hence he does not refer to it.

Sabara Svāmī, the commentator on the Pūrva Mīmāmsā recognizes वसन्ताय किपजानालमते "as the mantra of the Yajurveda: तद्योदकेषु मंत्राख्या (Mīmāmsā, II. 1.31) —प्रायकिमद लक्षणम् । अनिभयाय अपि केचित्, मन्त्रा इत्युच्यन्ते । यथा "वसन्ताय किपजानालमते" —Yv. XXIV.20.

The author of the Vasisthī Šikṣā (पासिप्ती शिक्षा)also regards the twenty kandikās (12-13) of Chapter XIX as the Anuştup metres and not the Brahmana part:

एकोनविशेष्ठध्याये स्वाही त्वा यजुरित्येका, परीतत इति चतस्रो, वहाक्षत्रमिति है, नाना हीत्येका, या व्याधमिति आध्यायान्तारचतुरशीतिः पितृभ्य इत्युद्धृत्य, तन्नेद हिवरिति ज्यवसाना महापिक्तः, रेतामूत्रमिति हे ज्यवसाने आत्यकरी (?) एकोनविशे ऋधरचतुर्णवितियंजृिष त्रिंशत्।

This means that in Chapter XIX, त्वाही त्वा॰ Kaṇḍikā is Yajuh, the next four starting from परीतो (2) are Rks (Kaṇḍikās 2-5); (There are 2 Rks in Kaṇḍikā 3); बागभनं (Kaṇḍikā 5) is Rk, then we have 2 Rks; नाना (Kaṇḍikā 7) is a Rk. Kaṇḍikās 8 and 9 are Yajus; finally, from याच्यापं॰ (10) to the end of the Chapter, we have 84 Rks (i.e. up to Kaṇḍikā 95). In between, पितृम्यः (36) and युनन्तु मा (37) are Yajus; The Kaṇḍikā 48 (इदं इतिः) is a Mahāpankti Rk of three lines. The Kaṇḍikā 76 (रेतोमूत्रं) and 77 (इप्द्वारूपे) are the Rks of 3 lines each.

Thus in Chapter XIX, we have in all 94 Rks and 30 Yajus (several Kandikās have more than one Yajuh).

(In fact, in Chapter XIX, we have in all 95 Kandikas, with total Rks and Yajus 120).

Again, according to the same Vāsiṣṭhī Sikṣā, the entire Chapter XXIV, and the nine Kaṇḍikās of Chapter XXV are the yajūmṣi (the Vaidika prose) and the Brāhmaṇa. In the Chapter XXX, on the same testimony, we have the first three as Rks, and the rest of the entire chapter is yajūmsi, but in no case the Brāhmaṇa (22 Kaṇḍikās and 177 Yajūmṣi).

The Yajurveda and its Schools

The Veda, as the divine revealed, is one, given to humanity when it was in infancy, and given to the earliest section of the society, which instinctively had the capacity of responding to the revealed knowledge. The divine speech became the vehicle of culture and civilization, and laid the foundations of the entire history which faced all the impacts of a natural growth. What we find in our present four Samhitas is the supreme treasure given to mankind at its inception in the biological history of the divine creation. We have not maintained any record of the history of the impact of the Veda on the life of man in our society. What is preserved for us in the four Vedas is the compact divine (or revealed) knowledge, necessary in man's evolution at various stages. The Veda consists of what I would like to call as first, the śruti, the moral divine code of human life, ever-fresh, never changing. and thus independent of time-space parameters in which man would be placed, and secondly, the śastra-bīia or the seed of numerous disciplines of knowledge which could be developed in the course of social evolution. The śruti consists of high values of life, which man has to adhere, invoke and abide by. And from the śastra-bija man has to develop his philosophical details, an answer to his enquiries, his sciences and technology and his arts and aesthetics.

The entire Veda is one from the point of view of the basic philosophy of realism, the purposefulness of human life, the man's relation to creation and the Supreme Creator. Out of the four Vedas, Rk, Yajuh, Sama, and Atharva, none is superior and none inferior, none is former, none latter; none is spiritual and none ephemeral. But again, the entire content of the Veda is divided into three major heads, the Rk, the Yajus and the Saman. This is what we call triveda or tri-vidya. All that we want to know is the Rk, all that we want to do is Yaiuh, and all that we would like to love, feel or enjoy is the Saman. This triple classification is also known as the jnana kānda (the Rk), the karma kānda (the Yajuh), and the upāsanā kānda (the Sāman). And then we have another classification in respect to the four texts which we possess todaythe four big collections in the form of the Rk Samhita (with 10,552 verses, 10 Books and 1028 Hymns), the Yajuh Samhitā (with about 1900 or 1975 Kandikās), the Sāmaveda Samhitā (with 1875 verses) and the Atharvaveda Samhitā (with 5977 verses). It is one of the supreme human achieveIntroduction 51 ments, that such a vast literature of about 20,000 verses could come to us well-preserved, facing all hazards of time in human history.

The two Schools of the Yajurveda. The Yajurveda is also known to us as the Adhvara Veda (see Adhvaryave, अध्यर्वे, Nir. VII.3)

We have a record in history that the sage Vyāsa taught only the Kṛṣṇa Yajurveda (कृष्णय नुर्वेद) to Vaiśampāyana, but the Śukla Yajurveda is traditionally the oldest recension of the Yajurveda. It is not necessary for us to give an account of the legend which is associated with the origin of the Black or Kṛṣṇa Yajurveda; these legends have no historic bearing. The Śukla (or the White) Yajurveda is associated with the name Vājasaneya Yājāvalkya (वाजसनेय याज्ञवल्क्य)।

The Sukla Yajurveda starts with the verse :-

इपे त्योर्जे त्या वायवस्थ देवो वः सविता प्रार्पयतु श्रेष्ठतमाय कर्मण...... (See also Gopatha Br. Pūrva 1.29).

The Gopatha Brāhmaṇa quotes this version of the opening verse of the Yajurveda. The Kṛṣṇa Yajurveda (also known as the Taittirīya Saṃhitā) gives the opening verse with a minor alteration: the words वायव स्थ are followed by words उपायवस्थ, which are not recognized by the author of the Gopatha. This indicates that the Brāhmaṇa recognized the Śukla Yajurveda as the only acceptable Yajurveda.

Kumhan Rājā in his Survey of Sanskrit Literature writes: The main content of the Yajurveda is in the form of mantras which are short prose passages addressed to the various objects that are made use of in the rituals. In the White Yajurveda, the entire text is of this nature, while in the Black Yajurveda, these original mantras are mixed up with explanatory passages (p.33; 1962 edition).

We have a passage in the Vayu Purana which indicates the authority of the White Yajurveda only.

ततः पुनर्द्विमात्रं तु चिन्तयामास चाक्षरम् । प्रादुर्भृतं च रक्तं तच्छेदनं गृह्य सा यत्रुः ॥ (19) इपे न्चोर्जे न्वा वायवः स्य देवो च सिवता पुन । ऋग्वेद एक मात्रस्तु द्विमात्रस्तु यत्रु स्मृतः ॥ (20) This also refers to the popularity and the authority of the white Yajurveda. Of course, there are other sources also which refer to the opening verse as reproduced by the Black Yajurveda. (See Atharvana, Uttama Patala, Parisista 46).

The word "Sukla Yajus" is also of considerable antiquity, for we find the following closing words of the Satapatha Brahmana, of the Madhyandina School:

आदित्यानीमानि शक्लानि यज्ञीय वाजसनयन याज्ञवत्वयेनाख्यायन्ते ।

The Yajurveda or the Sukla Yajuh is associated with the Aditya, and the Vajasaneya Yajñavalkva. It may also be argued that if a particular school of the Yajurveda was known as the white one, there must have been present in the contemporary period the black also. This means that the Black Yaiurveda was also known during the time of the Satapatha Brāhmana.

A reputed author Ananta, in his commentary of the Pratijñā Sūtra refers to a quotation of an unknown source as follows :-

श्क्लं कृष्णमिति देधा यज्ञम्च समुदाहतम् । श्वलं वाजसनं ज्ञेयं कृष्णं तृ तैतिरीयकम् ॥

This clearly indicates of the existence of two old schools of the Yajuh, one belonging to the Vajasana (therefore known as the Vajasaneya), and the Black one to the Taittirīva school.

The Taittiriya Samhita is known as the Krsna or the Black one, since its verses are mixed up with explanatory or ritualistic details:

ब्रिझालिन्य हेत्त्वाद् यज्ः कृष्णमीयति । व्यवस्थितं प्रकरणं तद्यन्ः शुक्लमीयति ॥

This refers to the confusion in the Black redaktion and systematic order in the white Yajurveda.

The Branches of the Two Schools

Maharsi Patanjali in his Mahabhasya or the Great

Commentary refers to the hundred and one schools (or branches, Śākhās) of the Yajurveda.

एकशतमध्वर्युशाखाः।

The sub-schools or branches have been thus described in the Prapanca-Hidaya, (Chapter II — the Veda Prakarana).

यजुर्वेद एकोत्तर शतधा..... । यजुर्वेदस्य माध्यन्दिन-कण्व-तितिरि-हिरण्यकेश-आपस्तम्ब-सत्यापाढ-बोधायन-याज्ञवत्क्य-भद्रजय-वृहदुक्य-पाराशर-वामदेव-जातुकर्ण-तुरुष्क-सोशुप्य-तृणविन्दु-वाजिञ्जय-श्रवस-वर्षवरूप-सनद्वाज-वाजिरत्न-हर्यश्य-ऋणञ्जय-तृणञ्जय-कृतज्ञय-धनज्ञय-सहज्ञय-मिश्रज्ञय-त्र्यरुण-त्रिवृष-त्रिधामाश्वज्ञ-फर्तिगु-उखा-आत्रेयशाखाः।

This means that 36 branches or śākhas of the Yajuḥ were available to the author of the Prapañca-Hrdaya. This list given by him may, however, not be at all reliable; some of the names of the seers are obviously imaginative.

According to the Divyavadana (दिव्यावदान), a Bauddha treatise, we should have 105 redaktions of the Yajurveda, classified as follows:

10 of the school of the Katha, कठ

10 the Kanva, कण्व

11 the Vajasaneya, वाजसनेय

13 the Jatūkarna, जतूकर्ण

16 the Prosthapada, प्रोप्ठपद

45 other sundry seers.

Total 105

Bhagavaddatta and Satyaśravā have in their History of the Vedic Literature (वैदिक धाङ्मय का इतिहास) quoted two lists in regards to the Schools of the Yajurveda.

First List:

Branch Region of popularity

1. Jābālāh, जाबालाः Between Narmadā and Vindhya

2. Baudheyāh, बोधेयाः Khandesh

3. Kanvāh, कण्वाः West of Gomatī

4. Mādhyanjanāh, माध्यञ्जनाः On the banks of the Sarjū

Branch	Region of popularity
5. Śāpīyāh, शापीचाः	Amarakantaka - Narmadā.
6. Sthāpayanīyāh, स्थापयनीयाः	North of the Narmada
7. Kāpārah, कापार	Mālava
8. Paundravatsāh, पोण्डुवन्साः	Mālava
9. Āvaţikāḥ, आवटिकाः	Mālava
10. Paramāvatikāh, परमावटिका	Gauda-deśa
11. Pārāśaryāḥ, पाराशर्या	Maru deśa.
12. Vaidheyāh, वैधया	Gauda deśa.
13. Vaineyāḥ, वैनेया	Bauddhya deśa
14. Audheyāh, भीधेया	Gurjara deśa
15. Gälaväh, गालवा	Saurāṣṭra
16. Baijavāh, वैजवा	Nārāyaņa Lake
17. Kātyāyanāḥ, कात्यायनाः
Second List

जाबालाः, बौधेयाः, काण्वाः, माध्यन्दिनीयाः, शापैयाः, तापायनीयाः, कापोलाः, पौण्ड्रवत्साः, आवटिकाः, परमावटिकाः, पाराशर्याः, वैनधेयाः, गालवाः, कात्यायनाः, and बैजवापिनः, — thus a list of 15 Śākhās of the Vājasaneya Sāmhitā.

The authors enumerate 26 Sub-groups of the Jābālas and 14 sub-groups of the Gālavas. Another alternative list of the Yajuh — Sākhās has also been quoted (वाजसनेय – याज्ञवल्य कण्वादि पञ्चदरा शुक्ल याजुयाः)।

	Śākhā	Region

The Taittiriya School has been very popular amongst the Pandits of the South (Andhra and the like). Their Śākhas are:

Taittirīya, तैतिरीया Kāṇṭikeyāḥ, काण्डिकयाः Baudhāyanīya, बोपायनीया Hiraṇyakeśi, हिरण्यकेशी Aukhyāḥ, ओख्याः Āpastambī, आपस्तम्बी Satyāṣāḍhī, सत्यापाढी Śridheyī, श्रीपेयी

Spirit of the Rk and the Yajuh

In order to understand the true spirit of the text of the Yajurveda, one should have a good grasp of the philosophy and methodology of the Rk Samhita. Not only three to four hundred mantras of the Yajuh Samhita are common with the Rk Samhitā (about 20% in a total of about 2000 Kandikās or verses), the essential terminology of the Karmakanda of the Yajurveda is inspired by the terms occurring in the Rgveda. The first verse of the Rgveda (I.1.1) has the terms agnih, purohitam, yajñasya, devam, rtvijam, and hotaram, which later on became the basis of the vajnika karma or the ceremonial rituals. In Book II of the Rgveda, we have the terms like hote. potr, rtvik, nestr, prasastr, adhvaryu, brahma and grhapati which speak of the typical priests engaged in the Yajuh Karmakanda.* The three characteristic agnis, (the ahavaniya the daksina and the garhapanya), are also mentioned in the Rgveda. The three pressings of the Soma (the Pratah savana, the madhyandina and the trtiya) are as familiar to the Rk school as to the Yajuh. The Aprī hymns are common to both the Vedas. The Purusa Sūkta of the Yajurveda (Chapter XXXI) is an elaboration over the Rk hymn (X.90) with minor variations. The entire Purisya Agnayah hymn of the Rgveda (III.22.1-5) is repeated as the five Yajuh verses (XII.47-51) -

*तवाग्ने होत्रं तव पोत्रमृत्वियं तव नैप्ट्रं त्वमग्निहृतायतः । तव प्रशास्त्रं त्वमध्वरीयसि वहा। चासि गृहपतिश्च नो देमे ॥

the Adhvaryu laying bricks in connection with the construction of the Garhapatya hearth. The first five verses of the Rk (IV.4.1-5) are utilised by the Yajuh Samhitā (XIII. 11-13 प्रति सक्ती to कथ्वीभव) in a ceremony connected with the laying down of the Lotus-leaf, then laying on it a piece of gold, and offering oblations of butter on the gold figure. The six verses from the Rk (VI.47.26-31) in praise of the chariot, and the drum are repeated in the Yajuh (XXIX. 52-57, वनस्पते वीड्वद्गो to आम्राज; for रय, chariot, the verses 53 and 54, and for दुन्द्भि, verses 55, 56 and 57). The Viśvakarman hymn of the Rgyeda (X.81) has 7 verses, and these are repeated as the Yajuh also (XVII.17 to 23). These verses speak of the creativity of the Omnific, the universal Father and Generator, the Architect of the Worlds. This hymn of the Rgveda is followed by another Viśvakarman hymn (X.82, 1-7) which is also repeated as Yajuh verses (XVII. 25-31). Between the hymns 81 and 82 of the Rgveda, the Yajuh Samhita introduces a new verse, taken from the Yajuh VIII.46:

विश्वकर्मन् हविषा वर्धनेन त्रातारमिन्द्रमकृणोरवध्यम् । तस्मै विशः समनमन्त पूर्वीरयमुग्रो विहव्यो यद्याऽसत् ॥

(Yv. VIII.46; and XVII.24)

A common feature of the Rk and the Yajuh verses is seen in the repetition of the entire Oṣadhi-stuti hymn (X.97.1-23) as the Yajuh (XII.75-101; four additional verses, 97, 98, 99 and 100). This is unfortunate that such a fine hymn has been associated with Ukhya Agni (the Agni of the Firepan and the preparation of the āhavanīya fire-altar. The Srauta ritual uses these verses in sowing the seed of various plants and herbs, after having poured fifteen jars of water on the altar site. The same verses in the Rgveda have been used for medicinal purposes, inspiring the physician to search for the medicinal herbs and apply them to patients suffering from dyspepsia, or the patients having trouble in mouths, or having abscess or gum boil.

Another hymn of interest is Rk. X.103.1-13, which is repeated in entirety as Yv. XVII.33-46; in the Yajuh, we have an additional verse (अवसृष्टा परा पत, XVII.45) which occurs as Rk. VI.75.16. The verses give a detail of army equipment and hence are of immense value (army, arrows, shafts, quivers, weapons, steeds, conquering cars). In these verses, it has been shown how Indra goes to a battle and crushes the adversaries.

Thus, there is not the least doubt that the Yajurveda imbibes in it the entire spirit of the Rk verses, very often copying the hymns; casually the Samhitā quotes the Kk verses at relevant places and on some occasions, it even elaborates on the Rk verse by appending appropriate yajūmsi. This may be well illustrated by an example:

तचक्षु दैवहितं शुक्रमुधरत् । पश्येम शरदः शतं जीवेम शरदः शतम् ॥ (Rk. VII. 66.16)

(12 + 8 + 8 = 28 syllables; metre - Pura-uṣṇik).

तद्यक्ष देवहितं पुरस्ताच्छुक्रमुद्यरत् । पश्येम शरदः शतं जीवेम शरदः शतं मृणुपाम शरदः शतं प्रबचाम शरदः शतम-दीनाः स्याम शरदः शतं भूयश्य शरदः शतात् —(Yv. XXXVI.24)

In the Rgveda, no verse is preceded with the mahā-vyāhṛtis; but in the Yajurveda, three verses are preceded with them; (1) भूभुंवः स्वः तत्तावितुः (XXXVI.3); भूभुंवः स्वः सुप्रजाः (III.37) and भूभुंवः स्वचारिव (III.5). Any ṛc (ऋच), applied to individual or social life becomes yajuḥ (यजुः), and the same when made a lyric to sing the glory of our Lord, becomes a sāman (सामन्). Essentially there is no difference in the philosophy of life as propounded by the texts of the Rgveda, the Yajurveda, the Sāmaveda and the Atharva-veda. There are certain fundamentals which constitute philosophy of the entire Veda. For simplicity we can enumerate them thus:

- 1. The world is real, meaningful, orderly and purposeful.
- 2. Our Life is real, meaningful and purposeful, a continuous one, a cycle of births and deaths within another cycle of bondage and liberation (janma, जन्म and mṛṭyu, मृत्यु and bandha, बन्म, and moksa, मोक्ष).

- 3. The world is real and changeable; our life is real and changeable (जगला जगन्), and this may be given a technical name dynamic realism; the creation, including our coming into the body, in no sense is a delusion, a myth, an unreality or a static illusion.
- 4. Behind the entire activity, is the tapas, नपस्, of a dynamic Supreme Reality, the source of our phenomenal existences, enlightenment and bliss.

That Supreme Self is named in the Vedas by numberless technical terms, all referring to a certain function, attribute and nature of the indescribable Self, beyond the concepts of space and time, for, we have in a Yajuh verse so said:

Agni is That; Āditya is That; Vāyu and Candramas are That; Šukra is That; Brahma is That; Āpaḥ are That; and so the Prajāpati.

(Yv. XXXII.1)

When we speak of Him, as Agni, as Aditya, as Vayu or Candramas, Sukra, Brahma, Apah or Prajapati, we do not mean that He identifies Himself with the mundane fire, the sun, wind, moon, waters and so on, because in our language these words stand for so many connotations. When used in context with the activity of our Lord, these terms should be taken in their etymological sense: Agni, since He is the Foremost Adorable; Aditya, since He is Infinite and yet a unity, indivisible and uncompoundable; Vayu, since, though stationary, He moves with terrible speed and possesses infinite vigour; Candramas, as being the only source of real delight and bliss; Śukra, since He is without a blasphemy, bright and shining, - of course, not in the optical sense; Brahma, being Supreme and the only source of knowledge; Apah, being omnipresent and all-pervading, and Prajapati, being the Lord Supreme of His people.

The Chapter XXXII may well be regarded as an Upanişad (Tadeva Upanişad) of divine nature. It is difficult to render the following lines in a spoken language of the present day:

(a) वैनस्तत्पश्यांतिहितं गुद्द्या सद्यत्र विश्वं भवत्येकनीडम् । तांस्मतिदर्श् सं च वि चैति सर्वश्च स औतः प्रोत्तश्च विभूः प्रजासु ॥ (Yv. XXXII.8); also Av. II.1.2, Tait. Ar. X.1.3 with variations).

The wise beholds Him as if placed in a secret cave, in whom all this world finds a common nest. All this unites in Him and springs forth from Him. That omnipresent Lord is woven like warp and woof in all the creatures.

(b) प्रतद्वाचेदमूतं नु विद्वान् गन्धर्वो धाम विभृत गुहा सन् । त्रीणि पदाान निहिता गुहास्य यस्तानि वेद स पितुः पिताऽसन् ॥ (Yv. XXXII.9; also Av. II.1.2; and Tait. Ār. X.1.3)

Let this enlightened scholar, who knows, disclose in detail about that Immortal one; who is, as if in a secret cave, divided in different forms. Three of his feet are hidden in the cave. He who knows them, is father of the father even.

The Supreme Reality in the Veda is known by various names. The Yajurveda uses almost all those names which are used in the Rgvedic texts. These names occur as small invocations also in the Yajuḥ.

अग्नये स्वाहा । सोमाय स्वाहा । इन्द्राय स्वाहा । चन्द्राय स्वाहा । सूर्याय स्वाहा । चसुभ्यः स्वाहा । सद्रेश्यः स्वाहा । आदित्येभ्यः स्वाहा । (Yv. XXII.27) गणपतये स्वाहा । अधिपतये स्वाहा । (Yv. XXII.30) भूवनस्य पतये स्वाहा । अधिपतये स्वाहा । प्रजापतये स्वाहा । (Yv. XXII.32)

Of course, this Chapter (XXII.23-32) of the Yajuh gives a big list of terms (over 130) of a variety of classes.

During the Vedic Period (particularly in the Samhitās), the most popular name of our Lord is Indra; next in popularity are the terms Agni, Soma, Varuṇa, Pūṣan, Mitra, Aditi and Aditya; very often our Lord is known by the dual names: Indra-Agāi, Mitra-Varuṇa, Agni-Soma and few others. The celestial sun is also known by almost all those names which are attributed to our Lord. The famous phrase : एकं सद् विम्न बहुपा बदन्ति (Rk. I.164.46) is, in certain context, more applicable to the sun, which has so many names (Adityas, usually twelve in number).

In the Brāhmaṇa period, God came to be popularly known as Prajāpati; and in Upaniṣadic period, He is known as Brahman and as Atman. In the post-Upaniṣad periods, the names as Īśvara, Bhagavān and many others became more popular.

The symbolic undeclinable (avyaya) name of our Lord as A.U.M., and its popularity has no accountable history. This is the first alphabetic symbol in human vocabulary. A (अ) the guttaral, is the first letter of phonetic alphabet; u (उ), the labial, the last phonetic pure vowel in the list (अ, इ, ऋ, ल and उ); m (म्) is the last letter in the entire phonetic alphabet and thus अ, a; उ, u; म, m are the integral limits of sounds which we use in our language (and in this sense : ओमित्येतदक्षरं सर्वं तस्योप-व्याख्यानम् — MāṇḍŪkya upaniṣad. [अह विसर्जनीयाः कण्ठे। उवीपोपध्या ओप्ठे Kātīya, Yajuḥ Prātiśākhya, (I.70; 71).

The Yajurveda uses the symbol AUM in two of the verses (i) ओम् क्रतो स्मर (XL.15) and (ii) ओं खं ब्रह्म (XL.17). In the Isa Upaniṣad, we do not have ओं खं ब्रह्म।

Usually the syllable AUM (or OM) is recommended to be used in the beginning of every Vedic verse, and at the end of it (ओमभ्यादाने । प्रणवप्टेः । —Aṣṭādhyāyī); ओङ्कारः स्वाध्यायादौ । ओङ्काराधकारौ। ओङ्कारं वेदेषु । अधकारं भाष्येषु । (Kātīya Vajasaneyi Prātiśākhyam, I.16-19).

बाह्मणः प्रणवं कुर्यादादावन्ते च सर्वदा । सरत्यानोङ्कृतं पूर्वं परस्ताच विश्वीयति ॥ — Manu

(quoted from Uvața's commentary on Yujaḥ — Prātiśākhya I.16; 17). Om is an auspicious symbol, and a similar auspicious term is atha (अय) to be used in other literatures, particularly while introducing a Sūtra text, like, अय लिगानुशासनम्। अयातो बहा जिज्ञासा etc. Om is also known as praṇava (प्रणव) and udgītha (उद्गीय).

MORPHOLOGY OF THE TEXT

We are traditionally told that the revealed divine knowledge of the Vedas came to humanity through the Rsis, greatest among the great, known as Agni, Vayu, Aditya and Angiras, and the knowledge that dawned to us was respectively known as the Rks (the poems of jnana or enlightenment), the yajus (the prose of Karma or the instructions regarding actions), the Samans (the lyrics of Upasana, devoted to love, joy and dedication), and finally the prose and poem of the household life, known as the Atharvaveda or the Brahma Veda.

The entire Veda passed through five stages:

- (1) the stage of collection and classification, the samhifi-karaṇa into the samhitās, classified into maṇḍalas, aṣṭakas, anuvākas, adhyāyas, kāṇḍas, ārcikas, daśatis, prapāṭhakas, sūktas etc.
- (2) The pada pāṭhas (पदपाठ), with each word (पद) or term spoken clearly, distinctly and with proper accents, and when these padas are compounded together according to the rules of euphony or sandhi, we get the samhitā pāṭha (संहितापाठ). In fact, sandhi is the euphonic function of final and initial letters in grammar, every sentence in Sanskrit being regarded as a euphonic chain, a break in which occurs only at the end of a sentence.

We are not sure whether the pada  $p\bar{a}tha$  existed prior to the  $samhit\bar{a}$   $p\bar{a}tha$  or the vice versa. There are clear indications substantiating both the views. There are definite rules of accounting the vowels or accents of the padas (terms) in the pada  $p\bar{a}tha$  in consistency with the accents in the  $samhit\bar{a}$   $p\bar{a}tha$ .

(ইবলা) and rṣis (মনি) to the verses, and to name the metre (চন্দ্ৰ) of the verse also. What we mean by devatā has been very well discussed by Yāska in his Nirukta. The Vedic texts existed prior to the Science of Metres, or prosody. The names of the metres occur at several places in the Vedic texts, but their connotations and classifications must have developed much later on in our history. Finally, we come to a complete and excellent treatise, knewn as the Chandas Sastra (one of the six Vedāṅgas) of Rṣi Piṅgala. We have in the Yajurveda following verse:

गायत्री त्रिष्टुब् जगत्यनुष्टुष्पङ्कत्या सह । बृहत्युष्णिहा ककुप्सूचीभिः शम्यन्तु त्वा । (XXIII.33)

In this verse, we have the names of all the seven prominent metres:

गायत्री (24), उष्णिक् (28), अनुष्टुप् (32), बृहती (36), पंक्ति (40) and त्रिष्टुप् (44), and जगती (48). Kakup (ककुप्) means prominent, summit, a musical note, even a metre.

In Chapter XIV.9 and 10, we have the following names of metres:

बृहती, ककुप, सतोबृहती, पंक्ति, जगती, त्रिष्टुप्, विराट्, गायत्री, उप्पिक्, अनुष्टुप् (of course, there are other terms called छन्दः as प्रजापीत, मयन्द, अिपपित, परमेष्ठी, विवल, विशाल, तन्द्र, अनाधृष्ट; छदि (XIV.9). Similarly, elsewhere we have 24 chandas: मा, प्रमा, प्रितमा, अधीवयः, पंक्ति, उष्णिक्, बृहती, अनुष्टुप्, विराद्, गायत्री, त्रिष्टुप्, जगती, पृथिवी, अन्तिरक्ष, धी, समा, नक्षत्र, वाक्, मनस्, कृषि, हिरण्य, गौ, अजा and अश्व। (Yv. XIV. 18 and 19) (Here the word हिरण्य is a synonym of अवि or sheep).

(4) The fourth stage in respect to the popularization of the Yajurveda consists in the elaboration and appreciation of the rks and yajūmṣi, which we now possess as the brāhmaṇas. The main brāhmaṇa of the White Yajurveda is the Śatapatha. These brāhmaṇas have two functions '(1) They help in the interpretation of the Vedas (बहाणां वैदानामिमानि व्याख्यानानि बाहाणांग — Dayānanda); and (2) They give the details of the yajāas in which the Vedic texts are used with viniyogas. The Vedic texts (the Rks and Yajūmsi) are primarily not meant for the yajāas; they are meaningful in their own way, but in the Yājūika period they were used as suggestive of rituals or as invocations. The brāhmaṇa texts suggest the details of rituals to be performed, and at the same time the mantra (appropriate or otherwise even) is recited. This is known as the viniyoga; this happens in Karma Brāhmaṇa (कर्म बाह्मण) । Opposed to it is the Kalpa Brāhmaṇa, in which only mantra is recited and ritual is performed with it. (विविध बाह्मणम् । कर्मबाह्मणं कल्प बाह्मणं चेति (Bhatta Bhāskara in his introduction to the commentary on the Taittirīya Samhitā).

The Mādhyandinīya Satapatha Brāhmana, as the name signifies has 100 chapters — शतं पन्धानो यत्र स शतप्यः. It has 14 kāṇḍas, 100 chapters or 68 prapāṭhakas, 438 brāhmaṇas and 7624 kaṇḍikās. The teacher of this Brāhmaṇa is the great Yājñavalkya, but his name does not occur in the four kāṇḍas (6-9), and instead, we have the name of Śāṇḍilya (शाण्डल्य).

We have a Kānva Satapatha Brāhmana also having 104 adhyāyas, 446 brāhmaņas, and 5865 kandikās.

Among the extinct brāhmaṇas of the Yajuh school, the prominent one is the Caraka Brāhmaṇa, चरक ब्राह्मण about which we have a reference in Sāyaṇa's commentary of the Rgveda (VIII.77.10) —ऐतिहासिक पक्षे चरकबाह्मणे इतिहास आम्नायते.

Uvata also mentions about it in his commentary on the Yajurveda:

चरकाणां मंत्रविकल्पाः (VII.23). चरकश्रुतौ पूष्णे ललाट इति पठ्यते तदिमप्रायमेतत् (XXV.27).

Rk and Yajuh in the Yajurveda

I am using the terms rk, yajuh and brāhmana in a special sense. By rk, we understand the Vedic poems or verses. which not only abound in the Rgveda, but also occur in the Yajurveda and the Atharvaveda (of course, in the Samaveda Samhitā also). They are the metred lines in chandas like Gāyatrī, Usnik, Anustup, Brhatī, Pankti, Tristubh, Jagatī and even in the longer measures. Saman includes lyrics, not only confined to the Samaveda, with a highly developed music characteristics of the Saman schools, but also widespread in the Atharva Samhita also. The primitive prose, including sacrificial formulae, which is not rk or sāman, is yajuh. (बन्ध).

Jaimini, the author of the Purva Mīmāmsā, also takes these terms in this sense, for he says:

तेषाभुग्यत्रार्थवशेन पादव्यवस्या । गीतिष् सामाख्या। शेषे यज् शब्दः। (11.1.35-37)

The Vajasaneya Sukla Yajurveda entirely consists of rks (i.e. metred poems) and the yajuhs, the liturgical fragments of the earliest prose in human possession. We have in the

Introduction 65

Atharvaveda also the iks and the yajuhs of this type. For which rituals and ceremonies, or for what purposes of life, these iks and yajuhs are to be employed is the sphere of the brāhmanas.

The customary brāhmaṇa of the Rgveda school is the Aitareya, of the White Yajurveda is the Satapatha, of the Atharvaveda is the Gopatha, and of the Sāmaveda is the Sāma brāhmaṇa or the Tāṇḍya. The Taittirīya Saṃhitā is known as the Kṛṣṇa Yajurveda in the sense that it has besides ṛks and yajuhs, the brāhmaṇa portion also (the prose relating to instructions and details of varied nature). Some authorities differentiate between nigada. निगद and yajuḥs, since yajuḥs are pronounced in low voice (upāmsu, उपांगु), while nigada are in loud (uccaiḥ, अधेः) -उधेः ऋचा कियते, उधेः साम्ना, उपांगु यंजुषा, उधेनिगदेन।

The Yajurveda has yajuhs of various types:

(i) Svāhā type:

स्वाहा यज्ञं मनसः स्वाहोरोरन्तरिक्षात् स्वाहाः धावा पृथिवीम्याशुम्वाहा वातादारमे स्वाहा ॥ (Yv. IV.6)

(ii) Refrain type:

उपयामगृहीतोऽसि मधवे त्वा, '
उपयामगृहीतोऽसि माधवाय त्वा, '
उपयामगृहीतोऽसि शुकाय त्वा, '
उपयामगृहीतोऽसि शुचये त्वा, '
उपयामगृहीतोऽसि नमसे त्वा, '
उपयामगृहीतोऽसि नमसे त्वा, '
उपयामगृहीतोऽसि नमस्याय त्वा, '

and so on along with the thirteen names of months in a year, with a common refrain उपचामगृहीतोऽसि । (Yv.VII.30)

- (iii) Enumeration or lexicon type:
- (a) मा छन्दा, प्रमा छन्दा, प्रतिमा छन्दो<sup>1</sup>, अस्रीवयश्यन्द<sup>1</sup>, पंक्तिश्यन्द<sup>1</sup>, उष्टिक् छन्दो<sup>1</sup>, बृहतो छन्दो<sup>1</sup>, ऽनुष्टुप् छन्दो<sup>1</sup>, विराद् छन्दो<sup>1</sup>, गायत्री छन्द<sup>11</sup>, स्त्रिष्टुप् छन्दो<sup>1</sup>, जगती छन्द<sup>12</sup>। (Yv. XIV.18)
- (b) तमसे कौलाल मायायै कर्मार ्रैल्पाय मणिकार ्रेशुभे वप ्रशरव्या इड्युकार १५ हेन्यै धनुष्कारं कर्मणे ज्याकारं दिष्टाय रञ्जसर्ज मृत्यवे मृगयुभन्तकाय रविनिनम्। (Yv. XXX.7)

(c) Ca me (च मे) type enumeration :
अश्मा च मे मृतिका च मे गिरयश्च मे पर्वताश्च मे सिकताश्च मे
वनस्पतयश्च मे हिरण्यं च मे ऽयश्च मे श्यामं च मे लोहं च मे
सीतं च मे जप् च मे यदोन कल्पताम् । (Yv. XVIII.13)

(iv) Pada-type with Svaha or Svaha-vat :

(a) स्वर्ण धर्मः स्वाहा $^{1}$ , स्वर्णार्कः स्वाहा $^{2}$ , स्वर्णशुकः स्वाहा $^{3}$ , स्वर्णन्योतिः स्वाहा $^{4}$ , स्वर्णसूर्यः स्वाहा $^{5}$ । (Yv. XVIII.50)

(b) भुज्युः सुपर्णो यज्ञो गन्धर्व । स्तस्य दक्षिणा अप्सरस स्तावा नाम । स न इदं बहा क्षत्रं पातु तस्मे स्वाहा वाद् । ताम्यः स्वाहा । (Yv. XVIII.42) Also see XVIII.38-43.

(v) Daivata-type:

होता यक्षवश्विनौ छागस्य वषाया मेदसो जुपताश्रहविहाँतर्यज । होता यक्षत्तरस्वतीं मेयस्य वषाया मेदसो जुपताश्रहविहाँतर्यज । होता यक्षविन्द्रमूपमस्य वषाया मेदसो जुपताश्रहविहाँतर्यज ।

(Yv. XXI.41)

(vi) Adjectival type:

उग्रन्च भीमश्च ध्वान्तश्च धुनिश्च सासह्रांश्वामियुग्वा च विक्षिपः स्वाहा। (Yv.XXXIX.7)

(vii) Association type:

कृष्णगीवाङआग्नेया बभवः सौम्याः श्वेता वायव्याङअविद्याताङ अदित्यै सरूपा धात्रे वत्सतर्यो देवानां पत्नीम्यः ॥ (Yv. XXIV.9)

(viii) Ca (च) type:

इमा में अग्न इष्टका धेनवः सन्त्वेका च दश च दश व शतं च शतं च सहस्रं च सहस्रं चायुतं चायुतं च नियुतं च प्रयुतं चार्युदं च न्यर्बुदं च समुद्रश्व मध्यं चान्तश्व परार्धश्वेता मे अग्न इष्टका धेनवः सन्त्वमुत्रामुष्टिं त्लोके। (Yv. XVII.2)

(ix) Namah type:

नमो वज्याय च गोष्ठ्याय च नमस्तल्याय च गेह्याय च नमो हृदय्याय च निवेष्याय च नमः काट्याय च गहबरेष्ठाय च।

(Yv. XVI.44)

(x) Attributable type : प्रतिपदिस प्रतिपदि प्रतिपदि क्या , अनुपदिस अनुभदे त्या 2, सम्पदिस सम्पदे त्वा 3, तेजोऽसि तेजसे त्वा 4।

(Yv. XV.8)

(xi) Yajuh appended to rk:

यस्ते स्तनः शशयो यो मयोभूर्यो स्तन्धा वसुविद्यः सुदत्रः । येन विश्वा पुष्पित वार्य्याणि सरस्वित तमिह धातवेडकः ॥ उर्वन्तरिक्षमन्वेमि ॥ (Yv. XXXVIII.5) In this the part उर्वन्तरिक्षमन्वेमि is the Yajuh, added to a verse of the Rgveda (I.164.5; यस्तेस्तनः... धातवेडकः).

(xii) Samhitā type or type of sets: The Yajurveda abounds in yajuḥs of the Samhitā type, i.e. two or more items set in parallels. We shall give a simple illustration: we have in Yv. IX.31—

अग्निरेकाक्षरेण प्राणमुदजयंत् तमुञ्जेषम् ।

In its strain, we have the following lines one by one—

अश्विनौ द्व्यक्षरेण द्विषदो मनुष्यानुदमयताम्, तानुश्रेषम्<sup>2</sup> विष्णुस्त्र्यक्षरेण श्री ल्लोकानुदमयतानुश्रेषम्<sup>3</sup> सोमश्चतुरक्षरेण चतुष्यदः पश्चनुदमयत्तानुश्रेषम्<sup>4</sup> (31) This goes up to प्रजापितः सम्तदशाक्षरेण सम्तदशश्वंस्तोममुदमय-त्तमुञ्जेषम् ।<sup>17</sup> (34)

The Samhita or the set may be tabulated as follows:-

Devatā	No. of letters	अक्षरेण उदजयत्
Agni Aśvinau Viṣṇu Soma Pūṣan Savitṛ Maruts	one two three four five six seven	प्राण द्विपद मनुष्य त्रिलोक चतुष्पद पशु पञ्च दिशः षट् ऋतु सप्त ग्राम्य पशु	breath biped-man three worlds quadruped cattle five quarters six seasons seven cattle (domesticated)

Morphology of the Yajuh Texts

The entire Veda, the divine knowledge, revealed to the first men through the medium of a divine speech, vac, is one, and is the most ancient and eminent possession of mankind. The entire literature, known as the Veda, or the Amnaya, the Śruti, the Śāstra, the Vāc, and the Śabda, is often classified under the three heads: Rk, Yajuh and Saman, meaning poem, prose and lyric respectively, so far as the expressions are concerned, and the same terms are used in the sense of the fundamental or pure knowledge, the applied knowledge and lastly, the personal experiences arising from the contact of the Supreme Knowable and the knower - the devotional, the spiritual, the transcendental (the Rk, or the inanakanda, the Yajuh or the karmakanda, and the Saman or the upāsanā kānda). The entire Veda has again been classified as the edited texts, compiled and arranged as the four samihitas, the Rk Samhita, the Yajuh Samhita, the Sama-Samhita, and the Atharva Samhita. All the four have in them the literature concerning the fundamental knowledge, the applied knowledge and the personal experiences, the jnana, the karma, and the upasana. The Rgveda and the Samaveda are entirely in verse, with very few broken remnants of the appearance of the yajūmsi (ritual formulae). Some of the verses in both these texts are lyrics also in the sense that they have refrains (or the lines or phrases) of chorus repeated over several stanzas or verses). The Yajurveda and the Atharvaveda, in their morphology, have the texts of three categories: (i) the verses (or the rks) in metres, (ii) the rks or the verses appended with one or more the yajūmsi or the phrases in prose form, and (iii) the pure yajūmsi or the primordial prose or the formulae. Again, the verses or the rks belong to two stocks; those common with the verses of the Rk Samhita, and the others which do not occur in the Rgveda. Sometimes two or more verses of the Rgveda go to form one kandikā (in popular sense, one mantra) of the Yajurveda. We shall not discuss here the morphology of the Yajuh texts in details, but shall give a few illustrations.

(i) The rks occurring in the Rgveda and the Yajurveda both:

वनस्पते वीड्यक्षो हि भूयाऽअस्मत्सखा प्रतरणः सुयीरः । गोभिः सन्नद्वोऽअसि वीडयस्वास्थाता ते जयनु जेत्वानि ॥

This verse occurs as Yajuḥ XXIX. 52, and the Rk VI. 47.26. The accents, anudātta svarita etc. are the same, and metre is the same (as Rk, we have बीळ्य, whilst as Yajuḥ, we have बीड्य, since the latter æ is not used in the Yajuḥ texts).

- (ii) The Rk text with verbal variations in the Yajurveda:
  - (a) उपहरे गिरीणा ध्सन्नमे च नदीनाम् थिया विप्रोडभगायत ॥ Yv. XXVI.15.

This occurs in the Rgveda, VIII. 6.28, with गिरीणाश्चसंगमें changed to गिरीणा सङ्गये।

(b) मुह्मन्त्वन्ये अमितो जनास इहात्माक मघवा सृत्रिस्सु ।
— Rk. X.81.6

मुह्यन्वन्ये अमिनः मपत्ना इहास्माकं मधवा मूरिरस्तु

-Yv. XVII.22.

(iii) The Puruṣa Sūkta of the Yajurveda (XXXI) has in alf 22 verses; its parallel hymn in the Rgveda is X.90 with 16 verses only with verses of the Rk 6 (यत् पुरुषेण) and 7 (तं यज्ञं विहिष) occuring as 14th and 9th respectively in the Yaurveda.

The first verse of this hymn has also a verbal difference. According to Rk: स भूमि विश्वतो वृत्वाहत्यतिष्ठद् दशाकुलम् and according to the Yajuh: स भूमिश्सर्वतः स्वृत्वाहत्यतिष्ठद् दशाकुलम्. There are a large number of verses in the Yajurveda (in perfect metres) which do not occur in the Rgveda. For example, the tristups of the Yajurveda: वेदाहमेतं पुरुषं (XXXI.18, with syllables 11 + 11 + 11 + 10); प्रजापित श्वरति गर्मे (XXXI.19, with syllables 12 + 11 + 11 + 11), do not occur in the Rgveda.

(iv) The following kandikā of the Yajurveda (Yv. XV. 48) derives the three lines from the Rgveda (V.24. 1, 2, 4), whilst one is missing).

The Yajuh version:

अग्ने त्वं नोऽअन्तमऽउत त्राता शिवो मवा वरूष्यः। वसुरग्निर्वसुश्रवाऽअच्छा नक्षि युमतमध्रविन्दाः। तं त्वां शोविष्ठ दीदिवः सुम्नाय नूनमीमहे सखिष्यः॥

(Yv.XV.48; Rv. V.24, 1,2,4)

The Rgveda gives one more Bhūrik-bṛhatī line : स नो बोधि श्रुपी हवमुरुप्या णो अघायतः समस्मात् ।

(v) The Yajurveda, verse XXIII.16, runs as follows : न वाड उ ड एतन्त्रियसे न रिष्यसि देवाँ २ डइदेपि पथिभिः सुगेभिः। यत्रासते सुकृतो यत्र ते ययुस्तत्र स्वा देवः सविता दघातु ॥

(The entire kandikū constitutes one mantra).
The first line is a repetition of the first line of Rv. I.
162.21 (न वा...सुगेषिः). The second line (यत्रासते... दथातु) occurs as the second line of Rv X.17.4). The lines हरी ते युआ...रासमस्य, I.162, 21—the second-half, and आयुर्विश्वायुः...पुरस्तात् —X.17.4, the first half, do not occur in the Yajuh-text.

(vi) Here we give an illustration where the Rgvedic verse has been appended with a yajuh-formula:

The Rk verse is:

ऊर्ध्वो भव प्रति विध्याध्यस्यदा विष्कृणुष्य दैव्यान्यग्ने अव स्थिरा तनुहि यातुजूनां जामिमजामि प्र मृणीहि शत्रून् ॥ (हि.v. IV.4.5; Yv. XIII.13)

In the Yajurveda text, a yajuḥ has been appended to it; अग्नेष्ट्वा तेजसा सादयामि. Similarly, in the next Yajuḥ kaṇḍikā (XIII.14) a Yajuḥ-formula "इन्द्रस्य त्वीजसा सादयामि" has been attached to the Gayatrī metre: अग्निर्मूर्या दिवः ककुत्प्रतिः वृषिव्याऽअयम् अपा रेतांसि जिन्चिति । (Rv. VIII. 44. 16; Yv. XIII.14)

Similarly, we have the illustrations where the yajūnişi have been appended to the Rk verses.

To Rv. II.23.15 (बृहस्पते अति यदर्थी॰), the appendages are : उपयामगृहीतोऽसि बृहस्पतये त्वैष ते योनिर्बृहस्पतये त्व ।
—Yv. XXVI.3

To Rv. I.98.1 (वैश्वानरस्य सुमतौ स्थाम॰) the yajumşi appended are : उपयामगृहीतो इपि वैश्वानराय त्वैष ते योनिर्वेश्वानराय त्वा — Yv.XXVI.7.

To Rv. IX.66.20 (अग्निऋषिः पवमानः पाञ्जजन्यः पुरोहितः तमीमहे महागयम्, the appendages are : उपयामगृहीतोऽस्यग्नये त्या वर्चस-एप ते योनिरग्नये त्वा वर्चसे — Yv. XXVI.9

(vii) Sometimes the verse from the Rgveda has been modified to a closely allied parallel verse in the Yajurveda: For example, we have in the Rgveda (X.82.3)

यो नः पिता जनिता यो विधाता धामानि वेद भुवनानि विश्वा ।

This line may be compared with the Yajuh line:

स नो बन्धुजनिता स विधाना धामानि वेद भुवनानि विश्वा ।
—Yv. XXXII.10.

Similarly, a parallelism is seen in the two texts: one of the Rgveda X.15.14 and the other of the Yajurveda, XIX.60.

ये अग्निदम्धा ये अन्निग्नदम्धा मध्ये दिवः स्वधया मादयन्ते । तेभिः स्वराळसुनीतिमेतां यथावशं तन्त्वं कल्पयस्व ।

(Rv. X.15.14).

(Yv. XIX.60).

The word अग्निदग्पा of the Rgveda becomes अग्निप्वाता in the Yajurveda.

(viii) There appears to have been a confusion in the textual readings of the Yajurveda verse and the verse occurring in the Upanisads. I would refer to the first three verses of Chapter XXXII of the Yajurveda which in our redaktions occur as follows:

तदेवाग्नि स्तदादित्यस्तद्वायुस्तदु चन्द्रमाः। तदेव शुक्रं तद् बहा ता आपः स प्रजापतिः — Yv. XXXII.l The same verse occurs as such in the Svetāsvatara Upaniṣad IV.2.

This verse is followed by two verses in the Yajurveda :

सर्वे निमेषा जिहारे विद्युतः पुरुषादिष ।

नैनमूर्ध्व न निर्यक्षं न मध्ये परिजग्मत् ॥ (Yv. XXXII.2)

न तत्य प्रतिमाऽअस्ति यस्य नाम महद्यशः ।

हिरण्यगर्भेऽइत्येष मा मा हिर्श्नसीदित्येषा यस्मान्न जातऽइत्येषः ॥

(Yv. XXXII.3).

Obviously, the verse, "न तस्य प्रतिमाङअस्ति»" by itself is incomplete, because the pratikas, हिरण्यगर्भ, or the anuvākas (XXV.10-13) (मा मा हिछ्सीत् (XII.102); यस्मान्न जातः (VIII. 36-37) are mere appendages. We have in the Śvetāśvatara Upaniṣad its more relevant reading:

नैनमूर्ध्वं न तिर्यञ्च न मध्ये परिजगमत्। न तस्य प्रतिमा अस्ति यस्य नाम महद्यशः॥ Šv. IV.19. The combination of the two lines is very appropriate.

Now what about the first half of the verse 2 (सर्वे निमेषा जिक्करे विद्युतः पुरुषादिषः)? This line is perhaps neither appropriate along with नैनमूर्ध्वः nor with the न तस्य प्रतिमा अस्ति. A plausible answer or Introduction 73 clue is available from the text available in a minor Upanişad, known as the Mahānārāyaṇa Upanişad: The verses I.7-10 of this Upanişad are:

तदेवाग्नि स्तदादित्यसद्वायुस्तद् चन्द्रमाः। तदेव शुक्रं तद् बहा ता आपः स प्रजापतिः॥ (1.7) सर्वे निमेषा अक्षिरे विद्युनः पुरुषादिधः। कला मृहुनाः काष्टाश्चा इतिराजाश्च गर्यशः॥ (1.8) अर्थमासा मासा ऋनवः सवत्तरश्च कत्पताम्। स आपः प्रदुषे उभे इमे अन्तरिक्षमयो सुवः (1.9) नैनमूष्यं न निर्यत्तं न मध्ये परिजगभत्। न तस्यैष कश्चन तस्य नाम महद्यशः। (1.10)

From this also, as from the text of the Svetāsvatara Upaniṣad, it appears that the line belongs to the verse ending in the words तस्य नाम महद्यशः. As to the anomaly of the line सर्वे निमेषा जित्तरे, I leave it to the consideration of our scholars. It appears that the author of the Mahānārāyaṇa Upaniṣad has made an honest attempt to elaborate the sense of the line.

Mahīdhara and Uvaṭa regard न तस्य प्रतिमा अस्ति यस्य नाम महद्यश्च as the dvipadā gāyatrī (syllables 8 + 8), if combined with नैनमूध्वं न निर्यक्ष न मध्ये परि नगभत्, the whole verse becomes anuṣṭup (8 + 8 + 8 + 8).

We shall now talk about the hymns of the Rgveda which appear as intertwined in the chapter of the Yajurveda with some verbal alterations and occasionally with an altered order of the verses. For example, the Rk-hymn VII.41.1-7 is entirely incorporated as verse XXXIV.34-40 in the Yajurveda. The first four verses of the Rgveda X.9.1-4 occur as Yv.XXXVL. 14-16, 12. The Aprī hymn (Rv. X.110. 1-11) occurs as Yv. XXIX. 25-36, with one नतशासन्य (27) missing in the Rk. text. Similarly, the Rk-verses 1.163.1-13 occur as Yv. XXIX.12-24. The Rk verses X.81.1-7 occur as Yv. XVII.17-23; and the Rk verses X.82.1-7 as Yv. XVII.25-31; the Rk verses IV.4.1-5 as Yv. XIII. 9-13; the Rk verses X.97 1-22 (the Osadhi-hymn) is almost entirely quoted as Yv. XII.75 to 96. with one verse 23 of Rk (त्वमृतमास्योपपः) missing in the Yajurveda, and the order of the verses 20-21 reversed in the Yv. XII.94-95.

The White and Black Yajuh Schools

The 101 Schools or Branches (Śākhās) of the Yajurveda are divided under two major heads : the White (the Sukla or Sauklya, भोवल्य) and the Black (the Kṛṣṇa or Kāṛṣṇya). Here we have a legend of old traditions. The Sage Vaisampayana had a number of pupils, Tittira, तितिर, Yajnavalkya and others. On account of a certain neglect, Vaisampayana was charged of brahmahatyā, i.e. a crime of killing a Brahmin. On this, Vaisampayana wanted all his pupils to go on a penance. Yajñavalkya protested and said that he alone would go on penance on behalf of other pupils, who were not strong enough to go through the ordeal. This enraged Vaisampa yana, and the great teacher asked Yajnvalkya to vomit out all that has been taught to him and go out of the Academy. Yajñavalkya gladly did so, and he vomited out all that he had picked up at the feet of his great teacher. The pupils assumed the form of francolin partridge, and picked up the vomited knowledge. The yajuhs or yajumsi picked up in this manner came to be known as the Black Yajūmsi,* Since they were polluted — "तानि यजूषि बृद्धिमालिन्यहेतुन्यात् कृष्णानि जातानि" — Mahidhara in his introductory remarks to the commentary of the Yajurveda. The same is supported by Vidyaranya Svami: वृद्धिमालिन्य-हेतुत्वात् तद्यजुः कृष्णगीर्यने. Based on the same legend of the Puranas, Dviveda Ganga, the commentator on the Satapatha also says:

कयं भूतानि यजूषि? शुक्तानि शुद्धानि; यद्धा बाह्यणेन मिश्रित मन्त्रात्मकानि कृष्णानि ।

In the Taittirīya Samhitā, we have thus a mixture of mantra and the brāhmaņa portion both. Being thus polluted, Kṛṣṇa Yajurveda assumed this name. The Sukla Yajurveda has no brāhmaṇa ingredient in it.

*याज्ञवात्स्य स्ततः प्राप्त भक्त्यैनते मयोदितम् । ममाप्यालं त्वयाधीतं यन्मया तदिदं द्विज ॥ इत्युक्त्वा सियराक्तानि मरूपाणि यजूपि सः । छर्दियित्वा ददौ तस्मै ययौ च स्वैच्छया मुनिः ॥ यजूष्यय विक्षण्टानि याज्ञवत्क्येन जै द्विज । जगृहुस्तितिरा भूत्वा तैतिरायास्यु ने ततः ॥(Viṣṇu Purāṇa, III. 5.1-15) On account of the lack of clarity in the Taittiriya Samhita, it is also known as Black recension:

यज्ञकर्मानुष्ठान मार्गस्य दुर्विज्ञेयत्वात् कृष्णत्विमति (Bhatta Yajñcśvara, Āryavidyā - Sudhākara)

बुंद्धिमालिन्य हेतुत्वात् तद्यजुः कृष्णमीयेते । व्ययस्थित प्रकरणन्यात् तद्यजुः शुक्तमीयेते ॥ (Anantadeva, Pratijñā Sūtra, Parišista 1-3)

There is also a basic difference in the performance of certain sacrificial rituals. The adherents of the White School start the upākarma (उपाकर्म) on the full moon day on the caturdasī (14th of month) side. The adherents of the Black School perform the same upākarma on the Full Moon day on the kṛṣṇa pratipadā (1st of the month) side.

वेदोपक्रमणं चतुर्दशी युक्त गीणिमा ग्रहणात् शुक्ल यजुः । प्रतिपदा युक्त पीणिमा ग्रहणात् कृष्णयजुरिति वा ॥ (Mahīdāsa in his commentary of Caraṇavyūha)

Another technical difference between the start of the two rituals among the two schools has also been emphasized. The question is as when to start the Darśa — Paurnamāseṣṭi (दर्शपीर्णगासेन्ट); it can start on the amāvasyā (new moon or darśa) or it may start on the Full Moon day. According to the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa and the Pūrva Mimāmsā School the Full Moon sacrifice (पीर्णगासेन्ट) should precede the New Moon Sacrifice (पीर्णगासेन्ट). This is the practice among the followers of the Śukla Yajurveda. On the contrary, the Maitrāyiṇī Samhitā (the follower of the Kṛṣṇa Yajurveda School) sanctions the performance; in a reverse order; the New Moon Sacrifice (पीर्णगासेन्ट).

There may be one more reason for calling one as the Kṛṣṇa Yajurveda, since this School was led by no less a person than Kṛṣṇa Dvaipāyana and his pupils (and hence the word "Kṛṣṇa" attached to it). The White School was led by Yājñavalkya and his pupils. —Yudhiṣṭhira Mīmāṁsaka.

Only two Śākhās (branches or redaktions) of the Śukla

Yajurveda (or the Vājasaneya Samhitā) are available these days, the Mādhyandinīya and the Kānva.

There are two groupings of the Vājasaneya Carana (बाजसनेय चरण) taught by Yājñavalkya—one belongs to the school of the Adityāyanas (आंदित्यायन) and the other to the school of Āngirasāyana (आंगासायन), for we have the following passage to this effect in the Ŝatapatha Brāhmana.

तस्मात् पङ्जाहुतयो भवन्ति एतदादित्यानामयनम् । आदित्यानी-मानि यजूर्पीत्याहुः... विराष्ट् वै यज्ञः, तद्विराजमेवैतद् यज्ञमभिसम्मादयति । एतटामिरसानाभयनम् । (ŚBr.IV.4.5.18-20)

The Pratijña Parisista also holds the same view : द्वयान्येव यजूषि आदित्यानामंगिरसानाम् (31.4).

The Sage Yājāavalkya had two distinguished disciples: Madhyandina (मध्यन्ति) and Kaṇva (काव). Kaṇva was the son of Aṅgiras Ghora, belonging to the Rgveda school of thought. It was he who introduced certain alterations in the original Samhitā as told by Āditya. In the Kāṇva Śākhā, we have everywhere æ and ॡ for æ and æ as is so common in the Rgvedic text. This clearly speaks of some influence of the Rgvedic phonetics on the Kāṇva Śākhā. Since Kaṇva belonged to the family line (भोत्र) of Aṅgiras, the branches and sub-branches of this school came to be known as Āngirasāyana (भोगरतायन), or the path of Āngirasas). On the other hand, Madhyandina retained his Samhitā as the original one, and therefore, his branches and sub-branches came to be known as Ādityāyana (भावित्यायन), named after the most ancient Āditya-Yajuḥ.

Katyāyana, the son of Yājñavalkya, distinguished for his specialization on the subject of yajñas, left the path of Ādityāyana, and became a follower of Āngirasāyana. We have a passage to this effect in the Pratijñā-Pariśiṣṭa:

एव वाजसर्नयानामांगिरसानां वर्णानां, सो≅हं कौशिक पक्षः। शिष्यः पार्षदः पञ्चदशसु तज्ञच्छायामु साधीय क्रमः॥ (31.5.1)

These days, we were in possession of one Samhitā of the group of Ādityāyanas (known as the Mādhyandinī, माध्य-नित्री) and one Samhitā only of the group of Āngirasāyanas (known as the Kāṇvi, काण्यो) The other 13 Samhitās of the vājasaneya-carana are extinct. We have reasons to believe that out of these two, the Mādhyandinī was most popular and perhaps the old and original one (माध्यन्दिनी तु या शाखा सर्वसाधारणी हि सा). Usually, this is the Samhitā, to which naturally such a colophon is attached:

Introduction 77

यजुर्वेद संहिता समाप्ता Or वाजसनेय संहिता समाप्ता ।

Of the Mādhyandinī Samhitā also, we had in the past two variations, the Dīrgha Pāṭha (दीर्घ पाठ or the long one) and the Laghu Pāṭha (तयु पाठ or the short one). What was actually the difference between the 1) rgha and Laghu Pāṭhas is now not known.

Symbolic addendum to a verse

The Mādhyandinī Samhitā of the Yajurveda, as handed to us today has certain features to show that it could not have been as such in the original form. In the ecclesiastical period, the priestly sages did try to introduce certain innovations for the guidance of others. The prafikas (प्रतीक) or Symbolic Addenda were added to certain verses in a way that they may look to be the original part of the verse. These prafikas are the opening words of some verses already quoted before some-where in the Samhitā. This was a suggestion of the Seer to priest to repeat these verses having pronounced the principal verse. We are giving these examples below.

(1) The Verse XIII.58 as it occurs in the Madhyandina Samhita is thus:

इयमुपरिमतिस्तस्यै...विणवत्रयस्त्रिथुशौ त्रिणवत्रयस्त्रिथुशाप्याथु शाक्वररैवते विश्वकर्म&ऋषिः प्रजापतिगृहीतया त्वया वाचं गृह्णामि प्रजाम्यः लोकं ता इन्द्रम् ।

In fact the verse finishes at प्रजाम्य ; the three words लोकम्, ता, इन्द्रम् are the opening of three verses XII.54 (लोक प्रण छिद्रं etc.) XII.55 (लाक अस्य सूददोहस etc.) and XII.56 (इन्द्रं विश्वाड अवीवृधन् etc.). The priests are instructed hereby to repeat these verses after pronouncing the verse XIII.58. For this reason, Svāmī Dayānanda has not commented on these three words in his commentary on XIII.58 in the Yajurveda, arguing that these addenda have no sanction in the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa. They did not constitute the part of the verse during the days of the Satapatha*.

अत्र लोकं ता इन्द्रम् इति द्वादशाध्यायस्थानां (54-56) त्रयाणां मंत्राणां प्रतीकानि सूत्र-व्याख्यानं दृष्ट्वा केनचिदुद्धृतानि । शतपये अव्याख्यातत्वात् अत्र न गृह्यन्ते । — Dayānanda.

- 2. लोकं (XII.54),ता (XII.55),इन्द्रम् (XII.56) these addenda (प्रतीक) also occur at the close of verses XIV.10 (अनड्वान् वयः etc.), XIV. 22 (यन्त्री राह् यन्त्र्यित etc.) and XIV.31 (नवविध्शत्यां इत्युवत etc.).
- 3. The verse XXXII.2 runs as follows in the present Yajurveda mādhyandina Samhitā:

न तस्य प्रतिमाऽअस्ति यस्य नाम महद्यशः। हिरण्यगर्म इत्येष मा मा हिर्ध्सीदित्येषा यस्मान्नजातऽइत्येषः।

Here the Symbolic addenda are (1) XXV.10-13; हिरण्यगर्भः सम्यर्तताग्रे (XXV.10); यः प्राणतो (XXV.11); यस्येमे हिमवन्तो (XXV.12) and यङआत्मदा बलदा (XXV.13) in the first instance, followed by the verse मा मा हिर्ध्सीत् (XII.102), and यस्मान्न जातः (VIII.36) ar इन्द्रश्य सप्ताइ वरुणस्य राजा (VIII. 37).

4. We have the verse XXXII.7 as follow-

यं क्रन्दसीऽअवसा तस्तभानेऽअभ्यैक्षेतां मनसा रेजमाने ।

*Mahīdhara explains the utility of these verses in the yajāa karma as follows:

लोकंप्रणा दक्षिणाश्चे सादध्यामध्यात् । आत्मनो दक्षिणकोणादारभ्यामध्यात् अधि स्वयमातृष्णा पर्यन्तं लोकंप्रणा उपदधाति तासां लोकंप्रणा उपदधाति तासां लोकं प्रणेत्यिममन्त्रणम् । ता अस्येति लूददोहःसंज्ञमंत्रेणाधिवदनम् स्पृष्ट्वा पठनिमित सूत्रार्थः । "मध्ये पुरीषं निवपति पूर्ववत्" (का० 17.6.9) । स्वयमातृष्णोपरीन्द्रं विश्वेति मंत्रेण मृत्सेपः । तिस्र ऋचः प्रतीकोक्ताः पूर्वमुक्तत्वात् ।

यज्ञांध सूरऽउदितो निभाति करनै देवाय छविषा विधेम ॥ आगो ह यद् बृहतीर्यांभ्यदायः॥

In this the symbolic addenda (प्रतीक) are आपो ह यद् बृहतीः (XXVII.25) and यश्चिदायो महिना etc. (XXVII.26); these two verses are to be repeated with due vin.yoga, The words आपो ह यद् बृहतीयिश्चिदाय do not constitute the main-verse.

5. The verse XXXIII.21 reads in the present Samhitā as follows:

अासुते सिञ्चा श्रियश्र्रोदस्योर्गंधश्रियम् । रसा दधीत चृषभम् ॥ तं प्रत्नथा । अयं वेनः॥

In this, the symbolic addenda नं प्रत्नया and अयं येनः, refer to the verses VII.12 and VII.16. In fact this verse आसुते सिश्चत श्रियम् has been taken from the Rgveda VIII.72.13, free from the symbolic addenda नं प्रत्नियाज्यं वेनः।

6. We have the verse XXXIII.27 as follows:

कुतस्त्वमिन्द्र माहिनः सन्नेको यासि सत्पते किं तऽइत्या । सं पृच्छते समराणः शुभानैर्वोचेस्तन्नो हरियो यत्तेऽअस्मे ॥ मर्हो२ ऽइन्द्रो यऽजोजसा कदा चन स्तरीरसि कदा चन प्रयुच्छसि ॥

Here the symbolic addenda represent the pronouncement of three verses of which the pratikas are महाँ २ इन्द्रो यह ओजसा (VII.40), कदा चन स्तरीरिस (VII.2) and कदा चन प्रयुच्छिस (VIII.3).

The verse महिर इहन्द्रो (VII.40) is taken from the Rgveda VIII.6.1, the verse कदा चन स्तरीरिस and कदा चन प्रयुच्छित constitute the Valakhilya (VIII.51.7; 52.7)—the two verses of the Yajuh are fused into one verse of the Valkhilya VIII.52.7. The verse कुतस्त्विमन्द्र नाहिनः itself occurs in the Rgveda as I.165.3, free from addenda.

7. The verse XXXIII.33 reads as follows:

दैष्यावष्यर्थ्ऽआगत्राध् रथेन सूर्यत्वचा । मध्या यद्मश्वसमञ्जाये । तं प्रत्नथा । अयं येनः । चित्रं देवानाम् ॥

Whilst the first XXXIII.21 (जासुते सिश्चत) had two addenda

(तं प्रत्नथा VII.12, and अयं पेनः VII.16), this verse has three addenda त प्रत्नथा (VII.12), अयं पेनः (VII.16) and चित्रं देवानां (VII.42). These three verses are to be recited after completing the main verse ending at पथ्या यहां तमजाथे. Mahīdhara writes in this connection : तं प्रत्यथा (VII.12), अयं पेनः (VII.16) चित्रं देवानां (VII.42) तिसः प्रतीकोक्ताः। आद्ये हे शुक्रमन्थि पुरोहचौ तृतीयाग्यणस्य, the first two are of Sukramanthin (शुक्रमन्थिन) and Puroruc (पुरोहच) and the third of Agrayana (आग्यण)।

8. Again in the verse XXXIII.47, we have as many as six symbolic addenda:

अधि न इन्द्रेषां विष्णां सजात्यानाम् । इता मरुतोऽअश्विना । तं प्रत्नथा । अयं वेनः । ये देवासः, ाा न ऽइडामिः । विश्वेमिः सोम्यं मधु । ओमासश्चर्षणीधृतः ॥

After pronouncing the verse आध न... अश्विमा (taken from the Rgveda VIII.83.7), the six mantras to be recited are with the pratīka (symbolic addenda) as follows: तं प्रत्नथा (VII.12), अपं वेनः (VII.16), ये देवासः (VII.19), आ नऽइडाभिः (XXXIII.34), विश्वैभिः सीम्यं मपु (XXXIII.10), ओगासश्चर्यणी धृतः (VII.33).

9. We have another verse XXXIII.58, reproduced from the Rgveda I.3.3 with two addenda:

दसा युवाकवः सुता नासत्या वृक्तवर्हिषः। आ यातधुरुद्रवर्तनी । तं प्रत्नया। अयं घेनः॥

The addenda are तंत्रत्वया (VII.12) and अयं वेनः (VII.16) as in several others mentioned above.

The same addenda are with verse XXXIII.73

दैव्यावध्वर्यू आ गत्र १ रथेन सूर्यत्वचा । मध्वा यज्ञं समजाये । तं प्रत्नथा । अये बेनः ॥

The symbolic addenda are तं प्रत्यया (VII.12) and अयं वेनः (VII.16).

10. The last verse of the same Chapter (XXXIII.97) has four addenda:

अस्पेदिन्द्रो वावृषे वृष्ण्यंछं शवो मदे तुतस्य विष्णवि ।

अद्या तमस्य महिमानमायवोऽनुष्टुवन्ति पूर्वया ॥ इमाऽ उ त्वा । यस्यायम् । अयक्षेत्रहस्रम् । ऊर्घ्वऽऊ पु णः ॥

The principal verse is taken from the Rgveda VIII.3.8 and the addenda are इमाडउत्वा (XXXIII.81), यस्यायम् (XXXIII.82), अयं सहस्रम् (XXXIII.83), and ऊर्घ्वंडऊ पु णः (XI.42) : इमाडउत्वा o is taken from the Rgveda VIII.3.3; यस्यायं विश्व o from the Valakhilya (VIII.51.9); अयं सहस्रम् from the Rgveda VIII.3.4 and ऊर्घ्वंडऊ पु णः from the Rgveda I.36.13.

11. The last verse 58 of Chapter XXXIV also has four symbolic addenda:

ब्रह्मणस्पते त्वमस्य यन्ता सूक्तस्य बोधि तनयं च जिन्व । विश्वं तद् भद्रं यदवन्ति देवा बृहद् वदेम विदये सुवीराः॥ यङ्मा विश्वा । विश्वकम्मा । यो नः पिता । अन्नपतेऽन्नस्य नो देहि ॥

The verse itself is taken from the Rgveda II.23.19 and the pratikas are य इमा विश्वा (XVII.17), विश्वकम्मा (XVII.26), यो नः पिता (XVII.27) and अन्नपते इनस्य (XI.83). The first three of them occur in the Rgveda as या इमा विश्वा (X.81.1), विश्वकर्मा (X.81.6), यो नः पिता (X.82.3).

THE PADA-PĀTHA OF THE MĀDHYANDINA SAMHITĀ

The published editions of Uvața and Mahīdhara's commentaries on the Sukla Yajurveda Samhitā give only the samhitā pāṭha (संहिता पाठ) of the Yajurveda, but not the pada pāṭha (पद पाठ), in which the words compounded by the rules of sandhi are split up into the components, and the accents are also given to the syllables, along with a few more traditional disciplines as prescribed by the prātišākhyas. The Rk-Prātišākhya is more elaborate than the Yajuḥ-Prātišākhya, and both of them have their own pecularities and special features.

How does the samhita patha differ from the padapatha is illustrated below:

Samhitā pātha-

कृष्णौं इत्याखरेष्ठो इनमें त्वा जुष्ट् प्रोक्षामि (1)

(Yv. II.1)

Pada-Pātha

कृष्णः । असि । आखरेष्ठः । आखरेस्य ऽइत्याखरे स्यः । अग्नये त्वा । जुष्टेम् । प्र । उक्षामि ॥ वेदिः । असि । वर्ष्टिषे । त्वा । जुष्टाम् । प्र । उक्षामि । वर्षिः । असि । खुग्म्य ऽइति खुक् म्यः । त्वा । जुष्टेम् । प्र । उक्षामि ॥

Svāmī Dayānanda has given the pada-pāṭha in his commentary on the Yajurveda, which is very much the same as given by traditional manuscripts. With the help of several manuscripts, Yādhiṣṭhira Mīmāṁsaka has very ably edited the Mādhyandina-Samhitāyāh Padapāṭhah (1971, published by Ram Lai Kapur Trust, Bahalgarh, Sonipat, Haryana, one script from Ajmer, three from the Bhandarkar Oriental Research Institute, Poona, three from Vārāṇaseya Sanskrit Viśva-Vidyālaya, Sarasvati Bhavan, and one from the Viśveśvarānanda Research Institute, Hoshiarpur). The learned editor has also taken help from the printed editions of the pada-pāṭha (one from Gaurish Press, Varanasi, and one from the Tatva-vivechak Press, Bombay), and from Dayānanda's pada-pāṭha as given in his Commentary on the Yajurveda.

Introduction 83

Difference between the Rk Padapāṭha and the Yajuḥ Padapāṭha

Normally, the padapāṭha depends on the breaking of the sandhis of the samhitā pāṭha, and in that respect, there should not be any difference between the padapāṭhas of the two Samhitās, the Rk and the Yajuḥ. The way of recitations of the two Samhitās differ in essential features, and yet the placings of the udāttas, anudāttas and svaritas on the syllables is the same. The basic difference in the padapāṭhas are in respect to the use of avagraha (अवग्रह), which we shall illustrate below, by taking the examples of verses, which occur in both the Samhitās, the Rk and the Yajuḥ. Avagraha is designated by a sign (5), placed between two conjoining terms.

Avagrhyamāṇa Pada, अवगृह्यमाण पद — e.g. Purohitam, पुरोहितम्
Sāvagraha Pada, सावग्रह पद - पुरः इहितम् (Rv. I.1.1)

Avagrhyamāṇa Pada, त्रिषप्ताः

Sāvagraha Pada, त्रिङसप्ताः (Av. I.1.1)

The following verse occurs in the Rgveda and the Yajurveda both (anudāttas and svaritas are exactly at the same places):

स न इन्द्रांय यज्यवे वंरुणाय मुरुद्भ्यः । वरिवोवित्परि सर्व ॥ (Rv. IX.61.12; Yv. XXV 1.17)

The avagrhyamāṇa padas in this verse are मन्द्रम्यः and विरवोबित्, which on avagraha - pravacana become the sāvagraha padas मन्त्sम्यः and विरवः इवित्.

Clearing the sandhis, we have (i.e. after the inter-sandhi viccheda):

सः। नः । इन्द्राय । यज्यवे । वरुणाय । महद्भ्यः । वरिवोवित् । परि । स्रव ॥

Now the Rk padapātha, using the process of avagraha – pravacana, becomes:

तः । नः । इन्द्रायः । यज्यवे । वर्तणायः । मृहत् ६म्यः । व्यक्तिः ६वित् । परि । सन् ॥

Sāvagraha padapāṭha is also followed by the School of the Atharvaveda. For example, we have the following verse of the Atharva common with the Rk.

आपो हि च्छा भयो मुबस्ता ने ऊर्जे देवातन । महे रणाय चक्षरि । (Av. I.5.1; Rv. X.9.1)

The accents on the samhitā pāṭhas in the two Vedas are exactly the same, and the avagṛhyamāṇa pada in this verse is मयोभुवः, which after the avagṛaha - pravacana would give the sāvagṛaha-padas मयः अभुवः, and now the pada-pāṭha of this verse would be:

आर्षः । हि । स्य । मयः ६मुवः । ताः । नः । कुर्जे । द्यातन । महे । रणीय । चल्लति ॥

In the Yajurveda, instead of avagraha-pravacana (i.e. instead of using the avagraha sign (s) between root term (मयः) and the particle (मुवः), or root-term महत् and the particle भ्यः, we use the iti (इति) term, and the pada-pāṭhas are represented as follows:—

मयोमुवः becomes मुयोमुव इहित मयः मुवः। महद्भ्यः becomes मुहद्भ्य इहित महत् भ्यः। वरिवोवित् becomes वरिवोविदिति वरिवः वित्।

The pada-pāṭhas of the verses quoted above in the "iti"—style (इति) are given below (शुक्त-कृष्ण यनुः पदपाठेषु अवगृह्यमाणं पदम् "इति" ना पूर्व निर्दिश्य पश्चादवगृह्यते)। —Yudhiṣṭhira Mīmāmsaka.

सः । नः । इत्तरि । यत्यवि । यसेणाय । मुसद्ध्युङ्कित मुसत् स्यः ॥ वरिजीविद्यति करिवः वित् । परि । सव । (Yv. XXVI.6)

आर्पः। हि । स्य । मयो मुव ६६ति मयः । भुवः। ताः। नः। ऊर्जे । दधातनः। महे । ग्णायः। चक्षं से ॥ (Yv. XI.50).

What is the Pragrhya Category? — Pāṇini in his Aṣṭādhyāyī, an immortal treatise on the Vedic and Sanskrit grammars, gives a few sūtras to illustrate PRAGRHYAM (पग्छम्): (1) ईदूरेद् द्वियचनं प्रगृह्यम् (I.1.11). Such terms in dual number as end in ईत् = ई; उज्त् = ऊ and एत् = ए are known as pragrhya; e.g. अन्तो, agnī (dual of agniḥ, अन्निः); vāyū बायू (dual of vāyuḥ, वायुः); माले, māle, (dual of mālā); बाहू (Rv. X.121.4); जिगल् (X.120.7). In the pada-pāṭha in the Rgveda, they are expressed as अन्ती इति, बायू इति, बाहू इति and so on (i.e. followed by the word iti (इति).

- 2. अदमो मात् (1.1.12) when अदत् is declined, and the term ends with ई, ऊ or ए after म. then such words are also pragrhya, e.g. अमी अत्र, अमी आसते, अमू अत्र, अमू आसते (there is no form of अदत् ending in ए, and hence in the Rgvedic pada-pāṭha, we shall have अमी इति, अमू इति।
- (3) शे (I.1.13) whenever शे is introduced in the place of सुप, we have a term of pragrhya category, e.g. अस्मे (as in अस्मे इन्द्राबृहत्पती, (Rv. IV.49.4). In the Reyvedic pada-pāṭha, अस्मे would be expressed as अस्मे इति (see Rv. X.24.1, अस्मे रिप नि); Similarly, we shall have पुण्ने इति; त्वे इति; में इति.
- (4)(a) निपात एकाजनाङ् (I.1.14) The lone अच् nipāta i.e. अ, इ and उ) is also of pragrhya category, with the exception of आङ, for e.g. अ अपेहि (hush, get away), अ अपक्राम, इ इन्द्रं पश्य (Oh, see Indra), उ उत्तिष्ठ (well, get up).

In such cases, the sandhi-rule (जकः सवर्णे दीर्घः) is not imposed, i.e. अ + अपेंह does not become आपेहि, nor उ + उत्तिष्ठ become जतिष्ठ.

(b) Similarly, we have a sūtra ओत् (I.1.15) which means that the nipāta ending with ओ is also pragṛḥya, and as pragṛḥya the sandhi rule (एचोऽयवायावः) is not applied, i.e., आहो + इति, उताहो + इति (or thus), ना + इदानीं (not now), अयो + इति (after this), आहो + अध्ना (oh, now).

(c) We have a sūtra, उञ्ज (I.1.17) i.e. उञ् is also known as pragrhya; and this becomes ज (according to Śakalya), उ + इति remains उ + इति (the sandhi rule इको यणिच, is not applicable); (according to other authorities, the sandhi rule can be applied to give ज + इति = चिति; again replacing उ with ज, it becomes ज इति. (Rv. X. 2.3)

We shall give a few illustrations of the samhitā pāṭha and the pada-pāṭha from the Rgveda, Book IX. involving pragṛhya terms.

Rgveda, Book IX

Samhita Patha		Pada-Patha
1. इन्दों त्वे न आशसः।	(1.5)	इन्दो इति स्वे इति । नः। आशसः।
2. गिरस्त इन्द ओजसा।	(2.7)	गिरः । ते । इन्दो इति । औजसा ।
3. तं त्वा मदाय घृष्वय		तम् । त्वा । मदाय । घृष्वये । ऊँ इति ।

7. पवित्रे सोमो अक्षाः।	(18.1)	पवित्रे । सोमः । अक्षारिति ।

The pragrhya terms are expressed with the term stating in the pada-pāṭhas of the Rgveda, as well as in the padapāṭhas of the Sāma and the Atharvaveda; in the Taittirīya and the Maitrāyaṇa Śākhās also;

वायो इति, Atharva, VI.68.1. त्ये इति, Sāmaveda. I.1.1.13. अस्मे इति, Sāmaveda, 1.2.1.3. विष्णो इति, Taittirīya, I.1.3; Mait. Saṁhitā I.1.3.

The style of expressing the pada pāṭha of the pragṛhya class in the Yajurveda is different in the respect that the pragṛhya term is repeated again after writing it. Thus विष्णो becomes विष्णो इति विष्णो। (Yv. I.4)

The General Principles of the pada-pātha as in the Mādhyandina Samhitā

1. The simple cases, where the sandhis of the Samhitā-pāṭha are cleared and the accents given:

Samhitā-pāṭha — इपे त्वोजें त्वां वायवं स्य । (I.1)
$$Pada-paṭha = -$$
 इपे । त्वा । जर्जें । त्वा । वायवं । स्य ।

2. Wherever we have a term of the pragrhya category according to the rules of grammar (Pāṇini, I.1.11-17), in the padapāṭha, we use the term sta and then repeat the pragrhya term:

(a) Samhitā-pāṭha — अस्मे रमस्वास्मे ते बन्धुस्त्वे रायो मे रायः।
(IV.22)

Pada-pāṭha — अस्मेऽइत्यस्मे। रमस्व। अस्मे इत्यस्मे।
ते। बन्धुं। त्वेऽइति त्वे। रायः। मेंऽइति मे। रायः।

- 3. In the pada (or term where) avagraha (अवग्रह, s) is to be shown, in that case the samhitā-pada is put as such, followed by the term and then the separation is accomplished.
  - (a) Samhitā-pāṭha —
    श्रेष्ठेतमाय कर्मणे। (1.1)
    Pada-pāṭha —
    श्रेष्ठेतमायेति श्रेष्ठे तमाय। कर्मणे।
  - (b) Samhitā-pāṭḥa प्रजावतीरनर्मावा। (1.1)

Pada-pātha —

प्रजावतिरितिप्रजा वंतीः । अनुमीवाः ।

4. Where pragrhyatva and avagrahatva both are to be shown, in that case the term इति is introduced at the end of the former term, then pragrhyatva is shown, and ओ उउति avagraha (separation) is shown:

(b) Samhitā-pāṭḥa—
इपमूर्जश्शतकतो (III.49)

Pada-pāṭḥa —
इपम् । जर्जम् । शतक्रतो ऽइति शत क्रतो ।

5. When in the samhitā-pāṭha, in the avagṛhya portion, if we have in the text an anomalous (छान्दस) dīrgha, or anomalous म, स or म, in that case, at first, we place the anomalous reading as such, and then we remove the anomaly and introduce the term इति; and perform the avagraha (separation).

We give one illustration of each of the four anomalies:

- (i) of dirghatva, (ii) of प, (iii) of स and (iv) of ज.
- (a) Dīrghatva Samhitā-pāṭḥa अग्नैंडदब्धायोडशीतम पाहि । (II. 20)

  Pada-pāṭḥa अग्नै । अदब्धायोडइत्यंदब्ध आयः । अशीतम ।
  अशितमेत्यशि तम । पाहि ।

(b)प् to be modified to स्
Samhitā-pāṭha — दक्षिणामा रोह त्रिप्दुप्

- 6. Sometime a term is not avagrhyamāṇa (i.e. it is not to be broken into parts), and it has the anomalous (छान्दर्स) dīrghatva, or anomalous प् च or च in such a case, first it is to be written as such in the pada-pāṭha and then the anomaly is removed क्रिक्न added and repeated; For example:
  - (a) Anomalous dīrghatva (long vowel for short) Samhitā-pāṭha हिवः शंभीप्व सुशर्मि श्रमीप्व । (1.15)

    Pada-pāṭha हिवः । श्रमीप्व । श्रमिप्वेति शमिष्व ।
  - (b) Anomalous प् i.e. प् has been used for स्.

    Samhitā-pāṭha सुपुवुर्गदेम्। (XX.63)

    Pada-pāṭha सुपुवुः। सुसुवुरिति सुसुवुः। मदेम्।
  - (c) Anomalous ण्, i.e. ण् has been used for न्. Samhitā-pāṭha : त्रिणवत्रयस्त्रिध्शौ । (X.14). Pada-pāṭha : त्रिणव त्रयस्त्रिध्शौ । त्रिनवस्त्रिंशाविति त्रिनवत्र्यस्त्रिध्शौ ।
- 7. Unless there is a very special reason, ordinarily, in the  $pada-p\bar{a}tha$ , the accents of the original patha are maintained.

इपे । त्वा । ऊर्जे । त्वा । वायवं । स्य ।

8. Whenever, the term of the samhitā-pāṭha with an imposed इति added to it is again repeated, all the three terms abide by the rules of accent and sandhi of the samhitā-pāṭha.

विष्णो ऽइति विष्णो । (I.4) अस्मे ऽइत्यस्मे । (IV. 22: 26)

9. Whenever in the samhita-patha, avagraha is to be shown, the latter part of the avagraha term bears the same accent as of the samhitā-pāṭha.

- (a) Samhitā-pāṭha श्रेष्ठंतमाय। (I.1)
  Pada-pāṭha श्रेष्ठंतमायेतिश्रेष्ठं तमाय।
- (b) Samhitā-pāṭha प्रजावतीः।
  Pada-pāṭha प्रजावतीरितिं प्रजा वंतीः।

PHONETIC AND SCRIPT PECULIARITIES OF THE YAJURVEDA SCHOOL

The pronouncement of several consonants in the Mādhyandina Saṁhitā of the Yajurveda differs from the pronouncement in the other Saṁhitās, and the corresponding difference we have in writing or inscribing these texts. A similar type of difference we have in the pada-pāṭhas also. We shall indicate here in brief these differences. The use of dvitva (doubling) of certain consonants like  $\pi$  (j),  $\pi$  (v),  $\pi$  (p),  $\pi$  (t) before  $\pi$  (th),  $\pi$  (m),  $\pi$  (k), i.e.  $\pi$  becomes  $\pi$ ;  $\pi$  becomes  $\pi$ .

Ordinary Samhita-patha -

इषे त्वोर्जे त्वा वायव स्य देवो वः सविता प्रार्पयतु श्रेष्ठतमाय कर्मण, आप्यायध्वमध्न्या इन्द्राय भागं प्रजावतीरनमीवा अयस्मा मा व स्तेन ईशत माघशश्च्तो धुवा अस्मिन् गोपतौ स्यात बह्वीर्यजमानस्य पशून्यादि ।

(Yv. I.1)

With doubling of several consonants -

इषेत्त्वोर्जेत्त्वाव्वायवस्य देवो व्यः सविताष्प्रापर्ययतु श्त्रेष्ट्ठ-तमाय कर्म्मणऽआप्ययाय द्ष्वमग्ध्न्याऽइन्द्रायमागम्प्रजावतीरनमीवाऽअयक्क्पाव्वस्तेन ईशत माघश्रश्तोद्धुवा अस्म्मिन् गोपतौ स्यात बह्व्वीर्य्यजमानस्य पशून्याहि ॥

The corresponding changed Pada-Patha is as follows:

इषे । त्वा । ऊर्जे । त्वा । व्वायवः । स्य । देवः । व्वः । सविता । प्र । अर्प्यतु । श्रेष्ट्ठतमायेति श्श्रेष्ट्ठ तमाय । कर्मणे । आ । प्यायद्ष्यम् । अग्घ्याः । इन्द्राय । मागम् । प्रजावतीरितिष्रजा व्यतीः । अनमीवाः । अयक्कमाः । मा । व्वः ! स्तेनः । ईगत । मा । अधराष्ट्रसङ्ख्या श्रष्ट्रसः । धुवाः । अस्मिम् । गोपतावितिमो-पतौ । स्यात । बहुव्यीः । यजभानस्य । पशून् । पाठि ॥

The Katyayana Pratisakhya has given the general rule as follows:

रेफहकारोत्तरवर्तिनां व्यञ्जनानाम्, अनन्यराणां च उत्तराणां यराम्, यणः पराणां मयाम्, मयः पराणां वा यणाम्, शरं पराणां खयाम्, खयः पराणां वा शरां, अन्येपां च वर्णानां यथालक्षणं द्वित्वं विलिख्यते ॥

Such consonants as have र and ह preceding, or following, such य as have अच् (अ, इ, उ, ऋ, लू, ए, ओ, ऐ, ओ) following, and अनच् (non-अच्), i.e. consonants preceding, such म's as follow यण् (य, च, र, ल्), such म's as follow य, such ख's as follow शर् (श, प, च्), such शर (श, प, च्) as follow ख's— in such cases, we have dvitva or doubling.

Two or three types of anusvāra in the Mādhyandina Samhitā

With the exception of रेफ and ऊष्म, the anusvāra following the other consonants assumes the savarņa (सवर्ग) form, i.e. the anusvāra (m) becomes इ before कवर्ग (k, kh, g and gh); it becomes ज before च वर्ग (c, ch, j, and jh); it becomes ण (n) before ट्वर्ग (t, th, d, dh); it becomes ज् (n) before तवर्ग (t, th, d and dh); and it becomes ज् (m) before पवर्ग (p, ph, b and bh):

पंक = पङ्क; पंच = पञ्च; कंटक = कण्टक; खंड = खण्ड; अंत = अन्त; अंव = अम्ब; दंम = दम्म etc., (माध्यन्दिन सिंहतापाठेऽनुस्वारस्य रेफोप्यवर्ज सर्वत्रैव परसवर्णत्व नित्यं मवति ।)

But anusvāra is not savarna before the and जम consonants. In the Yajurveda, these anusvāras are depicted by special symbols and the samong the two, is dīrgha (or long one) and the is hrasva (or short one).

The dirgha Symbol

The anusvāra, appended to a hrasva (or short vowel) and followed by ζ, π, μ, and ξ is represented by dīrgha ## symbol () just as :

- (i) यज्ञंसुकृतम् is written as यज्ञ 'सुकृतम् ज् has short vowel ज and hence the dīrghā (anusvāra is followed by ज्, an ūṣma varna).
- (ii) तसुजेषागयम् is written as स् तृजेषामयन्—here again the anus- vāra is on hrasva vowel, अ of स, and hence dīrgha anus- vāra(*).
- (iii) प्रयुजं त्वाहा = प्रयुज ्त्वाहा (anusvāra is followed by च and preceded by hrasva vowel ज of ज).
- (iv) (a) तरराण = सर्राय (anusvāra is followed by रेफ) and is preceded by a hrasva अ of स).
  - (b) तं रक्षस्व = त ्रक्षस्व
- (v) मैनं हिंसी: = मैन ् हि ्सी (the ūṣmas which follow the anus-vāra are ह and स्, and are preceded by the hrasva vowels अ of न and इ of हि).
- (vi) उज्जैपं सविता = उज्जैप ् सविता।
- (vii) भारं हरन्निव = भार ्हरन्निव।
- (viii) अस्मध्यं शिवः == अस्मध्य ्रैशिवः।
  - (ix) (a) ट्रंहन्ताम् = ह्र ्हन्ताम्; (b) सिह्यसि = सि ् ह्यसि ।
  - (X) विष्णुं सूर्यम् = विष्ण् ् सूर्यम् ।

The hrasva Symbol

The anusvāra, appended to a dīrgha svara (or long vowel) followed by द and म, म, म and म is represented in script by a short symbol म, for which we shall quote a few examples from the Mādhyandina Yajuḥ Samhitā. It should be emphasized here that both the dīrgha (तीर्च, ) and hrasva (इन्द, म) symbols are merely for script in the literature of the Yajurveda School (Kṛṣṇa and Śukla, both), but there is no distinction in their pronouncements, and for that matter, they are merely just as any other anusvāra in the most natural form. According to the usage, it is not necessary to indicate a difference between the dīrgha (तीर्च) and hrasva (१३) before a रेफ and ūṣma (म, म, म and म). Many of the scribes indiscriminately and invariably use only one symbol & We shall now illustrate the hrasva symbol (appended to a dīrgha vowel)

- (ii) तेषां सहस्रयोजनेव = तेषाध्सहस्रयोजनेव ।
- (iii) आयूपि पवस आ = आयूश्पि पवस आ।
- (iv) ऋषीणां स्तुतेन = ऋषीणाध्स्तुतेन ।

This also needs emphasisation that these two script symbols of anusvāra are only used in writing the samhitā-pātha but never in the pada-pāthas.

A Third Obsolete Symbol

Besides the hrasva (iz) and dīrgha( ), there was a third guru symbol also, now nowhere found. We find its mention in the following lines of the Pratiśākhya Pratijnā-Parišiṣṭa:

तस्य त्रैविध्यमाख्यातं ह्रस्व-दीर्घ-गुरु-भेदैः। दीर्घात् परो ह्रस्वो ह्रस्वात् परो दीर्घो गुरो परो गुरुः॥ (312)

In fact, between dirgha and guru, there is no difference at all, as has been clarified by Anantabhatta, a commentator:

वस्तुतस्तु गुर्न्दीर्घयौर्मेदो नास्ति, तथाप्युपाधि भेदाद् भेदो मन्तव्यः। अस्ति चात्रोपाधिः। संज्ञाभेदो लिपि भेदश्चः। तृतीयस्त्रिवदानीं प्रायशः, परिभष्टः, तथापि प्राचीन सम्प्रदायानुरोधाज्ज्ञायते।

Some of  $veda-p\bar{a}th\bar{i}s$ , erroneously, (may be even supported by a tradition) differently pronounce the anusvāra followed by  $\zeta$ ,  $\eta$ , and  $\eta$  by a sound. The symbol, in fact, is meant for script only, and not for pronouncement.

In script, the symbols & or (only mostly one symbol &) are used in the Sulba Sūtras of the Yajuh school (White as well as Black), for we have —

- (i) दीर्घचतुरस्र श्ंसमचतुरस्रं चिकीर्पश्ंस्तिर्यङ्मानींकरणीं कृत्वा ॰ (Baudhāyana Sūtra 54)
- (ii) वेद्यक्षसावुत्रपति (Āpastamba, Kāṇḍa IV, Sūtra 12)

These symbols have also been used in the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa. The Rk, the Sāma and Atharva Saṁhitās do not use them.

Three modes of Yakara,y (4)

In the samhitā-pāṭha, and the pada-pāṭhas, we have three modes of (a) in script with finer shades of differentiation in pronouncement too. These details have been given in the Prātišākhyas and I would briefly indicate it.

According to the Madhyandina School, we have three modes of yakara, y, (य): (i) long or guru, गुरु, (ii) short or laghu, लघु and (iii) shorter, laghutara, लघुतर.

Long Yakāra— The long or guru yakāra is written usually as ब i.e. with a diagonal stroke in the body of य. It is written or scribed (a) in the beginning of a pāda (पाद, or a quarter of the metre), (b) in the beginning of a pada (पद or term), (c) when r (repha र), h (ह), y (य), r (ऋ) occur mid between in a compound syllable (पादादिः, पदादिः, रेफहयऋ वर्णे संयुक्त मध्यगः; आमेडने पूर्वपदादिश्च यो यकारः स गुहः स्मयिते).

Illustrations — 1. Pādādi, पादादि – In the samhitā-pāṭha, in the beginning of a quarter or pāda—

यक्षेन यक्षमयजन्त (XXX 1.16), the quarter starts with the word यक्षेन, of which the first letter is य, so it becomes व, guru or long, and hence

बज्ञेन यज्ञमयजन्त

2. Padādi, — In the beginning of a term, but not, if y, q, is in the middle of the term —

यज्ञमयजन्त

(XXX 1.16)

Here the first य is guru and not the middle one. of अयजन्त.

- 3. Combined with र (repha or r) सूर्याः would be scribed as सूर्व्यः of the double y's, the first one following repha, र is guru not the second one.
  - 4. Combined with ₹ (hakāra, h)—

गेह्याय becomes गेह्याय. (XVI.44)

 Combined with य (yakāra, y)— वाय्यालपम् becomes पाब्यालपम्. (XIX. 24)

6. Combined with ऋ (ṛkara, ṛ)
सामान्यगिमः becomes सामान्यगिमः. (XXIX. 12)

7. आग्रेडने पूर्वस्य यत्र यत्र becomes यत्रयत्र. (XXIX. 43)

We have similar long yakāras in the pada pāṭha also.

(1) यदादी-वज्ञेन । वज्ञम् (XXXI.16)

(2) Combined with repha, r र-तूर्ब (III. 9)

(3) Combined with hakāra, (h). गेहवाय (XVI. 44)

(4) Combined with yakara (y). धाव्याखपमिति धाव्या खपम

(XIX. 24; Pada-pātha XIX. 22)

(5) In the case of avagraha, not the former but the latter one (अवग्रहे परमागादिः)

देवयजनमितिदेव वजनम्

(6) In the amredita, both of them are gurus (पदादावगृहे च) यत्र यत्रेतियत्र कत्र (XXIX. 43)

Short Yakāra — The usual current way of writing  $\pi_i y_i$ , is the laghu or short yakāra. The rest of the yakāras (not covered under the rules of guru-yakāras) are usually short yakāras. The illustrations of such y's are given here.

(i) यकार(occuring only in the middle of the term (पद मध्यगः केवलः) — देवयजनम् (IV.1)

Here a is short yakara.

(ii) Combined with letters other than रफ, r.

रेवान्यो॰ (III.29)

(iii) the य which occurs after the fifth letter of a varga (पंचमात्पर: पदादिः):

रेवान्यो॰ (III.29)

(iv) y (य) occuring in the middle of a quarter or pada, but after an upasarga (prefix) is short — व्यियत् (XXXIV.34); अन्यं ० (XXXIII.80)

(v) आम्रेडन उत्तरस्य-the latter one in āmreḍana is short y-षत्रयत्र (XXIX.43)

We have similarly short yakāra in the pada-pāṭhas. If y (च) occurs in the middle of the term and is not the guru-yakāra, then it is the short or laghu yakāra. For examples,

(i) देवयजनिमिति देव यजनम्। (IV.1) y, य, occuring after iti, इति, in the pada-pāṭha is also laghu or short —

यज्ञपतिरिति यज्ञ पतिः (I.2)

In some of the old manuscripts, the  $laghu\ yak\bar{a}ra$  is designated by a dot placed at the bottom of  $\tau$  i.e.  $\tau$ -

देवयजनिमति देव यजनम् (IV.1)

Laghutara or Shorter Yakāra — In case we have, as a result of sandhi (euphony), a yakāra at the end of the term, like जर् – आर्, it is called shorter or laghutara yakāra; but this type of yakāra has now become obsolete.

Three modes of Vakāra

Just like y ( $\overline{q}$ ), we have three modes of v ( $\overline{q}$ ) also in the samhita-patha and the pada-patha of the Yajurveda, (i) the long or guru vakara, (ii) the short or laghu vakara, and (iii) the shorter or laghutara vakara.

Guru or Long Vakāra — The vakāra, which occurs in the beginning of term is guru-vakāra and it is expressed in writing by just doubling it, = - वायवस्य becomes व्वायवस्य (1.1).

Laghu or Short Vakāra — In writing, the laghu vakāra, is expressed in its unmodified form, i.e. a means laghu or short vakāra. Of all the v's, which is laghu or short, may be indicated thus:

- (i) One occuring in the middle of a term (पदमध्यगः) प्रजावतीः (I,1)
- (ii) Used in the sense of a second person (युष्पदादेशः) देवो वः (I.1); या वाङ्कशा (VII.11)
- (iii) Va as nipāta. For example বা as nipāta বারী বা (IX.7); ন বাড়ড (XXIII.16)
- (iv) वा in the sense of alternative (or vikalpa) मित्रावरुणनेत्रा वा मरुन्नेत्रा वा (IX.36)

Laghutara Vakāra — It occurs at the end of terms as a result of sandhi, as अव्-आव्

वायू + ऋतस्पते = वायवृतस्पते (XXVII.34) here व् of वृ is laghutara or shorter.

(See Aṣṭādhyāyī, व्योर्लघु प्रयत्नतरः शाकटायनस्यैव -VIII.3.18) Here are given several illustrations of these long and short vakāras from the pada-pāṭha also -

Long — व्यायवः। व्यिष्णोः। व्यः। व्योम् देववीतयऽइतिदेव। व्यीतये। (I.15) व्यतपतऽइतिव्यत पते। (1.5)

Short — In the pada-pāṭha, both the vakāras (one occuring in the middle of the term and also the one following the term iti, इति) are laghu or short —

पदमध्यग - देवयजनिमति देव यजनम् (IV.1)

Following iti - व्यव्याध्या (1.4) व्यतपत ५ इति वा पते (1.5)

Shorter—as Vakāra of अव् and आव्, arising out of a sandhi—

त्रिनव त्रयस्त्रिंशाविति त्रिनव त्रयस्त्रिंशौ
(here व् in त्रिंशाविति is shorter or laghutara) :
त्रिंशौ + इति ——त्रिंशाविति

(here च has arisen as a result of sandhi औ + इ=आव्).

COMMENTATORS ON THE YAJURVEDA

Of the old commentators on the Madhyandina Samhita of the Yajurveda, the only two are such whose commentaries on the entire Yajurveda are available in Sanskrit, Uvata and Mahidhara. During our own days, a remarkable exposition of the Yajurveda was made available to us on quite different lines which gave us altogether a new vision in regards to the subject matter of the Vedas. This commentary has been by Maharsi Dayananda Sarasvatī (1824-1883), completed in the Vikram era, Mārga Śīrsa, Krsna 1, Saturday Samvat 1939 (or 1882 A.D.) and printed in full on Vaisākha, Sukla 11, Saturday, Samvat 1946 (1889 A.D., i.e. after the death of the author). This has been further commented upon by Brahmadutta Jijñāsu and Yudhisthira Mīmāmsaka. On the basis of this commentary, several other Hindi commentaries and translations in Indian languages have been made available to public.

Three chapters of the Yajūrveda have traditionally gained special popularity, Chapter XVI (Rudrādhyāya), Chapter XXXI (Puruṣa Sūkta) and Chapter XL (Īśāvāsyopaniṣad), and a large number of old and new commentaries are made available on these Chapters under various names. Chapter XXXII is also known as Tadeva Upaniṣad.

The Satapatha Brāhmaṇa is not a regular commentary on the Yajurveda, and still it stands for all times the most important exponent of the school of the Yajurveda. This appears to be a joint work of two scholars, Yājñavalkya and Sāṇḍilya.

Perhaps, the oldest name of a commentator of the Mādhyandina Saṁhitā is Śaunaka (খানক). Uvaţa does not give his commentary on the Puruṣa Sūkta (Chapter XXXI). He is pleased to reproduce the commentary of Śaunaka on these twenty-two verses (from মহলবাৰিত to স্বাংঘ নত). The colophony at the end of verse 22 in Uvața's commentary has the words "इति शौनकप्रणीत पुरुषत्कभाष्यं समाप्तम्". In several manuscripts, available at Vārāṇasī, Uvaṭa's commentary on Chapter XXXI is altogether missing.

In the commentary of the first verse of this Puruşa Sūkta, we have the following words:

पुरुषसूक्तस्य नारायणऋषिः पुरुषो देवतानुष्टुष् छन्दः अन्त्यात्रिष्टुष् मोक्षो विनियोगः । अस्य भाष्य शौनको नाम ऋषिरकरोत् ॥ प्रथम विच्छेदः क्रियाकारकसम्बन्धः समासः । प्रमेयार्थव्याख्येति सर्वमैतज्ञनकाय मोक्षार्थं कथयामासेति ।

It is clear from this that Uvaţa had seen the commentary of Saunaka on the Puruṣa Sūkta (Saunaka might have also commented on the other adhyāyas or Chapters of the Yajurveda). Nārāyaṇa is the traditional Rṣi of this sūkta. Puruṣa is the devatā; for the first twenty-one verses, the metre is Anuṣtup, and for the last one is Triṣtup. The viniyoga is mokṣa, the final emancipation from the bondage of līle and death. The subject matter of the entire Chapter is adhyātma, metaphysical or spiritual knowledge.

Saunaka in his commentary starts with his pada-vic-cheda, i.e. he decompounds the words (this means that perhaps the pada-pāṭha of the Yajurveda was not availabļe to him), and gives other grammatic clarifications. It is difficult to say whether Saunaka was a Vedic seer or a scholar of Vaiṣṇavite age (he uses the term Vāsudeva), यदा इन्द्रादयो देवाः यज्ञेन ज्योतिष्टोमाख्येन यज्ञपुरुषं वासुदेवं विधिना अयजन्त (Verse 16). Saunaka is very liberal in his interpretations. Even yogins are devatā to him, for he says:

यत्र पूर्वे साध्याः प्रथमे मुराः सन्नि विद्यन्ते देवाः तेजसा देदीप्यमानाः । एवं योगिनोऽपि दीपनाद् देवा यज्ञेन समाधिना नारायणाख्यं ज्ञानरूपम् अयजन्त । यतः तानिः समाधिरूपाण धर्माणि प्रथमान्यासन् । ते तु नाकं सनकादीनां स्थानं गच्छान्त । ये तु योगिनो महिमानः जन्मान्तरे निर्धृतगुणाः शुद्धाः ते नारायणाख्यं पुरुषमाविशन्ति । मुक्तिं गच्छन्तीत्यर्थः (Verse, 16)

Date of Saunaka, however, remains undetermined.

Next to him, in certain respects is the name of some Hari Svāmī of Kali-Samvat 3740 (638 A.D.); his commentary in the form of a handscript is available (in the Sarasvatī Bhandāra, Vārāṇasī) on the Haviryajña Chapter of the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa (first Kāṇḍa). He was the grandson of certain Guha-Svāmī (गुहस्यामी) and son of Nāga Svāmī (नाग-स्वामी), his gotra was Parāśara (परागर), and he was resident of Puṣkara. He is known to be a commentator of the Śatapatha Brāhmaṇa:

नागस्वामी सुतोऽवन्त्यां पाराशर्यो वसन् हरिः। श्रुत्यर्थं दर्शयामास शक्तितः पौष्करोश्च कः। श्रीमतोऽवन्तिनायस्य विक्रमार्कस्य भूपतेः। धर्माप्यक्षो हरिस्यामी व्याख्याच्छतपर्यी श्रुतिम्॥

(Colophony at the end of the Seventh chapter on the first Kānda of the Satapatha).

We are, however, not sure whether Hari Svamī

Commented on the Yajurveda.

Uvaţa — Uvaţa is one of the most notable commentators of the White Yajurveda; two readings of his commentary are available. In the Kāśī recension, we have Uvaţa's own commentary on the Puruṣa Sūkta, whereas in the Mahārāṣṭra recension, Saunaka's commentary on the Sūkta has been given instead. Uvaṭa opens his commentary with the following lines:

हृदयं दक्षिणं चाक्षिमण्डलं चािषतह्य यः । चेष्टते नमहं नौमि ऋग्यजुःसामविग्रहम् ॥ १ ॥ आदित्याल्लब्धवान्यस्तु शाखाः पञ्चदशापराः । तं याज्ञवत्ययं वन्देऽहं मन्त्रभाष्य प्रसिद्धयं ॥ २ ॥ गुरुतस्तर्कतश्यैव तथा शातपथ श्रुतेः । ऋषीन्वक्ष्यामि मन्त्राणां देवताश्चन्दसं च यत् ॥ ३ ॥ ऋजो यमूषि सामानि तथार्थः पदवाक्ययोः श्रुतयश्चात्र याः प्रोक्ता योऽर्थवादश्च कर्मणः ॥ ४ ॥

There are hundred and one Adhvaryu Śākhās or the Yaju's recensions of which the Mādhyandina Śākhās are fifteen, handed down from the time of Āditya, Uvaṭa pays tribute to the great sage Yājñavalkya, author of the Śatapatha Brāhmana, but he does not introduce himself. At the end of the Fortieth Chapter, Uvata however gives the following lines:

आनन्दपुरवास्तव्य वजनास्यस्य सूनुना । उवटेन कृतं भाष्यं पदवाक्यैः सुनिश्चितैः ॥ १ ॥ ऋष्यादींश्च नमस्कृत्य अवन्त्यामुवटोऽवसन् । मन्त्राणां कृतवान्भाष्यं महीं मोजे प्रशासति ॥ २ ॥

This means that Uvata was the son Vajrata, resident of Anandapura, and he wrote his commentary from a reliable text in Avanti during the reign of Raja Bhoja. The Baroda Text of the Commentary gives the colophony with verbal alterations:

आनन्दपुरवास्तव्य वजटाख्यस्य सूनुना । मन्त्रभाष्यमिदं चक्रे भोजे राज्ये प्रशासति ॥

The Poona manuscript gives the following lines at the close of chapter 10 -

ऋष्यादीश्च नमस्कृत्य अवन्त्यां उवटो वसन्। मन्त्रभाष्यमिदं चक्रे मोजे राज्ये प्रशासित ॥

It is difficult to say whether these colophonies were composed by Uvata, or later on by some one belonging to his school. Since Bhoja was the head of the State of Ujjayanī during the Vikrama era 1075-1117, we can rightly place Uvata near about 1100 Vikramī or 1050 A.D.

Uvața उवट, sometimes also spelt as U-ața (उ-अट) was a Nāgara, नागर. Brāhmaṇa; his father Vajrața was an upādhyāya or of teaching profession, since we have also a line inscribed at the close of Uvața's commentary of the Īsavāsyopaniṣad (Ānandāśrama, Poona) —

इति श्रीमद् वजट भट्टोपाध्यायात्मज सकलनियमविच्चूहामणि श्रीमदुवटमट्टार्थ विरिष्टते. . . चत्वारिंशतमोऽध्यायः॥ ४०॥

In several published editions of Uvața's commentary on the Yajurveda, we find merely Mahīdhara's commentary reproduced by oversight or hegligence. Uvața quotes copiously from Yāska's Nirukta and Nighantu without naming the sources. He refers to the Bṛhaddevatā in his preface to the commentary. Most of his commentary is devoted to the yajāas and their details, but at places, he also subscribes to the school of metaphysical and spiritual interpretations.

There are several minor points in his commentary which have important historical value. His quotation from the Nirukta, Chapter XIII. 12 in his commentary on the verse Yv. XVIII.77 shows that the Chapter XIII constituted a part of the Nirukta in his times as a parisista, His quotation  $\frac{1}{2}$   $\frac{1}{2}$

अरेपसी = अपापी (उवट); पापरहिती (महीघर)।

Uvața does not prefer to quote from the Sarvānukramanī, which was either not available to him, or which he did not value; he writes:

गुरुतस्तर्कतश्चैद तथा शातपयश्रुतेः । ऋषीन् वस्यामि मन्त्राणां देवताश्छन्दसं च यत् ।

For assigning rsi, devatās and metres, he relied on what he traditionally learned from his preceptor, or on reasoning, or on the authority of the Satapatha Brāhmana.

In the Fifth Chapter of the White Yajurveda, we have three yajus : उर्वश्यित, आयुरित, पुरुतवाङअसि (V.2) : In the beginning,

Uvata comments like this:

उर्वश्यित उत्तरारण्याज्यविलापनीमुपस्मशति । आयुरित उत्तरारिंग निद्धाति । पुरूरवा अति इतिहासपक्षेण मन्त्रत्रयं व्याख्यातं श्रुत्या । "उर्वशी वा अप्तराः पुरूरवाः पतिरयं यत् तिस्मन् मिथुनादजायत तदायुः" इति ।

Thus Uvața gives the mythology of the birth of Āyu from the union of Urvasī and Purūravā. Purūravā, the husband, is upper fire-stick, uttarāraņi, and both of them couple and produce the child Āyu (Kātyāyana Śrautasūtra).

Mahīdhara — Mahīdhara makes Uvaţa's commentary as his base, and in a scholarly way, he supplies a good deal of details. Mahīdhara was a great ācārya, versed in the traditional lore, a resident of Kāsī (Vārāṇasī); he is also the author of the Mantra-Mahodadhi (मन्त्रमहोदिध), a Tantra-text, and he commented on it also. Whilst Uvaṭa was basically a Vaiṣṇava, Mahīdhara appears to be belonging to the Tantra School.

Mahīdhara's commentary on the White Yajurveda is known as the Veda-Dīpa (वेददीप). Mahīdhara bases his commentary on the Uvaṭa's, but he supplies the commentary with the large number of quotations from the srauta sūtras of Kātyāyana (Kātīya Śrautasūtra). For this purpose, he completely utilized the commentary of Sāyaṇa-Mādhava also on the Kāṇva Saṁhitā (काण्य संहिता) of the White Yajurveda. The opening lines of Mahīdhara's commentary, the Veda-Dīpa, are:

प्रणम्य सस्मी नृष्ठिरं गणेशं माध्यं विलोक्यौवट-माघवीयम् । यजुर्मनूनां विलिखामि चार्यं परोपकाराय निजेक्षणाय ॥ ९ ॥ दूरादसूयां निर्धूय कृषां कृत्वा ममोपरि । जिलोक्यो वेददीपोऽयं बुद्धिमद्भिद्धिजोत्तमैः ॥ २ ॥

Mahīdhara quotes verbatim from Mādhava's commentary (Sec XIII.45). Some of us think Mādhava, to whom Mahīdhara reiers, is the same Venkaṭa Mādhava, whose commentary formed the basis of Sāyaṇa's commentary on the Rgveda, but others hold the view that Mādhava referred to by Mahīdhara is Sāyaṇa-Mādhava, the commentator of the Kānva Samhitā of the Yajurveda.

Mahīdhara is the author of several works, e.g. Mantra Mahodadhi, his commentary on the Kātyāyana Śulbasūtra, etc. The author introduces himself in the Mantra-Mahodadhi as follows:

प्रणम्य तक्सीं नृहर्रि महागणपति गुरुम् । तन्त्राण्यनेकान्यालोक्य यक्ष्ये मन्त्रमहोदिधम् ॥

The opening lines of the Veda-Dīpa and Mantra-Mahodadhi are very much the same and hence, it appears to be a fact that the author of both the texts is the same. In the

Mantra-Mahodadhi, we have:

अब्दे विक्रमतो जाते वाणवेद नुपैर्मिते । ज्येष्ठाभ्यां शिवस्यागे पूर्णो मन्त्रमहोदधि ॥ (१३२)

Commenting on these lines, Mahīdhara himself writes : पञ्चयत्वारिशदुत्तरपोडशशतनमे विक्रम नुपादगने सिन; i.e. the treatise was finished on the Jyeṣṭha, Aṣṭamī (8th day) of the Vikram era 1645 (or 1588 A.D.). The commentary on the Yajurveda also must have been of 1588 ± 10 of the Christian Era. The oldest manuscript of the Veda-Dīpa available is probably of 1600 A.D.

Apart from being scholarly in unnecessary deatils, there is nothing remarkable in Mahīdhara's commentary; for his clarity and concepts he entirely depends on Uvața.

Commentators on the Kanva Recension

Sāyaṇa (1315-1387 A.D.) wrote his commentary on the Kāṇva Samhitā (Chapter 1-20 only) under the patronage of King Bukka. Ananta, another commentator on the Kāṇva Samhitā is of the view that Sāyaṇa-Mādhava wrote commentary only on the first twenty chapters of the Samhitā:

व्याख्याता कण्वशाखीय संहिता पूर्विवेशतिः । माधवाचार्यवर्वेण स्पप्टीकृत्य चोत्तरा ॥

In his Introduction to the commentary, Sāyaṇa enumerates 15 recensions of the White Yajurveda. Other commentaries on the Kānva Samhitā are:

Yajurveda and Western Scholars

Among eminent Western Vedic Scholars, one of the most outstanding name is of Prof. Albert WEBER (1825-1901) who at the age of twenty presented a "Yajurveda Specimen cum Commentario" to the Breslau University. This thesis was accepted for the award of their Ph.D. degree by the University authorities in the same year 1845. After that preliminary study, Weber completed his edition of the "Vājasaneyi Samhitā (in the Mādhyandina — and Kanva Śākhā with the commentary of Mahīdhara)" — this job took him full seven years. Prof. Weber has been one in the line of German Vedic Savants, who during the second half of the Nineteenth Century published in Europe most of the editions.

1848, the Sāma Veda, edited by Theodor Benfey.
1849-74, the Rgveda, by F. Max Müller.
1856, the Atharvaveda by Rudolf Roth and his American colleague William D. Whitney and from 1852.

onwards the different versions of the Yajurveda. 1852, the Vajasaneyi Samhitā by Albrecht Weber. 1871-72, the Taittirīya Samhitā by Albrecht Weber. 1881-86, the Maitrāyanīya Samhitā by Leopold Von Schroder.

1900-10, the Katha Samhitā by Leopold Von Schroder.

Prof. Weber did not content himself with the publication of the Vājasaneyi Samhitā (together with Mahīdhara's commentary), he continued his enormous work, editing in 1855, the Satapatha Brāhmaņa (with extracts from three commentaries), and in 1859, the relevant Srauta-sūtra of Katyāyana (with extracts from two commentaries — of Karka and Yājnikadeva).

Griffith's Translation — The metric translation of the White Yajurveda by the Sanskrit scholar, Ralph T.H. Griffith was completed and prefaced by the author in May 1899 at Kotagiri, Nilgiris, and is perhaps the only good translation of a modern Western Scholar available to us today. He gives copious notes to his translation of the other three Vedas: the Rk, the Sāman and the Atharva. He derives the word yajuh from the root yaj, \(\frac{1}{2}\sqrt{2}\), to sacrifice or worship, and vid, \(\frac{1}{2}\) at to know, and thus to him, this Veda is the knowledge of sacrifice or Sacrificial Texts and Formulas, \(yajus \) (\(\frac{1}{2}\) \(\frac{1}{2}\) as distinguished from the Rgveda or knowledge of Recited Praises, the Sāmaveda or Knowledge of chanted Hymns and the Atharva Veda or the Brahma-veda, which is the knowledge of Prayer, Charm and Spells.

Griffith introduces the Samhitā thus—"The Samhitā of the White Yajurveda consists of forty Adhyāyas, or Books, containing, with frequent repetitions of the same text, about two thousand verses. A large portion of these are Rcs (अव) or Strophes borrowed—frequently with variations—from the Rgveda, and sometimes from the Atharva; these of course are metrical. Nearly equal in quantity are the Yajus texts (वर्जीय) or sacrificial formulas—the most characteristic portion, from which the Veda derives its name, composed in measured prose. "which rises now and then", as Professor Weber observes, "to a rythmical swing and long passages, such as the lists of victims, to be tied up, and dedicated at the Asvamedha and the Purusamedha, which are necessarily in the simplest prose."

Griffith's translation, as he himself acknowledges in the preface, follows the edition of the White Yajurveda or Vājasanevi-Samhitā, in the two recensions - the Mādhyandina and the Kanva-, with Mahīdhara's commentary, the Veda-dīpa, or Lamp of knowledge, written towards the close of the Sixteenth Century, published under the patronage of the Honourable Court of Directors of the East India Company in 1849, at Berlin by Dr. Albrecht Weber, at that time Doyen of the Sanskrit language at that university. This excellent edition consisting of three parts, the latter two of which contain the Satapatha Brahmana, in the Madhyandina recension with extracts from the commentaries of Sayana, Harisvamin, and Dvivedaganga and the Srautasutras of Kātvāyana, with extracts from the commentaries of Karka and Yāiñikadeva, has not been reprinted and is now practically unobtainable. In India, the text of the Madhyandina recension with Mahīdhara's commentary has been issued in a cheap form at Calcutta by Pandit Jībananda Vidyasagara, B.A., Superintendent of the Free Sanskrit College, of which a second edition appeared in 1892; and a lithographed edition of the text with a Hindi translation of Mahidhara's commentary was published in 1874, at Besma in the North Western Provinces by Rājā Giri Prasāda Varman of that place. A cheap edition of the text in unbound MS form, has been published at Bombay.

To this Griffith also adds that 'no separate translation of the whole Samhitā or collection of texts and Formulas has appeared in an European language.' It was Professor Weber's intention, as signified in his History of Indian Literature, to bring out a translation giving the ceremonial belonging to each verse, together with a full glossary, but 'this promise has not been fulfilled, owing to the pressure of other labours'. Weber had previously published a Latin translation, with annotations in the same language, of Book IX and X, in his Vājasaneya-Samhitāe Specimen (Breslau, 1846); and more recently a German version of Book XVI, in Indische Studien II. pp. 14 ff. and of the list of men and women to be dedicated.

at the Purusamedha in his treatise on Human Sacrifice among Indians of the Vedic Age, reprinted in his Indische Streifen 1, pp. 76-84. Of Book XL as an Upanisad, there are several translations into English.

Griffith thus refers to the Satapatha Brāhmaņa: "Moreover, nearly the whole of the first Eighteen Books (Adhyāyas) has been incorporated—dissected and explained clause by clause—in the first nine Books of the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa, and an admirable translation of this vast work by Professor Jullius Eggeling is now nearly completed in the Sacred Books of the East, four volumes (XII, XXVI, XLI, XLIII of that series) having already appeared, and the concluding volume (XLV) being in the Press." (Griffith in his Preface, 1899). Griffith has taken a good deal of help from Eggeling's annotations in the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa.

Svāmī Dayānanda's commentary on the White Yajurveda was available (in Sanskrit and Hindi) during the period Griffith wrote his translation to this Text, but he took no notice of this work, which since then has become more popular in India than Mahīdhara's or Uvaṭa's Commentary on the Yajurveda.

Dayananda's Commentary on the Yajurveda

After the lapse of a thousand of years, a new era started in Indian scholarship, when Svāmī Dayānanda Sarasvatī (1824-1883) wrote his epoch-making treatise, the Rgvedadibhāsva-bhūmikā (ऋग्वेदादिभाष्यभूमिका) and started commenting on the verses of the Rgyeda and the Yajūmsi of the Sukla Yajurveda. The commentary on the Yajurveda commenced on Thursday, the thirteenth of the Sukla Paksa of Pausa in Samvat 1934 of the Vikrama Era, i.e. 1877 A.D., and was completed on Saturday, the first of the Krsna Paksa, of Marga Sirsa in Samvat 1939 of the Vikram Era, i.e. 1882 A.D. in a period of about five years. Unfortunately for us, Svamī Dayananda died in 1883, before he could complete his commentary on the Rgveda. As he himself has indicated, he commented on the Yajurveda with a full support from the old treatises like the Satapatha Brahmana of Yajñavalkya and the Nirukta of Yaska. He starts his commentary with his own two verses.

यो जीवेषु दधाति सर्वसुकृतकानं गुणैरीश्वर-स्तं नत्वा क्रियतं परोपकृतये सद्यः सुबोधाय च ऋग्वेदस्य विद्याय वै गुणगुणज्ञानप्रदातुर्वरं भाष्यं काम्यमधो क्रियामययजुर्वेदस्य भाष्यं मया ॥ चतुस्त्र्यद्वेरद्वेत्वनं सिंहते विक्रमं सरे (१९३४) गुभै पौषे मासे सितदलभावश्वोन्मितं तिथौ । गुरोवरि प्रातः प्रतिपदमतीष्टं सुविदुषां प्रमाणैनिबद्धं शतपवनिहत्नादि।भराष ॥

The Nirukta has about 137 references of the kandikās of the Yajurveda, most of which appear also in the Rgveda with or without verbal alterations; this leaves only a few references of the Yajurveda which have nothing in common with the Rgveda.

Dayanahda's commentary is based on certain fundamental assumptions, recognized by our oldest traditions. The word veda is derived from the root vid, meaning to exist, to know, to get and to ponder over (विद् शाने, विद विचारणे, विद सत्तायां, विदस तामे). The word Veda stands for the Supreme knowledge, the divine knowledge, eternal and unchanging. It exists concomitant with our Lord, the creator. In the form of divine words, it was given to a group of the earliest men in man's natural language which could be communicated and heard in terms of alphabet (analytic phonetic vowels and consonants) for which our Lord provided to each human individual vocal organ and two ears, the hearing aids. These organs are divine (non-man-made, apauruseya, अपीरुषेय), the alphabet is equally divine. The alphabet manifests itself in terms of sound waves: -the audible sounds, articulate and inarticulate, evolved in a divine way as a part of the creation. The sounds, when grouped, sifted and harmonized, gave rise to music and metres in the most natural form. In the Vedic language, the entire process of evolution of cosmos, inclusive of the creation of suns, planets and satellites, vegetation, and animal species is regarded as the cosmic yajña, or the cosmic sacrifice, planned and executed by the Cosmic Man (Sahasra-Sīrsa Purusa, Yv. XXXI). In this yajāa or sacrifice, Nature's all bounties, the devas, take part. We have a verse in the Reveda:

Who can say, of what sort was the form; of what measures it was; what were the causal factors, nidāna; and what were the substantial materials (ājyam); how big was its circumsphere (paridhi); and what were the metres and groups of syllables (chandas and pra-u-ga), and what were the divine compositions (uktha)?

The first man appeared on this earth some four millions of years ago (4,000,000), say at the beginning of the present caturyugī,  $(satya-yuga+tret\ddot{a}+dv\ddot{a}para+5082\ years\ of\ kali)$  i.e. 1,728,000+1,296,000+864,000+5082=3,893,082 years ago. (The earliest human skeleton which Prof. Leaky has discovered on Tanzania-Kenya borders is of 2 million years of age). (The four yugas of these dimensions are conceptual, non-Vedic and without astronomical basis).

There were three types of persons which came to our earth in the earliest batch; the (i) underdeveloped and undeveloped, (ii) instinctively evolved to receive the divine revelation, to follow the language, and to transmit the knowledge to future generations, and (iii) a batch of a few selected and choicest Rsis, through whom the knowledge was revealed. According to Indian tradition, they were four in number, who have been given the names: Agni, Vāyu, Āditya and Arigiras. They became a via media of knowledge which came to be known as the Rk, the Yajuh, the Sāman, and the Atharva respectively. This is the traditional concept of the divine revelation of the Vedas, supported by several texts, from the Vedas, the Brāhmaṇas and the Manusnirti.*

Tradition also vaguely says that Brahma was the person who received the entire revealed knowledge from the four primary Rsis, and he later on passed it on to the successive generations. The entire literature was oral in the beginning; later on it was systematized, edited, and finally it assumed the form of the four samhitās which now consist of the Rgveda with 10482 verses, the Yajurveda of 1975 kandikās, the Sāmaveda of 1873 verses and the Atharvaveda of 5977 verses with a total of 20,307 verses. A large number of verses from the Rgveda have passed on to the other samhitās also.

To Dayananda, as to the other Rsis, the Veda constitutes the supreme, self-authoritative, infallible knowledge, with everything in it as true and in consistency with divine creation, the universe, the cosmos in which we live in, a cosmos rich in macro and micro-parameters both. Just as this cosmos or divine creation is the primary and ultimate source of all branches of knowledge - the sciences, the philosophies, the art and the aesthetics, exactly in the same sense, the Vedas are the primary source of all true knowledge. This has been the theme of Dayananda's new way of thinking about the Vedas. His entire efforts of life were devoted towards this end, and in a way, once more in the line of our oldest traditions he brought the Vedas into light from oblivion. A śastra should be in consistency with srsti and śruti both. Multiplicity of interpretations exist in srsti (creation) and sruti (Divine Word) both. A flower, though one, has in itself the sciences of physics, chemistry, biology, aesthetics and philosophy. Similarly a divine word in the Vedic Samhitas is capable of being interpreted differently in different contexts. A word in its restricted usage is called rūdhi, লবি; the same word in its original form has multiplicity of connotations, and then it is called yaugika, योगिक. The words of the sruti have the maximum plasticity; in the course of time, the same words in a sāstra, or a discipline of particular science, become rigid and restricted. The negrer you are in your interpretation of a Vedic term to the yaugika meaning (the natural causal meaning), nearer you are indeed to the divine interpretation. A departure or drift from yaugika towards the rūdhi indicates your drift from the Vedic connotation. Multiplicity of interpretation of a technical term in science (a particular sāstra) is highly objectionable. Contrary to it would be the case of a word in sruti. The words of sruti are capable of wide and most general connotations; one ought to go to the root meaning of a word in śruti. Yaska has been the greatest exponent of this concept. He is the pioneer figure of the school of etymologists, whose fundamental doctrine is that all words are derived from original roots (Nir. I.12). Śākatāyana holds that nouns are derived from verbs. Numerous etymologists also hold the same view. Of course, Gargya and a few others are not so emphatic for all names or nouns - in their opinion, some of the nouns are conventional, and hence underivable. Some of the words, according to some authorities including Yaska, are onomatopoeic, that is, they are derived on the basis of some sounds; they are formed by the mere imitation of sounds of nature; we have the names for crow and partridge, the words like kitava (gambler) Nir. V.22, dundubhi (drums) Nir. IX.12, Ciścā krnoti (it makes a ciścā sound, Nir. IX.14), Krka in krkavāku (a cock, Nir. XII.13) are such Vedic words. But, according to Yaska, onomatoposia does not play any important part in the formation of a language. Yaska, for the major part, is an exponent of the root-theory. Dayananda, in his interpretations, has further extended the scope of this theory. The older commentators, in a restricted sense, also favoured the root-theory, and whenever they found themselves in awkward situations, they took to the root-meanings.

The Veda is not a historical document; it is a book of "divine knowledge", and hence, according to Dayānanda, no human history is to be sought in the Veda. The Vedic terms are in no case the proper nouns in the grammatical sense. In the Vedic literature, there is no reference to any particular Rsi, a mythological deity or demon, the name of a country, or the name of a river or of a mountain. Dayānanda has been more particular in this respect than any of our mediaeval interpreters. While permitting the multiplicity of interpretation in the case of the Vedic verses, he gives caution on some points:

(1) The Vedas, being of divine origin, propound the pure and simple monotheism. God has numerous attributes, numerous functions to perform and numerous aspects of our relations to Him, and hence He has numerous meaningful names, though He is one and only one. He is the Supreme deity. Nature's bounties, the sun, the wind, the fire, the clouds, the lightning, are all in his supreme subordination. Though active and energetic, they themselves are not living, not cetana (धेतन); they are devoid of enlightenment and devoid of bliss. They have only induced activity in them.

- (2) No interpretation of the Veda should be in contradiction to what we observe in Nature, the divine creation. And hence, no conflict can occur between what we learn through science or philosophy and what we find in the sruti. As one progresses in the pursuit of knowledge, he learns more and more; from concrete, his knowledge becomes more abstract and more precise. There is no end to this pursuit. The more one learns, the more he loves God; the more one loves God, purer he becomes as if he imbibes divinity in himself. There is no conflict between science and religion either. Man's religion is natural and divine. It is the antithesis of knowledge (the nescience, the avidyā or the superstition) that brings religion to disrepute, disrespect and blasphemy.
- (3) The creation is divine, the Veda is divine and similarly, the concepts of morality or high values in human life, are divine; they did not come to us through a process of evolution. The different sāstras, or law-books, the books of morals, have classified them differently but the moral concept is universal. The interpretation of any Vedic text that goes against morality is not to be accepted. The Vedic religion is a way of life that depends on high values of life, a religion compatible with morality—individual and social. The Vedic concept of God is also an ethical concept and so are the Vedic prayers and the Vedic praises.
- (4) To Dayananda, the Veda is a supreme source of getting inspiration of life in diverse fields. To him, the life is a purposeful reality; it is meant to be lived in fullness; neither the world is a dream, a myth, or an idea; it has the reality of existence. The Vedic philosophy is a philosophy of dynamic realism. For that sake, we live and shall continue to live through the cycles of births and rebirths. The Vedas do not discriminate between the ephimeral world and the transcendental one. Through this world-complex and our bondage in the body-complex, one seeks to attain the final emancipation. The Veda refers to the harmonizing of what appears to be ephimeral and what is transcendental, the  $sambh\overline{u}ti$  and the  $asambh\overline{u}ti$ , the  $vidy\overline{a}$  and the  $avidy\overline{a}$ ,—the  $par\overline{a}$  ( $\overline{\tau}\tau$ ) and the  $apar\overline{a}$  of the Upanisads also. The Veda thus inspires us for physics and metaphysics both, for the material sciences and the spiritual sciences, for piety and polity.

(5) The supreme effort to evolve one's personal life, and leave behind himself or herself, a better evolved society is known as  $yaj\bar{n}a$  in the Vedic terminology.  $Yaj\bar{n}a$  is an act par excellence, the dedication of the highest type, the most benevolent selfless act. Our Supreme Lord, the resplendent Indra, the Satakratu, the accomplisher of cent per cent selfless benevolent acts, is the Cosmic Yajamāna. Our firerituals are symbolic dramatic performances of that  $yaj\bar{n}a$  in miniature to avoid the environmental pollutions and for demonstrating the divine glory. Dayānanda has thus elaborated his concept of the  $yaj\bar{n}a$ :

The yajña is a term covering all the actions done for showing reverence to the men of learning, all scientific inventions and their application, all chemical processes, all educational activities and charities, all performances of Agnihotra, homa etc. for the purification of air, rain, water, herbs etc. for increase of happiness—I regard yajñas as excellent undertakings.

To Dayānanda, all good actions are yajñas. To take a raw material from the earth, and to transfer it to a useful machine or a synthetic product of utility (from an iron ore, a sewing machine, or from petroleum products synthesizing a plastic material for everyday use) is also a yajña in Dayānanda's terminology.

Special features of Dayānanda's Commentary.— Dayānanda's commentary on the Śukla Yajurveda Saṁhitā is available in four volumes, and consists of (i) the saṁhitā pāṭha of the verse; (ii) the pada-pāṭha, (iii) the padārtha, which are Dayānanda's notes on the terms or padas occuring in the text, (iv) the anvaya, or the prose order, and lastly (v) the  $bh\bar{a}v\bar{a}rtha$ , or a short note in the words of the commentator, indicating his reaction on commenting the verse.

In the padartha or the short notes, Dayananda occasionally gives all the plausible meanings of a particular term; often he gives the details of etymology, very close to the etymology of Yāska in his Nirukta; here he copiously quotes from the Nighantu also. In his etymological derivations, sometimes he refers to the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa also; on a very few occasions, he refers to the Grammar of Pāṇini. After the anvaya, he sometimes indicates the rhetoric or alankāra also, mostly the vācaka-luptopamā, where the metaphor (or similie) - indicating particle is also implicit (not indicated).

Prior to the giving of the text of the Mantra, Dayānanda also indicates (i) the pratīka or the initial words, the rṣi of the Mantra, the devatā of the Mantra, the metre, and finally, the svara (as suggested by Pingala in his book on prosody). The svara follows the metre, for example all Gāyatrī metres (24 syllables) are in ṣadja; all Uṣṇik (28) in ṛṣabha; all Anuṣṭup (32) in gāndhāra; all Bṛhatīs (36) in madhyama; all Pankti (40) in pancama; all Triṣṭubh (44) in dhaivata and all Jagatī (48) in niṣāda.

The first kandikā of Chapter I of the Yajurveda has five mantras in it. From इवे to भागं, the kandika has 38 syllables, and hence Dayananda calls this part of the verse as having Svarāṭ-Bṛhatī metre. The rest part of the kaṇḍikā, i.e. from प्रजावती to पशून्पाहि, he calls बाह्ययुष्णिक्, Brāhmyuṣṇik metre — 42 (14 × 3) syllables. Dayananda does not rigidly follow Sarvaṇukramaṇikā (सर्वानुक्रमसूत्रम्) for these details. A glaring instance is in the following Mantra:

इषे त्वोर्जे त्वा वायव स्थ देवो तः सविता प्रार्पयतु श्रेष्ठतमाय कर्मण आप्यायध्वमघ्न्या इन्द्राय भागम्

-38 syllables

न तस्य प्रतिमा अस्ति यस्य नाम महद्यशः हिरण्यगर्भ इत्येष मा मा हिंसीदित्येषा यस्मान्न जातऽइत्येषः॥ (XXXII.3)

Of this Adhyāya, the first two mantras (1, 2) are in the Anuştup metre (32 syllables each), but regarding this mantra, the Anukramanī says.

एतस्मादाधे हे अनुष्टुमी न तस्य द्विपदा गायत्री हिरण्यगर्भश्वतस्रो मा मा हिंसीद्यस्मात हे एताः। (Anukramaṇĩ, para 16)

In this Mantra, we have a reference to the three other Mantras, of which the initial words are: -

हिरण्यगर्भ ॰ (XXV. 10-13), मा मा हिंसीत् ॰ (XII.102) and यस्मान्नजातः (VIII.36-37)

(in fact 7 mantras, to be recited after completing the Mantra). Dayānanda considers all the pratīkas also as the part of the kaṇḍikā or verse, and since in all, the kaṇḍikā has 39 syllables, he assigns the term Nicṛt Pankti to this metre. Of course, in his anvaya, he accepts that these seven may be regarded as anuvāka. His prose order to his Mantra is:

हे मनुष्या! यस्य महद्यशो नामास्ति यो हिरण्यगर्म इत्येषो, यस्य मा मा हिंसीदित्येषा यस्मान्न जात इत्येष उपासनीयोस्ति, तस्य प्रतिमा नास्ति । यद्वा पक्षान्तरम् – हिरण्यगर्भ इत्येष (२५.१०-१३) उक्तोङनुवाको मा मा हिंसीदित्येषा (१२.१०२) ऋग्, यस्मान्नजात इत्येष (८.३६-३७) उक्तोङनुवाकश्च । यस्य भगवतो नाम महद्यशोऽस्ति, तस्य प्रतिमा नास्ति ।

However for the verse (XXXIV.58) बह्मणस्पते त्वमस्य यन्ता॰ etc., which has 43 syllables up to विदये सुवीराः, he regards the metre as Nicṛt-Triṣṭup; he does not count the pratīkas य इमा विश्वा॰ (XVII.17), विश्वकर्मा॰ (XI.26), यो नः पिता॰ (XVII.27) and अन्नपतेऽन्नस्य नो देहि॰ (XI.83), for naming the metre.

At the close of each chapter, Dayananda, in a few lines, gives the gist of the chapter. For example, at the close of Chapter XXXIV, he gives the following gist:

अस्मित्रघ्याये मनसो तक्षणं, शिक्षा, विद्येच्छा, विद्यत् संगः, कन्या-प्रबोयो, विद्वत्त्त्वर्णं, रक्षायाचनं, बतैश्वर्येच्छा, सोमीवधि-सक्षणं, शुभेच्छा, परमेश्वर-सूर्य-वर्णनं, स्वरक्षा, प्रातरुत्यानं, पुरुषार्थेनिद्धि-सिद्धि प्रापणमीश्वरस्य जगन्निर्माणं, महाराजवर्णनमश्वियुणकथनमायुर्वर्द्धनं, विद्याणलक्षणमीश्वरकृत्यं चोक्तमतोऽस्याध्यायार्थस्य पूर्वाघ्यायोक्तार्थेन सह संगतिर्वेद्या।

Thus he gives a vivid list of topics of general importance in life which have been explicitly or implicitly dealt with in the sacred texts of this chapter. He always tries to establish a continuity between the preceding chapter and the following, when he repeats his savourite words : पूर्वाध्यागोक्तार्येन सह सम्रतिर्वेद्या.

Dayānanda has given the details of his concept of the Vedas, and the scope of the Vedic texts in his epoch-making treatise, the Rgvedādibhāṣyabhūmikā, which is much more comprehensive than any of the introductions appended by other scholiasts of the Vedas, including Sāyaṇa (of course Venkaṭa Mādhava in his work on the Rgveda has given more details regarding the external features, such as the devatās, ṛṣis, chandas, and svaras).

Dayananda has completely set aside the traditional lines followed by Katyayana in his Srauta Sütras, so far as the viniyoga of the mantras in the yajñas was concerned. This has been an event of great courage and initiative. The text has to be studied independent of the conventional viniyogas. The Vedas were given to men millennia earlier than they could be used in the karmakanda of the mediaeval period. By viniyoga, we mean the use of the text on a particular occasion during a ritual. In a way, these viniyogas have been imposed upon the texts by persons who elaborated these ceremonies. They have, of course, shown great ingenuity in their efforts in this field. But these viniyogas have taken us very much away from their original connotations. It goes to the credit of Dayananda, that he has taken out the texts from the clutches of the traditional ecclesiasts and made them available to all of us in their pristine glory.

We shall give only one example to elaborate Dayananda's view point. The Yajurveda starts with two simple phrases: इषे त्वा and ऊर्जे त्वा, which mean "(O Lord we invoke) you for food, and you for engergy". According to Mahīdhara and others, the twig of a plant like palāśa is to be cut with the repetitions of the words इषे त्वा and it has to be made straight and cleansed with rain water by repeating the words ऊर्जे त्वा. A good deal of arguments are given in the commentary to justify the viniyoga— पर्णशाखां छिनित शामीलीं— पलाशशाखा शमीशाखा वान्न विकल्पिता। तच्छेदने इषेत्वोजेंति हो मंत्री विकल्पिती।... ऊर्जे त्वा। शाखेव देवता। हे शाखे। त्वा त्वां संनमयािम ऋजू करोिम।

Dayānanda and Devatās. Dayānanda has assigned non-traditional devatās to the mantras also on various occasions. Devatā indicates the subject-matter of the text. In terms of the Nirukta, devatās or deities are whom the panegyrics are primarily addressed (तद् यानि नामानि प्राधान्य स्तुनीनां देवतानां तद् देवतमित्यावसते Nir.—VII.1). A particular stanza is said to belong to a deity, to whom a seer addresses his panegyrics with a particular desire, and from him, he wishes to obtain his object. The stanzas, to which reference is made, are of three kinds; (i) indirectly addressed, (ii) directly addressed and (iii) self-invocations. (Nir. VII.1)

For the cases, where devatās are not assigned, Yāska says: Such stanzas belong to the same deity to whom that particular sacrifice, or a part of the sacrifice is offered. Now else-where than the sacrifice, they belong to Prajāpati according to the ritualists, and to Narāśamsa according to the etymologists (Nir. VII.4).

Dayānanda goes several steps ahead of Yāska. To him, stanzas or mantras are not merely panegyrics — they are suggestive of knowledge, necessary for men; they are to inspire us in all spheres of our activities. Life has to be lived in all its parameters. It has to be lived for the sake of an individual and for the sake of society also. Dayānanda is an etymologist par excellence and as such, in his commentary, he sees much more than what a traditionalist could see. We are told that for his personal use, he drew a type of suggestive concise list, indicating the devatās of the stanzas of the Yajurveda and the Rgveda.

As regards the extensive field covered in the Vedic Mantras, we shall, as an illustration take Chapter XXXVII of the Yajurveda. The devatās assigned to 21 stanzas by him are as follows:

Verse	Devatā	Theme
1.	Savitā	मनुष्यैः किं कर्तव्यम्	Duties of men
2.	Savitā	योगाम्यास	Practice of Yoga
3.	Dyāvā- Prthivī	यज्ञ	Yajña or sacrifice
4.	Yajña	विदुषी स्त्री	Learned woman
5.	Yajña	अध्यापक	A teacher
6.	Yajña	मनुष्याः किं कुर्युः	Duties of men

Verse	Devatā	Theme	288
7.	Îśvarah	स्त्रीपुरुषाः कीट्रशाः स्यः	Men and Women
8.	Yajña	मनुष्या विदुषा सह कर्य वर्तेरन्
9.	Vidvān	के मनुष्याः सुखिनः	Who are happy?
10.	Vidvānsaḥ	के महद्राज्यं प्राप्नुविन्त
11.	Savitā	सञ्जनाः कीट्टशाः	What sort of men of virtue are.
12.	Prthvī	मनुष्यैः किं कर्त्तव्यम्	Duties of men.
13.	Vidvān	- do -	- do -
14.	Īśvara	ईश्वरोपासना	God's worship
15.	Agni	- do -	- do -
16-21.	Īśvara	- do -	- do - (Yajurveda, XXXVII)

Whilst Dayananda in his Veda-Bhasya, or the commentary on the Yajurveda has given translation and his interpretation, he is liberal enough in accepting that the stanzas can be interpreted on other lines also. The Upanisads and the Vedanta Sutras represent the adhyatma aspect (spiritual) of the philosophy of the Veda. The Brahmana literature, the Purvamīmāmsā, and the Grhya Sūtras are the liturgical and ecclesiestical, that is, the yājāika exposition of the Veda. He approves both these aspects, but since, no commentary is evailable which represents the mundane aspects, necessary for the growth of an individual and society, he himself undertook this stupendous task.* Indra, as the Supreme Sovereign of the creation, possesses certain attributes and as the head of the creation, has certain functions to perform and certain responsibilities to bear; exactly the same responsibilities and functions on a miniature scale are of a head of a State. Chairman of a Society, the elder member of a family, hence the word Indra stands for all such elders.

Dayānanda's commentary on the Yajurveda is available in Hindi also. Dayānanda himself got the Hindi translation done, and this translation was published along with the Sanskrit commentary from the Vedic Yantrālaya, established at Allahabad and later on transferred to Ajmer. These translations have been reprinted from other sources also. Brahma Datta Jijñāsu, and his disciple, Yudhiṣṭhira Mīmāmsaka, elaborately worked on Dayānanda's commentary, stressing further on the grammatical details and recorrecting and editing Dayānanda's text. The monumental work remains still incomplete. Dayānanda and his institution, the Arya Samaj, have done a lot in the popularization of the Vedic studies in spite of the opposition from the orthodoxy.

Dayānanda's viewpoint is gaining ground; it has given freshness to the Vedic studies, and the old Karmakāṇḍa, for which the Yajuḥ texts were used by traditional ritualists is almost extinct now.

LITURGICAL CONTENTS OF THE YAJURVEDA

My personal contention is that none of the four Vedas (including the rcs, ऋचः, and yajūmsi or yajus) has come down to us for the performance of rituals and ceremonies. They constitute the earliest divine knowledge dawned on the earliest man for the entire mankind for its needs and for the purposefulness of human species. Later on, as human community marched along the periods of history, the already existing Vedic verses and formulas got currency as usage in rituals and ceremonies. This in our literature is known as viniyoga (विनियोग). These viniyogas are of two kinds, the appropriate which have the rupa-samrddhi, (रूपसमुद्धि) or appropriateness in them. The rupa-samrddha viniyogas are those in which the lines or words of the mantra or verse have some direct reference to the function for which the verse is being recited, spoken or repeated. Often, this indication is very minor, usually only verbal, and insufficient. Contrary to it, we have another class of wholly inappropriate viniyogas, where the words of the spoken verse have no reference to the function which is to be performed. In the degraded period of our ecclesiastical decadence, we indulged in the offensive vinivogas also. So long as in our community, we would continue to have ceremonies and rites, the viniyogas would exist, and new viniyogas would be introduced for new rituals, and this is why that even today we are innovating new Vedic viniyogas for our new social ceremonials.

Starting from the period of the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa, the Taittirīya Saṁhitā, down to the period of the Śrauta Sūtras, the Vedic culture has passed through a variety of strata, and under these traditions, in the mediaeval period, Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara wrote their commentaries, and Yājñavalkya and Śāṇḍilya introduced their traditions of expounding the sense of the Vedic verses in the earliest Vedic age.

According to the traditions followed by Uvața and Mahīdhara, the verses and yajus of the Yajurveda, from Chapter to Chapter, had the viniyogas, connected with the great ceremonies as outlined below.

Adhyāya I and II — दर्शपीर्णमास मन्त्राः, verses and formulas for performing the New and Full Moon Sacrifices—milking cows, vow, rice-cake, altar, sacred grass, kindling fire, sacrificial sticks, Viṣṇu-strides.

Adhyaya III - अग्न्याधानोपस्यानण्वातुर्गास्य मन्त्राः।

Formulas for the Agnihotra, morning and evening, with burnt oblations of milk, a daily duty which is obligatory on the householder during (with some exceptions) the whole of his life, and for the four-monthly sacrifice at the beginning of the three seasons (Spring, Rains and Autumn).

Adhyāya IV — अग्निष्टोमे सर्तिवायजमानस्य शालाप्रवेशमारभ्य क्रीतसोमस्य शालाप्रवेशपर्यन्ता मन्त्राः।

The yajamāna and the rtvik (priest) enter together the premises of the yajña, praise Agni, and negotiate for the purchase of Soma—the verses and formulas for this type of ceremony. (The beginning of the Soma sacrifice, which continues up to Adhyāya VIII).

Adhyāya V — सीमिकवेदिप्रधाने आतिष्यमारम्य यूपनिर्माण-पर्यन्ता मन्त्राः। Verses in connection with the Soma fire-altar, selection of the place, shed etc., starting from the reception of guests, to the building of yūpas (the sacrificial posts).

Adhyāya VI — अग्निषोगीये यूप-संस्कारदि सोगामिषवपर्यन्ता मंत्राः।
The sacrificial stake, which may be of any length from 5 cubits to 17 or even more, is then brought to the enclosure,—formulas for its erection; and also the formulas for the morning Soma-pressing.

Formulas for the graha-grahana or drawing cups or libations of Soma juice. He first presses and draws the upāmsu graha or draught, so named from the upāmsu-savana, or low-voiced press-stone used for the purpose. Similar formulas for numerous other grahas — Maitrāvaruṇa, Aśvins, Śukra, Āgrayaṇa, Ukthya, Dhruva, Viprud-Homa, Rtu grahas. After the morning-pressing, formulas start for the midday-pressing and various cups drawn. Then we have formulas for giving gifts of cows and gold to priests (guerdon or dakṣiṇā).

Adhyaya VIII - तृतीय सवनगता आदित्यगृहादि मन्त्राः।

After midday Soma-pressing, begins the third Soma-pressing (i.e. of the evening). Various cups are drawn for this ceremony, like the Aditya-graha, Sāvitra-graha, Pātnīvata-graha, Hari-yojana cup. A mention of nine offerings called Samiṣṭa yajūmṣi, the final sacrificial texts and oblations, sixteen-hymned libations to Indra (पोडगी), formulas for the dvādasāha (twelve-day ceremonial); Gavāmayana for the Garga-trirātra, a festival of three days, with a gift of food and cows. Expiatory formulas.

Adhyaya IX - वाजपेय-राजसूय यज्ञमन्त्राः।

Verses dealing with the Rājasūya Yajña (inauguration of consecration of a king) and the Vājapeya Yajña (draught of strength or cup of victory). These yajñas or sacrifices are the necessary modes of Soma-Sacrifice. (For the Vājapeya, see Sacred Books of the East, XLI, pp. 1-10; Hillebrant, Ritual Literature, pp. 141-143; Weber, Über den Vājapeya (Sitzungs berichte derk. Preussichen Akademie der Wissenchaften, pp. 765-813).

Adhyaya X - अभिषेक जलादानादि राजसूयगत चरक-सौत्रामणी मन्ताः।

The Rājasūya ceremony is continued with formulas for the collection and mixing of waters from different streams and sources for the abhiseka, aspersion or consecration of a king. For details of the Rājasūya sacrifice, see Weber, Über den Rājasūya; Hillebrandt, Ritual Literature, pp. 143-147.

Adhyāya XI — उखा-सम्मरणादि मन्त्राः।

In fact, Adhyāyas XI to XVIII contain formulas for the construction of altar or hearths (391) for the various sacrificial fires, and first and chiefly for building up with about 10,000 bricks, all laid with special consecrating texts, the uttaravedi or High Altar which represents the universe and is identified with Agni itself. The ceremony called Agni-cayana requires a year for its complete performance and is of corresponding importance (see Sacred Books of the East, XLIII, Introduction — Eggeling). The High Altar is constructed in the shape of an outspread bird, vyasta-puccha suparna, probably an eagle or falcon.

In Chapter XI, you would find a reference to spade (abhri, अपि) used for digging up earth and clay for the construction of the altar (verse 8), verses addressing the animals. like horse, ass, he-goat, (12-16, 18), reference to a hollowanthill (valmīka, वल्मीक, 17), lump of clay, representing Agni-Purisya, अग्नि प्रीष्य (16), putting of the horse's fore-foot on the lump of clay (19-21), drawing of a line with the spade round the lump of clay (25-28), spreading a black entelope's skin (Krsnājina, कृष्णाजिनम्), putting on this a lotus-leaf (पृष्कर पर्ण, 28), representing the sky (28-30), pouring water into the hole from which the lump of clay was taken (38), fanning air into the hole (वात-अपक्षेपण, 39), taking up of the edges of corners of the antelope - skin and the lotus-leaf tying them together, and wrapping them round the lump of clay (40-41), addressing the ass (43, 44) and goat (45), holding the clay-lump over the animal (46-47) and other details of mixing clay with hot water, goat-hair, gravel, iron-filing or rust, and small stones (पर्णकषाय, पक्व उदक, 50, अजलोम, शर्करा, अयोरस, अश्मवूर्ण, 54), using the lump of clay for making the Fire-pan (उचा, 56-59); fumigating the pan with the smoke of seven lumps of horse-dung (মদাদিঃ अभ्यशकदिभिः उखां वृपयति, 60); digging of a square hole (अञ्या वर्ष चत्रसं खनति, 61), depositing silently on the hole the bricks called Alllights, विश्वज्योतिः, and heating the fire-pan with fire from the Daksināgni, or Southward hearth, (61), trimming the fire (62), removing the ashes (63), pouring goat's milk into the fire-pan (65), placing of the kindling sticks on the fire (70-83). Most of the details of these viniyogas are taken from Kātyāyana Śrauta Sūtras, XVI.2.7-28; XVI.3.2-30; XVI.4.3-23; 30-42.

Adhyaya XII - उखाधारणादि मन्त्राः।

Formulas relating chiefly to the treatment of Ukhya-Agni of the Fire-pan, and the preparation of the Ahavanīya Fire Altar.

The sacrificer binds on his neck a circular piece of gold with twenty-one knobs sewed up in the black-antelope's skin, and strung above his navel on a hempen string of three strands (यजमानः कण्ठे स्वमं प्रतिमुद्धते परिमण्डलमेकविंशतिषिण्डं कृष्णाजिन निष्यूतं लोमसु शुक्ल कृष्णेषु शणसूत्रे त्रिवृत्यो-तमुपरिनाभि बहिष्यण्डं दृशानो स्वम इति Katyayana, XVI. 5.1)

The gold plate symbolizes the sun, i.e. the Agni, and the knobs represent the twelve months, five seasons, the three worlds and the sun (1). With two small round mats of Munja grass, the Yajamana takes hold of the Fire-pan, and sets it down on a seat or stool of udumbara wood (परिमण्डलाभ्यामिण्डवाभ्यामुखां परिगृहणाति, Kātyāyana XVI, 5.3). The two mats symbolize Heaven and Earth, the Fire-pan is Agni or the Sun, and the seat (आसन्दी) is the ground (2). He takes round his neck the main cord of the suspensory sling in which the Fire-pan is to be carried about (शिक्य पाशमु षड् उद्यामा रज्जवः, शिक्य पाश पजमानः कण्ठे बध्नाति (3) - Kātyāyana, XVI.5.6). He raises up the sling and addresses Ukhya Agni (4). He makes four strides representing the course of Visnu as the Sun (5). He holds the Ukhya Agni towards the east (6). He brings the Fire-pan lower and lower four times (7). Holding the fire-pan above the navel, he addresses Agni (11). He unties the cord of the suspensory sling, and the string of the gold disc (12); holds Agni up to the south-east (13); then lowers him (14); stands by Ukhya Agni (15); worships with Vatsapra rite (वात्सप्रेण) (18); formulas for Vahnivahanam rite of Driving Hither and Thither of Agni (19). The sacrificer stations a car northward of Ukhya Agni turned towards the east and lays a kindling stick (30); lifts up Ukhya Agni together with the seat (31); yokes two oxen and goes eastward (32). When the axle creaks; he mutters a text (33). At his dwelling he takes down Ukhya Agni on a spot that has been raised and sprinkled; lays a kindling stick on the fire (34). He takes the ashes from the Fire-pan in a basket or tray made of the leaves of Paläśa (Butea Frondosa) or other sacred tree and throws them into water (38). With his little finger he takes some ashes from the water and throws part of them back (38). Having returned from the pond, he throws into the Fire-pan some of the ashes taken from water and stands by the fire, and recites the mantras (42). He stands up after a burnt offering of butter and replaces the same fire stick on the Ukhya Agni (44).

Now we have the formulas for the construction of the Garhapatya Agni (the domestic fire-place), for which he sweeps the ground with a Palāśa branch, and throws away the grass and rubbish (45). On this selected spot, he scatters saline earth (ऊपवन् सिकता), and sand over it (46). He surrounds the altar-site with twenty-one small enclosing stones forming a range or rank (परिश्रिद्धिः परिश्रयति पूर्ववद् एकविंशत्या चितः स्थेति (46). He lays four bricks in the middle of the circle (47-50); he further lays down several types of bricks (51-54). He brings the mould from the place of the pit and throws it on the Garhapatya hearth that he is building (56). He throws the Ukhya Agni, that is the fire in the pan on the Garhapatya hearth (57). He fills the Fire-pan with sand; looses it from the suspensory sling and sets it down at a distance of a cubit (अरल्नि मात्र) north of the fire (61). Formulas for averting Nirrti, the goddess of Destruction. He lays down black bricks (कृष्ण इष्टका) dedicated to Nirrti, that have been baked with rice husks, in some natural hollow in the ground or a barren place (पाकेन कृष्णवर्णा त्पैरेव पक्वाः)(62). He throws down on the further side of the bricks the suspensory sling, the cord of the gold plate, the two reedmats and the wooden seat (शिक्यं क्वनपाशं इग्रइवे आसन्दीं च नैर्ऋतीप्टकातः पश्चात् क्षिपति (65). Standing behind the right or southern hip of Agni or the Fire-altar, the Adhvaryu addresses the plough, to which oxen are being yoked (67). On the side of the altar, near the enclosing, he ploughs four furrows (चतस सीताः कृषेति), south, west, north and east (69). Then he looses and addresses the oxen (73); he places a bunch of kuśa (বুৰা) grass in the middle of the Altar site and offers an oblation with five takings of butter (74). Having poured fifteen jars of water on the Altar site, he sows the seed of various plants and herbs reciting five triplets (75-96). With the wooden sword, he takes from outside the fire-altar four bricks each made of a lump of clay, and lays them on the body of the altar site (103-112). He touches the sand that has been spread on the body of the altar (113). Finally, the verses are addressed to the Fires as they are led forward, preceded by a horse, preferably white, representing Agni or the Sun (if horse is not available, then a bullock) (115-117). These are all the viniyogas or the prescribed details which are to be performed, whilst reciting the verses of this Adhyava XII. For these viniyogas, see Katyayana Sutras (XVI.5.3; 6; 7; 11-20; 31; 32; XVI.6.15-21; 26-30; XVI.7.1-8; 14: XVII.1. 11-12: 17-19: 31: 23: XVII.2. 4: 6: 11: 12: 20-21: XVII.3.3; 8; 11; 13; 15; 16; 20; 21).

Adhyaya XIII - चित्युपधाने पुष्करपर्णाद्युपधान मंत्राः।

Formulas for the laying down of the Lotus-leaf which represents sky; the solemn setting of various bricks, the burial of the tortoise, the disposal of the victim's heads and other ceremonies connected with the construction of the Ahavanīya Fire altar. The names of the bricks are Svayamatrnna (a naturally perforated or porous brick) (16); Dviyajus brick, so named after Indra and Agni (22); Retah-sic (Seed-pouring) brick (24); Rtavya (seasonal bricks dedicated to months Madhu and Mādhava) (25); Āsādhā brick, the Invincible one (26). He then lays the anointed tortoise (representing the sun or Prajapati) on a bed of Avaka plants (27-30). On the north side of the porous brick, he places a pestle and mortar (उलुखल-मुसल) of udumbara wood (33); the Fire-pan is placed on the mortar, and he pounds the prepared clay and throws it on the ground before the Fire-pan which is then set upon it (34); then he offers oblations on the Fire-pan (36); throws a splinter of gold, the symbol of purity and immortality, into the mouth of each animal-head (पञ्चपश्चां मुखे एकैके हिरण्यशकलं क्षिपति 38). He thrusts a splinter of gold into each victim's left nostril, left ear, and right ear (39, 40); puts horses head on the north-east side; ox's head on the southeast side; ram's head on north-west side, and the head of he-goat on the south-western side (42-45); offers an oblation on the human head (46); then he removes all these heads one by one (47-51). He worships the half-finished Fire-altar (52). He mounts on the altar and lays down five sets of various bricks (53-58). These viniyogas have been prescribed by the Kātyāyana Sūtras, and Uvaṭa and Mahīdhara have included them in their commentary on the Yajurveda (See Kātyāyana XVII.3.27-29; XVII.4.1; 3; 6; 7; 12; 13; 15; 18; 20; 22-28; XVII.5.2-14; 17-19; XVII.6.1-5.)

Adhyaya XIV - द्वितीयादिचितित्रयोपधान मंत्राः।

Laying of the Second Layer of bricks, the first layer representing this terrestrial world; five Aśvini bricks; two Rtavyas; five Vaisvadevi bricks; the Pranabhrts (Breath supporting) bricks; Apasyas or watery bricks) (1-8); nineteen Vayasyā bricks (the vital-vigour bricks (9). Now he sets the Third Layer of the Altar (11); lays down five Disyas (पश्चित्रयाः), or regional bricks above the Vaisvadevi bricks of the second layer (13); then a Viśvajyotis brick i.e. All-light brick (14); two Rtavya (bricks seasonal bricks) called Nabhas and Nabhasya (15); two more of the seasonal bricks, Isa and Ūria (food and fuel, or sap and vigour) (16); then the Pranabhrts. Breath-supporting bricks (17); then Chandasyas or Metrebricks (18); then twelve bricks, addressed as the metres of the deified objects (19); next twelve bricks after the deities enumerated (20); then the bricks called Valakhilvas, representing the vital breathings, seven in front and seven behind (21). Now begins the Fourth Layer, setting eighteen bricks representing Stomas or Hymns of Praise (23); Sprta-bricks (स्वत्) or Deliverers (24); two Rtavyas representing the season of the months sahas and sahasya (27); Srsti-bricks or pertaining to creation (28); then nine bricks, pertaining to seven vital airs of the head and two below (29); and so on, corresponding to odd numbers 1, 3, 5, 7, 9, 11 to 33 (28-31). The basis of this viniyoga is the Kätyāyana Sūtras (XVII. 8.17; 20; 22; 24-26; XVII.9.3; 4; 6; 8; 10-13; 15; XVII.10.7; 9; 10; 12; 14; 16; 18; 19; also the Satapatha Brāhmana, (VIII. 2.1.1 to VIII.4.3.19).

Adhyaya XV - पञ्चमचिति मंत्राः। Setting of the Fifth Layer with bricks called Asapatnas (असपत्नाः) or Free from Enemies. He also lays Virai bricks (so called after a metre of this name) (4-19). He lays Chandasyāh (छन्दस्याः) bricks (Metre-bricks) first, bricks corresponding to Gayatri metre (20), then to Tristup metre (23); then to Jagatī metre (26); to Anustup metre (29); to Brhatī metre (32); to Usnik metre (32); to Kakup metre (38); to Pankti metre (41); to Padapankti metre (44); to Aticchandas or Hyper-metre (47); and to Dvipada metre (48). Now he lays down the punaściti (Piling up again, प्नि विति), a second layer of eight bricks at the top of the Garhapatya or Householder's hearth (49-54). Now he lays Rtavyās or seasonal bricks, ऋतव्या (57); Viśvajyotis or All-light brick (58); the Lokamprna, लोकम्पणा, bricks or room-filling or complementary bricks (59); now he scatters the base soil over the layer and sets the brick Vikarnī, विकर्णी, and the porous brick Svayamātrnnā (62, 63). Now he stands by the Altar and consecrates it by scattering over it a thousand bits of gold (हिरण्य शकल), two hundred at the recitation of each formula (65).

(See Kātyāyana XVII. 11.1-10; XVII.12. 1-27).

Adhyaya XVI - शतरुद्रिय होम मन्त्राः।

Śata-rudriya, a Litany accompanying 425 oblations, addressed to the Hundred forms or powers of Rudra, representing life and nature in their more terrible phases. Agni, the Fire-altar, on completion, has become Rudra and this ceremony is performed to avert his wrath and secure his favour. This chapter is also known as Rudrādhyāyī. The Taittirīya recension of it is regarded as an Unpanișat also (Prof. A. Weber's translation).

Adhyaya XVII - चित्यारोहणादि मंत्राः।

Propitiatory and preparatory ceremonies with Agni and the Fire-altar. See Katyayana XVIII.2.1; 9; 10; 11; XVIII.3.5; 7; 8; 12; 13; 14; 18; 19; 21; XVIII.4.2; 6; 8; 9; 23-26) Adhyaya XVIII - वसोर्घारा । Ceremonies Vasordhara or the Stream or Shower of Riches, a part of consecration service for Agni or King on the completion of the Fire-altar which is identified with him. The sacrificer offers an uninterrupted series of 401 oblations of clarified butter poured from a large ladle of udumbara wood, while the Adhvaryu recites the formulas which are to give for the sacrificer all the temporal and spiritual blessings therein indicated [all the grains (12), all the metals (13), all the abstract aspirations (8), agricultural and floral things (9), and so on]. Enumeration of odd numbers (24) and even numbers (25), cattle (26, 27). Only a few references from katyayana Sūtras. See XVIII. 6.16-17; 22.

Adhyaya XIX- सौत्रामणी।

Sautrāmanī, a sacrifice originally instituted to expiate and counteract the evil effects of excessive indulgence in Soma drinking (See X. 31). The ceremony is prescribed as a means of obtaining general eminence; for a dethroned king to procure his restoration; for a Ksattriya to secure victory; for a Vaisya to acquire cattle and wealth. It consists mainly in the offering to the Aśvins, Sarasvatī and Indra, of surā (स्रा)a spirituous liquor concocted of saspa (शय) (husked rice or young grass), tokman (green barley) and laja (parched grain) (विलडा वीहयः यवास्तोक्माः भृष्ट वीहयो लाजाः), ground up with Soma roots to serve as yeast and the liquor of the two odanas (ओदनी) or two types of rice, and syamaka, or millet boiled in water, the mixture being called māsara (मासर). (For details of the yeast fermentation, see Katyayana, XIX.1.22-28 and Mahidhara on XIX.1). The prototype of the sacrifice is the cure of Indra by Sarasvatī and the Asvins, when he was suffering from overindulgence in his favourite beverage. The name is derived from Sutrāman (स्-त्रामन्), the good deliverer or protector, Indra.

Adhyaya XX - सेकासन्दादिहोत्रान्ता मन्त्राः।

The Sautrāmaṇī is continued. An āsandi or Sacrificer's seat or stool, representing a throne, is placed between the two altars, two of the legs being on the southern and two on the northern ground. A black antelope's skin is spread over it on which the sacrificer sits and recites the formulas. (Āprī or Propitiatory Hymns from verse 37-44) (See Kātyāna-Sūtras XIX.4.8; 9, 14; 19; 20; 21; XIX.5.8-10; 13-20. XIX.6.13; 18-21)

Adhyaya XXI — याज्यादि प्रेषणान्ता मन्त्राः।

The formulas of the Sautramani are continued from the previous Books or Adhyayas.

Adhyaya XXII - अश्वमेधः।

The Aśvamedha or Horse - sacrifice, a very ancient and most important ceremony which only a King can perform. Its object is the acquisition of power and glory, acknowledged pre-eminence over neighbouring princes and the general prosperity of the Kingdom by the fulfilment of the wishes expressed in verse 22 of this adhyāya.

The Adhvaryu ties a necklace or a chain of gold round the neck of the sacrificer (1); he girds, and addresses the horse (3); he sprinkles the horse in standing water; he threatens any man who kills the horse, and so prevents the sacrifice (5). The horse is led back to the sacrificial fire, and the oblations offered to several deities (6). The Adhvaryu and the sacrificer whisper a formula in the horse's ear (19), and oblations offered to fire (20). The Adhvaryu whispers to the Brahman priest the blessings which the King hopes the sacrifice will secure in his kingdom (our National Anthem, as if), (22). Homage to various gods (23); names of months (31); count of numbers from one to hundred-and-one (34). (See Kātyāyana Sūtras, XX. 1.9; 28; 37; XX.2.3-4; XX.3.3; XX.2.18; 2; XX.3.4; XX.4.3-5; 9-10; 11; 31).

Adhyaya XXIII — अश्वमेधः।

The Asvamedha ceremonies subsequent to the return of the Horse from his wanderings are continued. The sacrificer offers two Mahiman or Grandeur libations, so called from the name of the golden vessels in which they are presented (1). He yokes the horse to a golden chariot (5). Three other horses are harnessed to the same chariot (6). When the horse has been brought back from the water, the Chief Queen and two other royal consorts anoint him with clarified butter; the Chief Queen anoints the fore-quarters and the other consorts the barrel and hindquarters (8). Now intervenes a Brahmodyam, a discussion in questions and answers on cosmogonical and mystical doctrines (9-12). A horse, a hornless goat, a wild ox, a ram etc. are bound to the sacrificial stakes (13). The Horse is slaughtered with the verse (15), (which has no sanction of slaughtering; it is merely a verse, paying highest tribute to the heroic Horse). In verse 19-20, we have the revolting obscene words in regards to the Chief Queen and the Horse (Mahīdhara and Kātyāyana XX.6.13-14). The three queens with 101 needles, gold, silver and copper mark out lines on the body of the Horse for dissection (32); (Kātyāyana XX.6.21). The Yajus do not sanction these heinous performances. The Brahmodyam, finishes at the verse 62, which began from the verse 9. (See Kātyāyana, XX. 1.27; 28; 37; XX.2.3-4; 18; 20; XX.3.3; 4; XX.4.3-5; 9-11; 31)

Adhyaya XXIV - आश्वमेधिक पशूनां देवता सम्बन्धाभिधायिनो मन्त्राः।

Exact enumeration of the animals that are to be tied to the sacrificial stakes (यप) and in the intermediate spaces with the name of deities and deified entities to which they are severally dedicated. The principal stake, the eleventh and the midmost of the twenty-one, called the agnistha (अग्निष्ठ), because it stands nearest the sacrificial fire, is mentioned first. About fifteen victims are bound to each of these stakes. all domestic animals, the total number being 327. In the spaces between the stakes 282 wild animals, from elephant and rhinoceros to bee and fly are temporarily confined, to be freed when the ceremony is concluded, bringing the total number of sacrificial animals up to 609. "There is perhaps some exaggeration in the number and some almost impossible animals are mentioned, but it must be remembered that the Asvamedha was a most important tribal solemnity of rare occurrence and that no effort would be spared to assure its performance with all possible splendour." (Griffith)

Adhyaya XXV - अश्वाक्नेभ्यो दैवता होमः।

The Horse-sacrifice is continued. In the first nine verses, (which constitute a Brāhmaṇa, or Exegetical Treatise, as distinct from the texts and formulas) oblation is made of the roasted flesh (अपितं मांतम्—Mahīdhara), the various parts of the victim being assigned with the utterance of Svāhā to a host of deities (1-9); then follow the four texts of the Inviting and Offering Verses of the Sacrifice of the Horse and other victims to Prajāpati (प्राजापत्यपश्चामश्वादीना याज्यानुवाक्याः) (10-13). Then follow the ten verses, Inviting and Offering Verses, of oblations of marrow or omentum and rice-cakes to the All-

Gods (वैश्वदेवपशुवपा पुरोहाश पशूनां दश ऋचः—Mahīdhara) (14-23). Then follows the Asvastuti or Eulogy of the Horse in twenty-two verses (24-45) (See Kātyāyana Sūtras, XX.8.5-6, 18; 7; 12—only casual references to this treatise in Mahīdhara's commentary).

Adhyāya XXVI — खिलानि ।

This Chapter contains sacrificial texts and formulas connected with the Lunar Sacrifices; oblations to the Manes (Pitr), the Agnihotra, the seasonal sacrifices, the Vajapeya, the Rajasūya, the Sautrāmaņī, the Asvamedha etc. which have formed the subjects of earlier Adhyāyas.

Adhyāya XXVII — पश्चचितिकाग्निमन्त्राः, concerning the pañcacitika altar.

The subject matter of Adhyāya XXVI continues. The first nine verses are to be used at an animal sacrifice between the 9th and 10th of the normal Gāyatrī kindling-verses recited while the sacrificial fire is being lighted or when additional fuel is applied to it. From the verse 11 to 22, we have the famous Āprī hymns, twelve in number. The formulas to be employed in the Agni-Cayana ceremony at the time when the sacrificer touches as much as he can of the surface of newly constructed Fire-altar (45). Agni is addressed, as identified with Prajāpati, the presiding deity of the year and with the Altar. Samvatsara and the rest are the names given to the years of the five-year cycle intended, with the aid of an intercalary month, to adjust the difference between the lunar and the solar year.

Adhyaya XXVIII — सौत्रामण्यां पशुप्रयाजानुयाजप्रैषमन्त्राः।

Supplementary to Adhyāyas XIX—XXI, which treat of the Sautrāmanī ceremony. Verses 1-11 are again Āprī or the Propitiatory Hymn; devoted to Samidh, Barhi, Tanūnapāta, Devīḥ-dvāraḥ, Uṣāsā-naktā, Daivyā hotārā, Tisro devīḥ, Tvaṣṭṛ, Vanaspati, Svāhākṛta etc. (Agni under various names and titles).

Adhyaya XXIX — अश्वमेषः।

Aśvamedha again as a supplement to Adhyayas XXII-

XXV, Aprī or Propitiatory Hymn (1-11); Sacrificial Horse is identified with the sun (12-25). Again Aprī hymn (28-36); eulogy of war-weapons (38-56). See Rv. VI.75 and VI.47.26-31 also.

Adhyaya XXX - प्रथमेधः।

Puruṣamedhaḥ—Human Sacrifice—an old established custom among almost all nations of antiquity (Griffith). The ceremony was to be performed by a Brāhmaṇa or a Rājanya, and was expected to obtain for the sacrificer universal preeminence and every blessing which the Horse Sacrifice might have failed to secure. The ritual resembles in many respects that of the Aśvamedha; man, the noblest victim, being actually or symbolically sacrificed instead of the horse, and man and women of various tribes, figures, complexions, character and professions being attached to the sacrificial stakes in place of the tame and wild animals enumerated in Adhyāya XXIV. The nominal victims were afterwards released uninjured. The ceremony was merely symbolical or emblematical, a type of the allegorical self-immolation of Puruṣa, Embodied Spirit or the Cosmic Man.

The entire chapter enumerates professions visualized in a well-developed society.

Adhyāya XXXI — पुरुषसूक्तम् ।

The Puruṣa Sukta, the Cosmic Man — the Person, the Embodied spirit or Man personified and regarded as the soul and the original source of the universe. This Adhyāya in essential features occurs in the Rk and the Atharva Samhitās too (Rv. X.90; Av. XIX.6). For Sādhyas (9), see Yv. XXIV. 27; XXIX.11, XXX.15

Adhyaya XXXII — सर्वमेषः।

Text and formulas to be used during the performance of the Sarvamedha or the Universal Success and Prosperity Sacrifice; a ten day ceremony that ranks higher and is considered to be more important than even the Puruṣamedha. After performing this sacrifice, the sacrificer has to leave his home and retire to wilderness for the rest of his life. This Adhyāya is also sometimes known as the Tadeva Upaniṣad (तदेव उपनिषद्) so named after the first two words.

Adhyāya XXXIII — सर्वमिथे पूरोहचः — A continuation of the universal sacrifice from the previous Adhyāya. Most of the verses have been repeated from the Rgveda.

Adhyāya XXXIV — शिवसङ्कल्य मन्त्राः — The first six verses of this Adhyāya constitute the Śiva-Samkalpa Upaniṣat (the Right-intentioned) from the refrain or the concluding words of all the verses. The rest of the Adhyāya is a miscellaneous compilation of texts, to be used in the performance of the General Sacrifice.

Adhyāya XXXV — पितृमेषः — Sacrifice to the Fathers or Ancestral Manes. Contains formulas used in the cremation ceremony.

Adhyāya XXXVI — प्रवासीनिकाश्वमेधोपनिषत् — Prayers for long life, unimpaired faculties, health, strength, prosperity, security, tranquility, and contentment of the Pravargya ceremony which is a preparatory rite of the Soma Sacrifice.

Adhyāya XXXVII — महाचीर-सम्भरण प्रोक्षणादि मन्त्राः — Formulas to be used at the actual performance of the Pravargya ceremony when the necessary animals, vessels and implements have been brought to the sacrificial ground and the propitiatory texts have been recited by priests.

Mahavira and Gharma are two Chief Cauldrons.

Adhyāya XXXVIII — महाबीर निरूपणे घर्मधुग्दोहनम्—Pravargya formulas are mentioned.

Adhyaya XXXIX — प्रवर्गे घर्मभेदे प्रायश्चित्तम्-Expiatory formulas intended to remedy (निष्कृति) and atone (प्रायम्बित्त) for any failure or defect in the performance of the Pravargya ceremony; in case, for instance, the cauldron should break, or the contents be allowed to boil over, or the cow give sour or bloody milk.

Adhyāya XL — ईशावास्योपनिषत्—The well known Upanişat, called İsāvāsya or Īsa from its initial words (ईशावास्योपनिषद् or ईशोपनिषत्).

CONCEPT OF YAJÑA IN THE YAJURVEDA

The words  $yaj\bar{n}a$  and yajuh are derived from the same root yaj,  $\sqrt{4\pi l}$ , and hence it would be worthwhile to discuss the concept of  $yaj\bar{n}a$  in the light of the Yajurveda. Traditionally, as we have in the Dhātupāṭha (I.728), (1), the word yaj ( $4\pi l$ ) has three connotations: (i)  $Devap\bar{u}j\bar{a}$ , i.e. reverential adoration and worship of deva, an enlightened being, a deity or God; sangatikarana, i.e. conjunction or establishing a link between two or many; and  $d\bar{a}na$ , the act of giving, donation, or liberality 1.

Devapūjā or reverantal adoration itself has a very wide significance, depending on what we understand by the term deva, for we have again in the Dhatupatha, elucidating this "दिव् क्रीडा-विजिगीपा-व्यवहार-द्यति-स्तृति-मोद-मद-स्वप्न-कान्तिगतिष्"<sup>2</sup>. The devas may be organic or inorganic, living or non-living, cetana or jada; a reverential attitude towards a living being is different from the attitude towards a non-living object. Both of them are to be invoked and evoked. Invocation of a personal deity is different from the invocation of a personified deity or from the invocation of deified natural forces. Again, the devas may be human and non-human both. The word "pūjā" means adoration or invocation or appropriate homage, which in the limiting case of a non-sentient being means proper utilization or samyak-vyavahāra, (सम्यक् व्यवहार). In its wide spectrum, the devapūjā in case of the Lord Supreme would be different from the pūjā of a preceptor, a learned, a saintly person, a great teacher or one elder in a family; it would be again different in the case of the non-sentient devas like the sun, the wind, fire, clouds, water, air and similar other environmental forces or deities of Nature.

Based on the derived or root meanings, the word yajña would have a three-fold interpretation : (i) Adoration of such learned and dedicated persons as are dedicated to intellectual pursuits in all fields of knowledge, and this would include not only verbal reverence to them but also providing them facilities to work and normal comforts of every day life. This is devapūjā. (ii) Proper understanding of the laws of affinity, and its opposite, the disunion, of synthesis and analysis, of integration and disintegration, as we study in pure or fundamental sciences, and then the utilization of this knowledge in the applied sciences, inclusive of technology and industry; and for these purposes setting up of organizations for healthy discussions and team-work. This is sangati-karana. (iii) Communicating, imparting and sharing of knowledge with others, and similar acts of benevolence, liberality and gifts, financial or otherwise. This is dana karanam. 1

The Veda takes yajāa in its widest connotations. A yajāa is verily the sresthatama karma, the noblest and supreme action or performance in the Vedic sense, as is indicated in the opening kaṇḍikā of the Yajurveda. Yāska's Nirukta refers to a phrase yajurbhir-yajanti, which means that one should perform yajāa, repeating the texts of the Vedas, called yajūmṣi (यन्धि), whilst one can enlighten himself with the verses of Rk and sing the glory of God through the verses known as Sāman. The range and scope of yajāa is indicated by the Yajurveda by including the terms 'भेष्ठतमाय कर्मणे' in the opening verse of the Samhitā, and by speaking 'कुर्वन्नचेह कमिणि' in the last chapter of the same Book (XL.2), which has come to be known as the Īšāvāsyopaniṣād also.

Whilst in the earliest period of human history, the term  $yaj\bar{n}a$  was taken in the widest sense, later on, in our period that extended up to the worst period of decadance, it got confined to liturgical fire rituals known as the  $dravya\ yaj\bar{n}a^1$ . Even then, the wideness of the definitions clearly indicates that all supreme acts, done with an idea of rendering service to the society with dedication and selflessly come under the purview of  $yaj\bar{n}a$ .

devatā tyāgaḥ" (1.2.2), as the definition of the term  $yaj\bar{n}a$ ; the  $yaj\bar{n}a$  is that performance which brings a coherence between dravya (ह्रव्य, material substance offered as an oblation), the deity or  $devat\bar{a}$ , and  $ty\bar{a}ga$  (त्याग, offering). The  $devat\bar{a}$  is to be invoked, and material substance dravya has to be offered (त्याग). The process which involves these three; the de-

We have in the Katyayana Śrauta Sūtra: "dravyam offered (त्याग). The process which involves these three : the deity, the oblation-material, and the action of giving away or offering, is known as yajña. Giving away of any material becomes a supreme act when something has been given to a worthy recipient, without the acceptance of any reward, not even public approbation, i.e. with the renouncement of the fruit that accrues from the action. The doctrine of this concept has been adequately expressed in the last Chapter of the Yajurveda : तेन त्यक्तेन मुझीया मा गुपः कस्यस्विद धनम् (XL.1), and क्वंत्रेवेह

In general, we find in the performance of dravya-yajñas, the oblations are offered to fire or agni, but there is a sanction of such yajña-karmas, where the oblations are offered to objects other than fire; for example, at the close of the Somasacrifice, we have got avabhrta homa (अवमृत होम), where oblations are offered to water (अपमु जुहोति, Kātyā. Śrauta, X.8.26); there is a reference to the offering of clarified butter on the spot of land where the cow puts the seventh step, when she is led to the Soma-seller (सप्तमे पदे जुहोति—Taitt. Sam. VI.1.8).

कर्माणि जिजीविषेच्छतं समाः । एवं त्विय नान्यवैतोऽस्ति न कर्म लिप्यते नरे (XL.2).

For several types of yajña, like dravya-yajña (इव्ययक्त), tapo-yajña (तपोयक्त), yoga-yajña (योग यक्त), svādhyāyayajña (त्वाध्याय यक्त), and jñāna-yajña (ज्ञानयक्त), see Bhagvat-gītā IV. 29-33.

Offering does not in such cases mean consignment to the flames of fire. It is mere an utsarjana or giving-away process in a technical ritual sense.

Srauta and Smārta Yajnas—Of the two categories, known as the śrauta and the smārta, such yajnas are technically called śrauta yajnas (প্রার্থর) as they derive their sanction or support from a certain text of the Śruti (which means the revealed Vedic Samhitās, as well as the Brāhmana treatises written to elaborate, expound and to supplement the sense of the Samhitās). Being the supplementary books of the Samhitās, the Brāhmana treatises came also to be known as, the Śruti. The Taittirīya Samhitā and the Śatapatha Brāhmana in the rigid sense are not the Śrutis.

The smārta yajāas are those which derive their sanction from the grhya sūtras (मृत्यूज) and the dharma-sūtras (मर्म सूज). They usually deal with ceremonials or saṅskāras obligatory to be performed in a family for the good of individual and the society. They have generally no direct sanction in the Śruti texts. Since they have secondary or indirect sanctions (mostly inappropriate viniyoga), they are known as smārta, a word derived from smṛti, meaning memory as different from the direct vision or the pratyakṣa.

Nitya, Naimittika and Kāmya Yajñas—There is another way of classifying the yajñas, śrauta and smārta both under three heads; the nitya, the naimittika and the kāmya. The nitya yajñas are always performed at the sanctioned time; they are in a way obligatory; they are not performed for the fulfilment of a definite objective; but if not performed, they accrue certain type of sin, technically called pratyavāya (प्रत्यवाय). In fact, the nitya yajñas are the obligatory duties which are conducive to the growth of a healthy mind and healthy spirit, and hence, like the normal food, they have a greater significance than performing the naimittika or kāmya yajñas.

The naimittika yajñas are performed consecutive to the sufferings or a calamity, like house-fire, earthquake, volcanoic eruption, flood, excessive rainfall or a terrible draught. The kāmya yajñas are performed for the fulfilment of ordinary desires and aspirations, as for the purposes of procurement of wealth, progeny, or success in war-efforts, trade and business.

Pāka-yajna, Soma yaga and Paśu-bandha-The yajnas have a third type of classification in respect to the offerings made. In the pāka yajñas, the offerings and oblations are of edible substances, like milk amd milk products, barley, rice and sesame; they are usually cooked on fire before using them as offerings and are hence known the paka yajña (purodāša and caru were prepared in the old Vedic times).

Then we have Soma yagas, in which the Soma or the medicinal herbs, in the form of dried forms, or their aqueous extracts, or the pūtikas (प्रतिका-a particular grass) indigenous to the localities, where the yajña is to be performed, are used as offerings.

Lastly, we have the pasu-bandha (cattle-fair) or the exhibition of cattle and other animals; this is not properly a vajña in the sense that the offering consists of animal tiesh.

Twenty-one types of yajñas -The Gopatha Brahmana, belonging to the school of the Atharva Samhita, classifies vaiñas in three groups of seven each.

Soma-yaiñas-(सप्तसत्याः)-Agnistoma, Atyagnistoma, Ukthya, Sodásiman Vajapeya, Atiratra, and Āptorvāma.

Seven Paka-yajfias (सप्तपाक यज्ञाः)-Prātah Homa (morning Homa); Sāyam Homa (evening Homa), Sthālīpāka, Bali-vaiśvadeva, Pitr-yajña, Astakā and Paśuh.

Seven Havir-yajnas (सप्त हवियंताः) - Agnyadheya, Agnihotra, Darsa (dedicated to New-moon), Paurnamäsa (dedicated to Full-Moon), Nava-Sasyesti (to harvest or new grains), Caturmasya (three in a year, comprising of four months each), and Paśu-bandha (cattle-fair). 1

These twenty-one yajñas have been called त्रिवृतं सप्ततन्तु (trivṛtam sapta-tantu), three rounds of seven threads; and are sased on a Vedic reference (Paippalāda Samhitā): अग्निर्यज्ञ त्रिवृतं सप्ततन्त्रम् (V.28.1).

Srauta-yagas according to the Katyayana Srauta Sutras — Mahīdhara based his commentary on the Yajurveda mostly on the Katyayana's Śrauta Sutras, which describe as many as twenty-three śrauta-yagas (the Adhyayas or Chapters are indicated in the brackets).

Why the Dravya-yajñas?—It has been a controversial question whether the concept of offering material substances to fire or water has actually a sanction in the Vedic texts (the sainhitās) or the practice has been imposed at a later date on the Śrutis. My personal view is that prior to the discovery of fire by the efforts of human beings through a process of attrition, the ritual concerning yajñas were not existent. Of course, the cosmic yajña was there which brought clouds and other blessings. In such a context, we developed the connotations of idhma (fuel), ājya (which now means butter, but originally it might have meant water like the terms ghrta, and sarpih, which also mean water—Nigh. I.12). In Chapter XXXI, the cosmic yajña, performed by the cosmic man (Virāt Puruṣa), we have the three seasons spring, summer, and autumn called respectively as ajya, idhma and havih.1

It has also been suggested that the first few batches of human creation, through whom the Divine Knowledge dawned on humanity, were people of great integrity. The mysteries of Nature were transparently clear to them; that is, every thing was pratyaksa to them. In that sense, not only they saw Nature to her depth, they could follow the inner, meanings of the cryptic Vedic Texts also.<sup>2</sup> Later on, the society deteriorated to the extent, that in certain places, it became primitive. In this context, it has been said that the laws of Nature, or the dictates of Prajapati, the Lord Supreme, which remain unviolated by Devas and Pitrs and by animals, got by and by violated by men, and just to help them or to lead them to the right conduct of knowledge, the Vedic rituals came into practice. Man alone violates Nature's Laws to extreme, so says the great Yajñavalkya in his Satapatha Brahmana.3 A similar view has been expressed by Caraka in his Samhita on therapeutics and medicine; the earlier man did not violate the conducts of life as to health and food (āhāra and vihāra), and he needed no system of medicine. In these natural habits, animals, as if, stand exemplary,

As the days passed by and as the civilization and culture developed through human efforts, it became necessary to meet the new challenges, and severe hazards of a growing society. In this context, the practice of yajāas came into existence, and in the early part of our human history, the yajāas, fire ceremonials, and yajāasālās (the campus of these ceremonies) became man's first open air observatories and laboratories. Round them, our ancestors got acquaintance with the mysteries of Nature in every field of discipline.

Whatever did they discover, whatever idhma they found and whatever ājya they conceived, they offered them to fire. The common fuel (idhma) was wood, and purīṣa, the common ājya was cow's clarified butter, and the common haviḥ consisted of barley, rice, sesame, milk and milk products, herbs and the like. The dravya-yajāa became by and by more important along with man's discoveries and his cultural activities in home and outside. The man-discovered fire became the central place for all thrills of human activity.

Human efforts have been from the earliest times directed towards understanding Nature. This has been technically called daivata. Since Nature's all forces have been known as Viśve-devāḥ or devatās, what pertains to a devatā is daivata. The relation of yajña to devatā is of a flower to fruit.* Flower leads to a fruit and similarly the yajña leads to understanding the divine forces, the mysteries of Nature, or in other words yajña provides an opportunity for the development of science and for the utilization of this knowledge for a common good. When one understands the divine forces, he understands the divinity working behind them, and thus the yajñas lead to spirituality (ātma-bhāva or adhyātma).*

It has thus been so often said, that the dravya-yajñas were introduced later on in the society of men as they developed their culture and drifted from the normal mode of living. The yajñas of this type were meaningless to the earliest men who did not pollute the environments in any walk of life.

Four Wonders.

Man very soon realized that there are four great wonders around himself, i.e. in his beautiful surroundings. Two of them are concerning the universe itself: (i) the macrouniverse, and (ii) the micro-universe. The former in extension is infinite (and thus unmeasurable) and the latter, the micro one is unfathomable or incomprehensible in depth or

Reference to yājāa (বারু) and the reference to divine knowledge (ইবর) is to flower and the fruit coming out of it. The same relation of flower and fruit exists between devatā and the adhyātma (the soul).

Flower: Fruit: yajña: devata: devatā: ātman.

subtility or in the dimension of infinitesimality.

(iii) Along with the macro and micro-universes, the third wonder, a wonder of wonders, is our own human complex. Of course, the body complex of the tiny little insects, and big animals like hippo, rhinoceros and elephant is also wonderful, but for various reasons, man is regarded as a gem in creation, with intricacies and complexities of his body structure. Man's anatomy and physiology, his mental and supramental make-up are most amazing. (iv) The fourth wonder is the life that throbs in microbes and the infinitestimally small creatures, the link between inorganic and organic existences. We shall call these wonders as (i) Virāt Brahmānda (macro universe), (ii) Anu Brahmānda (micro universe); (iii) Sthūla Pinda (the body complexes of the highly evolved species); and (iv) the Sūkṣma Pinda (the complex structure of microbes, spores, virus, bacilli, genus etc.).

Yajnas as Dramatizations of Creative Processes

Yajñas, particularly those accompanying luxurious details, are nothing more than dramatizations of the events that are taking place round us in the universe, the physical and biological, (physical, the brahmanda, and biological, the pinda) and through these dramatic representations, the ancient sages of India tried to popularize knowledge. concerning the mysteries of Nature. Such a study was an intellectual approach to God through the appreciation of His divine art. The Lord Supreme is the creator of micro and macro-worlds, and this creation is His supreme art. Yajña is an approach to the artist through the appreciation of his art. The entire universe from microbic to the macro-cosmos throbs with our Lord's activity which has to be studied through Nature and through the revealed texts. Then it has to be appreciated, and finally, the knowledge thus gained, should be made available to common folk in lucid and interesting manners. Our old yajñas were small dramas of such experiences; and through them the knowledge was not only acquired but it could be communicated to others and popularized during those long periods of our history when the art of writing printing and sophisticated demonstrations was not known. What we learn through the detailed charts and maps was imparted through these yajñas, carefully planned and meaningfully outlined.

The concept of devatas helps us in the study and presentation of the details. They are symbolic like the unknown quantites x, y, and z of algebra, which may represent any thing in the respective contexts. We have a long list of such devatas. sometimes as many as dozens or even approaching hundred. Whenever the terms of description are only a few, eight or ten popular devatās would do; they are repeated from event to event in their varying contexts. The modern physical sciences take the help of the long alphabet for these representations -a, b, c, d..., l, m, n,...,p, q, r..., u, v, w, x, y or z, written with capitals or small letters in script; and when we need even more symbolizations, we take the help of Greek letters alpha, beta etc. of different prints. In the old Indian mathematics, the unknown quantities x, y, z,- were represented by the names of different colours, nīlaka (blue), pītaka (yellow), etc. as introduced by Aryabhata I.

It was thus an ingenuity that ancient sages through the help of the dravya-yajñas could present the entire panorama or drama of the events happening in the physical universe. This we call as the cosmic yajña (sṛṣṭi-yajña). Our men of wisdom in such contexts developed a type of logic known as the samhitā tarka (group-analogies), a type of study based on parallelism. Such associative parallelisms are seen both in the Yajurveda and the Atharvaveda in large numbers. We shall quote one as an illustration from the Atharvaveda, where we have a set of six verses, daily recited in our prayers under the heading of manasā parikramā.

The opening lines of these six verses are:

प्राची दिगग्निरिषपितरसितो रिक्षताऽदित्या इषवः । दक्षिणा दिगिन्द्रोऽधिपितः तिरिश्चराजी रिक्षता पितर इषवः । प्रतीची दिग् वरुणोऽधिपितः पृदाकू रिक्षताद्रमिषवः । उदीची दिक् सोमोऽधिपितः स्वजो रिक्षताऽशनिरिषवः । धुवा दिक् विष्णुरिषपितः कल्माषगीवो रिक्षताऽवीरुध इषवः । ऊर्ध्वा दिक् बृहस्पितः श्वित्रो रिक्षता वर्षमिषवः ।

In this set of six verses, there is a reference to six cardinal directions, six are their adhipatis (six names of our Lord), six are mentioned as the rakṣitṛs (protectors), and six are iṣus (arrows or weapons). The collative parallelism is shown below:

Dik	Adhipati	Raksitr	Ișu
Prācī, east	Agni- Adorable Lord	Asita- dark clouds	Āditya - the sun in northern solstice
Dakṣiṇa, south	Indra  -Resplendent Lord	Tiraścirājī  —rivers  moving in  curves	Pitr-the sun in the southern solstice
Pratīcī, west	Varuṇa- Venerable Lord.	Pṛdākū— uneven planes	Anna-food
Udīcī, north	Soma (Blissful Lord)	Svajaḥ— mountains	Aśani— lightning.
Dhruva, nadir	Vişnu (Omnipresent Lord)	Kalmāṣa- grīva— forests	Vīrudha —trees
Ūrdhvā, zenith	Bṛhaspati (Lord Supreme)	Śvitra— snow-clad mountains	Varșa-rains

The entire hymn is in the daivata-ādeša, admitting the omnipresence of our Lord (His presence in all the six directions). Just as in the Upaniṣads, we have similar expressions of the ātma-ādeša, or yuṣmad-ādeša (second person), or asmad-ādeša (first person); अधातोऽहकारादेश एवाहमेवाधस्ताद-हमुपरिष्टावह पश्चावह पुरस्तावहम् दक्षिणतोऽहमृत्तरतोऽहमेवेद सर्वमिति । (Chāndogya, VII.25.1). What the Lord has given us for our protection is shown as rakṣitṛs, and with what agencies He protects, as iṣavaḥ (mythology developed describing rākṣitṛs as six types of serpents guarding the creation in six directions).

This type of logic is known as the samhitā-tarka, i.e. collectively placing a set of groups against an other set of groups. (In the above example, we have four sets of six each: six cardinal directions (dik), six adhipatis, six raksitrs, and six ·ișus).

Sometimes, the analogies of the above type are not explicit, but implicit, and therefore, one set of a description may be utilized in a variety of contexts. In such cases, we find in our Brahmana texts so mentioned as इति अधियज्ञम (this is such in the context of yajña); जपाधिदैवतम् (this in context with deities or the sense-organs of our body); जवाध्यात्मम् (this in context with the atman).

Our rsis with their penetrating insight could see, that this cosmos or universe (the brahmanda) stands quite close in analogy with our physical body (pinda). Both do assume the form of a Purusa. One on account of the presence of the omni-present Lord, and the other on account of being the karmasādhaka of the infinitesimal soul, i.e. by being instrumental in the assigned activities of the self. Our Lord, imbibing the entire cosmos is the Virat Purusa (the Cosmic Man). whilst we the embodied creatures are ordinary purusas, staying somewhere in this body, but still calling it as our own. We may equally say that the Virat Purusa has created our body on the pattern of His own. The Caraka Samhitā (Śār. XXV) says: पुरुषोड्यं लोकसम्मितः, this purusa, i.e. the human skeleton is of the pattern of the cosmos, of course, with numerous differences. We have one head, the Cosmic Purusa may have thousands; we have two eyes. He may have innumerable : सहस्रशीर्षा पुरुषः सहस्राक्षः सहस्रपात् (XXXI.1). Sometimes, we regard antariksa, the midspace as the navel of the Cosmic Man, the dyau, the celestial region, as His head, the bhūmi, the earth, as His foot, and the cardinal directions as His ears (नाम्या आसीद » XXX1.3).

To bring out such analogies, with a view to educate our common folk, the ancients planned to initiate Agnihotra, Darśa-paurnāmāsa, Cāturmāsya and a variety of yajñas. I have no space here to go into the details of all of them. As an illustration, we shall quote the case of vedi-nirmana, the construction of the fire-altar and agnyādhāna, the setting or kindling of fire, as outlined in the Śrauta Sūtras and the Brāhmana texts in the context of the srauta yajñas. Mahīdhara in his commentary of the White Yajurveda has given some of these details.

Construction of Fire Altar

For a yajña, it is necessary to select a piece of suitable land; a layer of earth is scraped out and the ground cleaned. The following operations are carried out in the order described:

- 1. Water is sprinkled on the clean ground.
- 2. A layer of varāha-vihata(वराह-विहत) or the clay dug by the boar is then spread on it.
- 3. Then a layer of earth from the mound of white ants is laid on it.
- 4. Then it is covered with a layer of saline earth brought from a barren land or an alkaline tract.
- 5. Then we put a layer of sand (sikatā).
- 6. Then on it, a layer of gravel (sarkara).
- 7. Upon it, are piled a few layers of bricks.
- 8. Then a piece of gold (suvarna) is placed on an assigned spot.
- 9. On it are piled layers of wood-sticks (samidhā).
- 10. Fire is then churned out by the process of attrition by asvattha-aranis (two wooden pieces of asvattha or Pipal tree).

This entire process is a dramatic representation of the entire process of the evolution or manifestation of earth (condensation of a plasma to the final state of hard solid earth). The Yajurveda conceives of this analogy: इयं वेदिः परीअन्तः पृथिव्याः (XXIII. 62), this vedi represents the initial and final states of our earth.

The Satapatha Brahmana has divided the entire period of evolution into nine epochs. For we have a passage:

स श्रान्तस्तेपानः फेनमहाजत् ।... स श्रान्तस्तेपानो मृदं शुष्कापमूषं, सिकतं, शर्करा, अश्मानम्, अयोहिरण्यम्, ओषधि वनस्पत्यमुजत् । तेनेमां पृथिवीं प्राच्छादयत् ।
— Ś Br. VI. 1.1.13.

l. In the beginning the earth was a fluid plasma (known in the Vedic literature as salila; also as samudrārṇava, समुद्रार्णव; — आपो ह वा इदमगे मिलसमेवास (ŚBr. XI.6.1.6) — To represent this epoch, water is sprinkled on the spot of altar.

2. With a type of energization or activation, the plasma starts foaming and frething, just as milk foams or froths on being heated. The scum condensed as a layer on the fluid and formed clay or mṛd(मृद्)-स (फेनः) यदोषहन्यते मृदेव मवति । — ŚBr. VI. 1.3.3. This epoch is represented by putting a layer of clay dug by a boar—varāha-vihata or emuṣa varāha (एमूष-वराह-Rv. VIII.77.10; तामेमूष वराह इति वराह उज्जधान— ŚBr. XIV. 1.2.11)

This is also said that in the initial stage, the earth as it appeared from a distance was only of the size of the mouth of a boar (पावद् वै वराहस्य चपालं तावतीयमग् आसीत् यद् वराह-विहतमुपास्याग्निमायते— Maitrayanī Samhitā, I.6.3).

- 3. The condensed plasmic earth, called mrd then further dries up, as if water has gone out of wet clay (the condensable gases emerge out from the mass), and then it is known as śuṣka-āpa, शुष्काप (i.e. one whose water has been driven out); a layer of water settles down in the lower layers. Since it is porous and brittle, this part of the epoch of evolution is represented by placing of earth from the mound of white ant. For this, we have यद्वस्पीकवपामुत्कीयीग्निमाधते—Maitrāyaṇī Saṃhitā, 1.6.3.
- 4. The next stage in the further evolution and hardening is, that it becomes very much like alkaline tract, and this stage of epoch is represented in the yajña-altar by spreading a layer of alkaline or saline earth: यदूषानुपकीयिग्निमाधते— Maitrāyaṇī Samhitā, I.6.3.
- 5. Then follows a stage when the upper layer becomes hard as a rock; this epoch is represented by spreading a layer of sand: यत्सिकतामुपकीर्याग्निमाधते—Maitrāyaṇī Saṁhitā I.6.3. Prior to this stage, the earth was in a way plastic, and not hard: अविरासीत् पिसिप्पला —Yv. XXIII.12 (पिलिप्पला plastic or mouldable).
- 6. Then it passed through a next stage which is represented by spreading a layer of gravel (or sarkarā). We have यद्यकीरा उपकीर्याग्निमायते Maitrāyanī Samhitā, I.6.3. We have another mention of sarkarā—शिधिरा वा इयमग्र आसीत् । तां प्रजापितः शर्कराभिरदृहत Maitrāyaṇī Samhitā — I.6.3. Now the earth has become sufficiently hard — येन चीतग्र पृथिवी च हृद्धा Yv. XXXII.6.

- 7. In the next stage appear strata of hard rocks set one upon the other in a regular fashion. The story of this epoch is represented by placing bricks in an order to build up the the fire altar: इष्टका उपद्याति Taittiriya Samhitā, V.2.8
- 8. Now comes the epoch of the formation of metals from iron to gold in the combined or free form. To represent this epoch, a piece of gold is placed: रुक्यमुपदयाति Maitrayanī Samhitā III.2.6.
- 9. So far, the earth was without trees and forests; it was hairless as if the back of a tortoise (kurma-pṛṣṭha, कूर्य-पुष्ठ)।

Now comes the epoch when plants and trees came forth. The earth in the beginning was without hairs:इयं वाड लोमिकेवाग Ait. Br. XXIV.22; the perennial trees, plants and herbs are its hair—ओपि वनस्पतयो वा लोमानि—Jaim. Br. II.54. This epoch is represented in the yajña by placing layers of fuel wood.*

There is a collateral parallelism between cosmogeny and rituals, an example of samhitā tarka (argument based on group analogies) with which I shall close this Chapter. Three kinds of rituals done in the morning pressing (prātaḥ savana), in the midday (mādhyandina savana) and in the evening (tṛtīya orsāyam savana) are put in collateral parallelism with three regions and three important seasons.

अयैतान्यग्नि-भक्तीनि-अयं लोकः, प्रातः सवनं, वसन्तः।
•अयैतानीन्द्र-भक्तीनि- अन्तरिक्ष लोकः, माध्यन्दिनं सवनं, गीष्मः।
अयैतान्यादित्य-भक्तीनि- असौ लोकः, तृतीयं सवनं, वर्षाः॥
(Nir. VII. 8-11)

*I am indebted for the fine description to Yudhişthira Mīmāmsaka (See his Mīmamsā-Bhāşyam, 1977, pp. 87-100).

Devata Region		Ritual (Savana) Season or Pressing
Agni Indra	This, i.e. Earth Midspace	Morning Midday	Spring Summer
Aditya	That, i.e. Celestial	Evening	Rainy

Thus our yajñas were merely dramatic popular representation of cosmological and cosmogonic phenomena in the earliest stages of man's familiarity with Śruti, Śāstra and Sṛṣṭi (revealed knowledge, evolved knowledge and the creation). Our ancients were thrilled with the idea that once upon a time the sun and earth (and for that matter, all the planets too) were one without the midspace or antarikṣa existing between them. (The sun was a binary star.) It was only at a later stage that the two separated with antarikṣa intervening. They had a word rodaṣī (तोदसी) in the Śruti which means a combination of the celestial region with the terrestrial, and equivalent of dyāvā-pṛṭhivī (वावाविकी) which on later development meant an integrated region extending from the present earth to the celestial region or the sun and beyond even (another region sometimes also called svaḥ or suvaḥ (स्व: ; सुव:).

The srauta yāgas were the Vedic yāgas with explicit or implict sanction in the Yajurveda and the Atharvaveda. They came under disrepute when animal sacrifices got introduced. Of course, Dayānanda in his Vedic commentaries and in his Samskāravidhi did not mention of them, because he was not in favour of reviving obnoxious practices of the age of Vedic decadence. However, he clearly gives them a sanction, for we have a passage in his Introduction to the Commentary on the Rgveda etc.

परन्त्वेतैर्वेदमन्त्रैः कर्मकाण्ड विनियोजितैर्यत्रयत्रांग्निहोत्राद्यश्वमेधान्ते यद्यत् कर्तव्यं तत्तदत्र विस्तरतो न वर्णीयप्यते । कुतः, कर्मकाण्डानुष्ठानस्यैतरेय-शतपद्यस्यण – पूर्वमीमांता – श्रौतसूत्रादिषु ययार्षं विनियोजितत्वात् (ऋग्वेदादिभाष्यभूमिका-प्रतिज्ञाविषयं).

Dayananda wants us to refer to the texts of the Brahmanas like the Aitareya and the Satapatha, also to the Pūrva-Mīmāmsā, and the Śrauta Sūtras for the details of the karma-kanda or rituals (from Agnihotra to Asvamedha). Of course, there is a lot of spurious literature on this subject also which is despicable. (श्रौतसूत्रादि विरुद्धान्त्रिकाण्ड-स्नानसूत्रपरिशिष्टादयो ग्रन्थाः -Dayananda). He speaks in favour of the Asvalayana Śrauta and Grhya Sütras (Samskāravidhi, Vedārambha Samskāra).

Accessories of Yajña in the Veda

Taking base on the yajus (यज्ञीष) of the Yajurveda and the Atharvaveda, our ancient seers, the men of wisdom, introduced a number of accessories, utensils and appliances for the purpose of the yaiña-karma which later on in a modified form became popular in the domestic kitchen, in pharmacies or Äyurvedaśālas and in industry. We shall enlist them in brief only.

> (i) Three types of spoons  $(sruc) - Juh\bar{u}$ , upabhṛt and dhruva: घृताच्यति जुहूर्नाम्ना..., घृताच्यस्युपभृन्नाम्ना..., घृताच्यति धुवा नाम्ना

(Yv. II.6) These srucs are known as the ayudha or sastra

- (weapons), of the vaiña : देवायज्ञमृतवः कल्पयन्ति हविः प्रोडाशं (Av. XVIII.4.2). खर्चो यज्ञाय्यानि ।
- (ii) A ladle known as darvi : पूर्णा दिव परापत । (Yv. III.49)
- (iii) Pavitra, a sieve or filter प्नात्विच्छिद्रेण पवित्रेण । (Yv. IV.4)
- (iv) Coins of silver for purchase : क्रीणामि चन्द्रं चन्द्रेण।(IV.26) (VII.45) रूपेण रूपं... चन्द्रदक्षिणा ।
- (V) In the Soma-yagas, Brahma, the leading priest has his seat on the south. बह्य दक्षिणतस्ते इस्तु । (Av. XVIII.4.15). There is an uttaravedi (उत्तरवेदि), there is one sadas - mandapa (सदोमण्डप), a havirdhana (हविर्धान), or store for stocking havih or the offerings, a few sacrificial vūpas or posts to which cattle may be bound for safety, homage and respect (not for killing) : यस्यां सदो-हिवर्धाने यूपो यस्यां निमीयते, Prthivī sūkta, Av. Verse 38. In the Soma-yaga, we have a pāinīvata graha (cup) and hāriyojana camasa (a spoon or ladle): पत्नीवतो ग्रहाँ ऋध्यासम् (Yv. VIII.9); हरिरसि

(vi) In Chapter XIX of the Yajurveda, we have a reference to the Sautrāmaṇī Yajña, which takes note of the following: śoma (15); āsandī; kumbhī, surādhāmī, uttaravedi, (16); vedi, yūpa (17); havirdhāna; sadas, āgnīdhra, patnīśālā, gārha-patya (18); praiṣa, āprī, prayāja-anuyāja, vaṣaṭ-kāra (19); paśu, puroḍāśa, sāmadheni, yājyā (20); dhānā, karambha, saktu, parivāpa, payaḥ, dadhi, āmikṣā, vājina (21); āśrāvaṇa, pratyāśrāvaṇa, yaja, ye yajāmahe (24); droṇa kalaśa, sthālī (27); avabhṛtha, iḍā, sūktavāka, śamyu (vāka), patnīsamyāja, samiṣṭ-yajuh (29).

The Yajurveda is our earliest lexicon of words, which later on were used by our ancients in their system of the Srauta yajñas. We do not know their original meanings. Their popular usage came at a very late stage.

Connotations of the word yajña— The Eighteenth Book or adhyāya of the Yajurveda has the first twenty-seven verses ending with the phrase ने यक्षेन कत्यताम् (such and such things of mine be secured by means of sacrifice, यक्षेन). Evidently, the things desired could not be secured by performing a fire-ritual or the fire-sacrifice. What could this sacrifice be?— Here sacrifice means a sacred and sincere effort in the widest sense. Dayānanda gives a clue to it. He translates the term yajñena kalpatām differently in different contexts.

- यक्षेन पूजनीयेन परमेश्वरेण जगदुपकारकेण व्यवहारेण वा— by sacrifices, that is by the adorable Lord, by His grace of assistance and liberality. (1)
- 2. यज्ञेन धर्मानुष्ठानेन, by sacrifice, that is, by performing righteous deeds. (2)
- 3. यहेन सत्कर्तव्येन परमात्मना, by sacrifice, that is, by the blessings of our Lord of Praises. (3)
- 4. यज्ञेन धर्म पालनेन, by sacrifice, that is, by the performance of one's duty. (4)
- 5. यक्षेन सत्यधर्मोन्नतिकरणेनोपदेशाख्येन, by sacrifice, that is, by having instructions in respect to the code of conduct. (5)

6. यज्ञेन सत्यमाषणादि व्यवहारेण, by sacrifice, that is by adhering to truth and the like. (6)

7. यज्ञेन मुखिसिद्धिकरेण ईश्वरेण, by sacrifice, that is, by the grace of bounteous Lord. (8)

8. यज्ञेन शमदमादियुक्तेन योगाभ्यासेन, by sacrifice, that is, by the practice of yoga and by control on senses. (11)

9. यद्मेन सर्वान्नप्रदेन परमात्मना, by sacrifice, that is, by the grace of God that gives us a good harvest of grains and cereals, or by utilizing the right type of agricultural practices, and by adopting careful dietetic habits (12).

10. यज्ञेन संगतिकरणयोग्येन, by sacrifice, that is by adopting right type of chemical and technical processes of mining and metallurgy (13)—मनुष्याः पृथिवीस्थान् पदार्यान् सप्रीक्ष्येम्यो रत्नानि पातुश्च प्राप्य सर्विहतायोपय्जीरन् ॥—Dayananda.

11. यज्ञेन संगतिकरणयोग्येन, by sacrifice, that is by science and technology (14)—ये मनुष्याः पावकादि विद्यया संगन्तव्यं शिल्यंकं साध्नवन्ति त ऐश्वर्यं लभन्ते।

12. यज्ञेन विद्येश्वर्योन्नतिकरणेन, by sacrifice, that is, by the spread of education, pure and applied. (16)

13. यज्ञेन वायुविद्याविषानेन, by sacrifice, that is by harnessing Nature's forces, like electricity, wind, solar and mechanical energy etc. (17)

14. यज्ञेन पृथिवीकालिवज्ञापकेन, by sacrifice, that is, by the study of physics and by the knowledge of terrestrial and physical forces. (18)

15. यज्ञेन अग्निपदार्थोपयोगेन , by sacrifice, that is, by thermal appliances. (19).

16. यज्ञेन हवनादिना, by sacrifice, that is, by performing havana, or fumingation for removing pollutions of atmosphere. (21)

17. यहोन योगेन वियोगेन, by sacrifice, that is by addition and subtraction, i.e. by synthesis and analysis. (25)

Thus every act of public benevolence, done with selfless dedication, with a reverential attitude towards God, His creation, and the sanctity of life is yajña.

PAŚU YĀGA OR THE ANIMAL SACRIFICE

The Vedic literature has, sometimes casually and often with details, referred to three types of animals: (i) Cattle, usually five: man (puruṣa), horse (aśva), cow (go), goat (aja) and sheep (avi). They are called grāmya paśvaḥ or tame animals; (ii) aranya paśavaḥ or wild animals, big or small including tigers, lions, rhinocerots and wild deer. A long list of these animals is given in Chapter XXIV of the Yajurveda, partly carried to Chapter XXV also; this includes insects and worms and marine creatures; (iii) vāyavya, or the winged species which are capable of flying in space. For this see:

तस्माद् यज्ञात् सर्वहुतः संमृतं पृषदाज्यम् । पश्रूँस्ताँश्चक्रे वायव्यानारण्या ग्राम्याश्च ये ॥

(Yv. XXXI.6)

In the same Chapter, we have a reference to cattle with one row of teeth (ekādat), and with two rows of teeth (ubhayā-dat);

तस्मादश्वा अजायन्त ये के चोमयादतः। गावो ह जिह्नरे तस्मात् तस्माजाता अजावयः॥ (Yv. XXXI.8; Rv. X.90.10)

In this list of cattle, Sāyaṇa counts donkeys, asses or mules (अश्वाः, ये के च-अश्वव्यतिरिक्ता गर्दभा अश्वतराश्च, with teeth in upper and lower jaws both—Sāyaṇa on Rv. X.90.10). It is doubtful, whether by vāyavya, is meant a separate category of flying creatures or it merely refers to cattle and wild animals, which are assigned to Vāyu devatā, वायव्यान् वायुदेवताकान् लोकप्रसिद्धान्—Sāyaṇa).

Vayu is the  $devat\bar{a}$  of midspace and all animals belong to this  $devat\bar{a}$ .

वायवः स्थेत्याह वायुर्वा अन्तिरिसस्याध्यक्षः । अन्तरिसदेवत्याः खत् वै पशवः ॥

(Tait. Br. III.2.1.3)

Who are these Pasus? These Pasus, horse (asva), cow (go), goat (aja), and sheep (avi), belong to midspace, and hence they are Vāyavya. According to some authorities, they are not the terrestrial animals at all. Their reference in the Chapter on Cosmic Man (Purusa Sūkta) has a significance; most likely, they are the celestial bodies. A few of them are docile and bound to a sacrificial stake, which is the sun itself. Thus they belong to our solar system, they may be our planets and satellites (grāmya pasus). Others are rather more free and wild like comets, representing the āranya pasus.

In our terrestrial life pasu means, an animal (i.e. whosoever sees with eyes is a pasu; (पश्यतीति पगुः). In the celestial region, the numberless celestial bodies are pasus; we have been told that they (the regions, or rajasah) stay in space (antarikṣa) like birds (वि= bird; मान; = of the measure of, form of): अन्तरिक्षे (जीतिवमान: (Yv. XXXII.6). We have already said that our yajñas are dramatic presentations of cosmogony and cosmology, and hence, in the yajñas, the animals are bound at stakes; they are brought and exhibited to public and given reverence.

It is so well known that the Vedic verses may in several cases have three sorts of connotations simultanedusly. Commenting on Nirukta I.18, the distinguished commentator, Durgācārya says: आय्यात्मिकाधिदैवताधिपज्ञामियायिनां मन्त्राणामर्याः परिज्ञायन्ते इति; the three are in the context of or reference to अधि-आत्म, अधि-यज्ञ and अधि-दैवत, i.e. pertaining to ātmā, to yajāa and to devatā or deities.

Yāska whilst commenting on : सप्तडक्रमयः प्रतिहिताः गरीरे सप्त
रमन्ति सदमप्रमादम् । सप्तापः स्वपत्ती सीकमीयुस्तत्र जागृतोङअस्वपन्जी सत्रसदी च देवी ॥ —Yv. XXXIV.55. (Seven seers are placed in the body, seven protect the seat without neglect. Seven works went to the world of setting where two gods who never sleep and sit on the sacrifice, keep watch). By seven seers seated in body is meant seven rays in the sun (seven colours of spectrum).
Seven protect the seat, i.e. the year, without neglect. Seven pervading ones: they alone go to the world of the sleeping one. i.e. the setting sun. There wake two gods who never sleep and keep vigil at the sacrifice, i.e. air and the sun (वाय्वादित्यी) —Nir. XII.37. This is the ādhidaivata explanation (i.e. in reference to deity) of the verse. When explained in reference to the self or ātman (ādhyātma), the seven seers placed in human body are the six senses (त्वक्, touch; चबु, seeing; अवण, hearing; रसना, tasting; प्राण smelling; मनस् thinking; and the seventh विद्या, knowing or enlightenment (पद् इन्द्रियाणि विद्या सप्तप्यात्मिन). Again, there are seven vital impulsions, सप्तप्राणाः; they never neglect the body. Seven works; these same go to world of the sleeping one, i.e. the setting soul (सप्त रक्षन्ति सदमप्रमादम् । सप्तापनानीमान्येव स्वपतो लोकमस्तमितमात्मानं यन्ति ।). There two gods who never sleep and sit at the sacrifice keep watch, i.e. the self of wisdom and lustre (तत्र जामृतोक्स्वप्नजी सत्रसदी च देवी प्राक्षत्रवात्मा तैजसम्ब —Nir. XII.37).

What is true of this verse is true of so many other Vedic verses which have multiple explanations, implicit and explicit in reference to deity, the self and the yajāa.

The word paśu has also several connotations. The Yajurveda has three yajūmṣi in this connection:

अग्निः पशुरासीत्..., वायुः पशुरासीत्... सूर्यः पशुरासीत्, तेनायजन्त स एतँस्सोकमजयद्यस्मिन् (अग्निः। वायुः।-सूर्यः) स ते सोको मविष्यति तं जेष्यसि पिनैता अपः॥ (Yv. XXIII.17)

Evidently, agni (fire),  $v\bar{a}yu$  (air or wind), and  $s\bar{u}rya$  (the sun) all the three in turn become  $pa\dot{s}u$ . In the cosmic creation the three were born in turn: the fire, the air and finally the sun. Commenting on a verse of the Yajurveda:

यक्षेन यक्षमयजन्त देवास्तानि धर्माणि प्रथमान्यासन् । ते ह नाकं महिमानः सचन्त यत्र पूर्वे साध्याः सन्ति देवाः ॥ (Yv. XXXI.16).

(The gods worshipped sacrifice with sacred rites. They were the first ordinances. Being great, they verily obtained heaven, where dwell earlier gods who were to be propitiated, i.e. sādhyāh). Here yajñena means 'by fire or by kindling fire'. Here agni is the paśu; अग्निः पशुरासीत्। तमासभन्त। तेनायजन्तः। — इति च सासणम्—Nir. XII.41; it has to be procured; it has to be touched as a token of reverence: ālabhana means evolving, getting, procuring or adapting for service or work, and touching as a token of reverence.

In the earliest possible history of human progress the cattle were domesticated; some wild species was procured, nurtured and cultured with care and caution, and then alone, it evolved to a domesticated animal fit for use in our house. Finally, this animal became a useful member of our family. This biological scientific effort of domesticating a wild animal came to be known in our literature as ālabhana, आतम्भन, a word which was altogether different from a similar word, which is ālambhana, आतम्भन, which means immolation or killing. Ālabhhana is just opposite to ālambhana; one stresses on culture and rearing, the other on killing and injury, later erroneously known as 'sacrifice'.

The difference between ālambhana and ālabhana is clear from the following lines from the Cikitsā-sthāna of the Caraka Samhitā, XIX.4.

जादिकाले खलु यज्ञेषु पशवः समालमनीयां बभूवुर्नालम्भाय प्रक्रियन्ते स्म । ततो दक्षयज्ञ-प्रत्यवरकालं मनोः पुत्राणां नरिष्यन्नाभागेश्याकुन्नगशर्यात्यादीनां च कृतुषु पशूनामेवाभ्य-नुज्ञानात् पंशवः प्रोक्षणमवापुः । अतश्य प्रत्यवरकालं पृषद्येण दीर्घसत्रेण यजता पशूनामलाभाद्गवामालम्मः प्रवर्तितः. . अतीसारः पूर्वभूत्यन्त्रः पृषधयज्ञे ।

In the earliest times animals were procured, domesticated, cultured and harnessed for useful purpose in the yajñas; this was their ālabhana (they were thus samālabhanīyāh;समालभनीयाः); they were not meant for immolation (नाल-म्माय). The degradation came later on after the Daksa-yajña (i.e. in the early parts of the Treta Yuga), when Narisyan, Nabgaga, IksvaKu, Saryati, and other sons of Manu started immolating animals in the vaiñas - in the beginning. animals other than cow. This practice continued for a long time. It so once happened that Prsadhra organized a huge sacrifice which continued for a long-long duration, with the result that all the available cattle got killed; in their scarcity, cows were also immolated for the first time. The unhealthy conditions developed on these accounts led to the appearance of a new disease which came to be known as atisara or probably dysentery, or diarrhoea, an ailment of bowels.

The Veda sanctions the ālabhana and not the ālambhana of fire, the sun, the wind, the cattle and the like. Ālabhana is harnessing for the domestic and public use, while ālambhana is immolation leading to pollution and diseases.

For those who may be interested in the linguistic evolution, it may be said that we have two altogether different words: (i) the word आ + लमन, ālabhana, derived from आङ् +  $\sqrt{n}$  and (ii) the word आ + लम्भन, ālambhana, derived from आङ् +  $\sqrt{n}$  सम्भ or आङ् +  $\sqrt{n}$  तम्भ or आङ् +  $\sqrt{n}$

The word labha, तम, has three connotations: (i) to procure or to harness;

(ii) to touch, in a ritual for reverence and regards—as in the marriage ceremony, husband to touch the heart of wife, i.e. to touch the place of heart with hand from above.

दक्षिणांसमिषद्वयमालमते - Paraskara Gṛhya Sūtra.

(iii) to yoke, bind or niyojana— तत्र प्रथमोत्पन्ने युपान्तराले त्रीन कपिञ्चलान

वसन्ताय आलमते नियुनक्ति — Mahīdhara in his commentary on Yv. XXIV. 20 (वसन्ताय कपिञ्जलान आलभते)।

The word ālabhana or तम never means immolation.

The word lambha, however, means immolation. Of course, it is also sometimes used for (i) touching: e.g.,

कुमारं जाते...पुरा अन्यैरालम्मात् —Āśv, Grhya Sūtra,

(ii) to procure : नहीं हुशा लम्मनीया मनुष्यैः -Katha Up, I.1.25

(iii) to adopt as in लिम = लम्म, Kāśakṛtsna-Dhātu-Vvākhvāna. I.362.

What is worth stressing is that ālabha word is never used for immolation; our Vedic texts refer to ālabhana only, not ālambhana. Our this note should end this controversy once for all that the Vedas ever sanctioned the immolation of animals in yajāas. The ancients in their earliest culture of human history contributed a lot to our society by picking up some species, taming them, domesticating and evolving. These species were raised to the status of cattle. An effort to this effect is known as ālabhana. The yajāas in form of rituals commemorate this historical event by respecting, honouring and revering cattle and other useful animals, particularly horse, cow, goat and sheep.

Nature's other bounties were also by and by harnessed for the good of human society: harnessing of solar energy, production and harnessing of fire, harnessing of wind energy for sailing boats, harnessing water in form of canals, tanks, ponds, and water-power. Light, fire, air and water were brought under man's control. It was soon realized that pollution and diseases are removed by solar rays, heat, air, water and vegetation and by fragrant flowers. Cattle were harnessed for milk and milk products, as beasts of burden, as an aid to military and defence, in agriculture, for leather and wool. Our small and big yajñas are related to these events.

Terrestrial cattle and celestial Bodies—In ordinary usage of today, the words go, aśva, aja and avi stand for cattle: terms as cow, horse, goat and sheep, in cosmogony and cosmology, stand for celestial bodies also . Go, गो, is one of the names of our planet earth (see आयं गौ: पृश्निरक्रमीदसदन् मातरं पुरः, पितरं च प्रयन्तदः (Yv. III.6). Gāvaḥ is derived from go and is a synonym of rays also (Nigh. I.5). सर्वेडिंग रश्मयो गांव उच्यन्ते —Nir. II.6). The word gauḥ (गौ:) has several meanings like skin, phlegm, bow-string, ray etc., —See Nir II. 5-6. Sometimes the sun is also called gauḥ (आदित्योडिंग गौरुच्यते —उतादः परुषे गवि — lo, that charioteer in the sun —Rv.VI.56.3; Nir. II.6.).

The hymns I.162-164 of the Rgveda refer to the Aśvamedha Yajña, the so called Horse Sacrifice. In these hymns, the word aśva stands for the sun, and as such for the sun's rays too. The entire description of these hymns refers to the sun and the details arising from earth's going round the sun. In a kingdom, where the aśvamedha yajña is performed, the King is aśva; in our universe, the sun is aśva. The description of the horse of the Aśvamedha, reproduced in the Yajurveda, XXIX.12-24, from Rv. I.163. 1-13 clearly shows that the details are of the sun and phenomena preceding and following the sunrise.

गन्धर्वोऽअस्य रज्ञनामगृभ्णात्सूरादश्वं वत्तवो निरतष्ट ॥ (Yv. XXIX.13)

The relative motion of the sun and earth taking one full year is also mentioned here, which coincides with the ceremonial round of the horse in one year. The Asya-vāmīya Sūkta of the Rgveda, (I.164) also refers to the same aśva, the sun and the solar phenomena.

Like the Asvamedha Yajña, we have a long and detailed ceremonial called gavām-ayana, गवामयन, the details of which are given in the Aitareya Brāhmaṇa, IV.17. The cows of this festival are ādityas, (synonyms of the sun) numbering twelve. Of course, the sun is one, but as it passes through twelve stages of 30° each, it bears 12 different names.

गवामयनेन यन्ति । गावो वा आदित्याः । आदित्यानामेव तदयनेन यन्ति । गावो वै सन्नमासत । (Ait. Br. IV.17)

Our earth and all the celestial bodies that move round the sun, or in some way related to the sun are aja अन, or goats of the celestial region. Of course, in our system of Yagarituals, there is no specific ajāmedha or avimedha, pertaining to goat and sheep. The word aja is derived in two ways; (i) अजित सातत्येन गच्छित इत्यनः, i.e. a body which keeps on moving, like planets, satellites etc.; (ii) न जायत इत्यनः, one who or which is not born is aja or ajā: the soul, God, and the causal Prakrti.

There is a reference to vasā-avi, the barren sheep which was harnessed for domestic purposes (Taittirīya Samhitā, II.1.2):

साविर्वशाऽभवत् । ते देवा अबुवन् देवपशुर्वा अयं सममूत् । कस्मा इममालप्यामहा इति । अयवैतहर्यत्या पृथिव्यासीत् । अजाता ओषधयः । तामवि वशामादित्येम्यः कामाय लभन्त, ततो वा अप्रयत पृथिवी, अजायन्त औषधयः ।

There appeared before them the vasā-avi (the barren goat); thereon the gods exclaimed—here we have a divine animal. For whom shall we harness or rear it? During those days, the earth was a small one, neither extensive, nor with vegetation. For the sake of the ādityas, the vasā-avi was reared; thereon, the earth became extensive, and vegetation grew on it.

Thus in cosmology, the barren earth is the barren goat; by the human efforts or by natural circumstances, it was made fertile and the vegetation grew. This was the ālabhana of the avi or goat.

ĀLABHANA OR DOMESTICATION OF WILD LIFE

The mother-earth remained for long a constituent of twinstars (our present sun with a twin brother); in course of time one of the twins broke to constitute what today is known as planets and satellites. This happened about 2-4 billions (2,000,000,000) of years ago, which is the present age of the earth. It took long for the gaseous plasma to cool down to a solid crust. Several more epochs passed to give the earth an envelop of atmosphere consisting of nitrogen, oxygen and other gases, capable of nourishing life. After several cycles of intense cold and hot epochs, the land distinguished itself from fluid water: the oceans appeared, and the earth got surrounded with dense clouds. To cut the long story of creation short. millions of years afterwards, on the solid land, we had rains, rivers and pools of water and the primitive vegetation made the earth green. It is difficult to account for the first appearance of chlorophyll in algae. Finally we had the rich flora of perennial plants (osadhi), shrubs, creepers and huge forest trees (vanaspati). Another few millions of years after, we got on this planet in stages the fauna consisting of microbial life, insects and wild creatures, big and small. In the midst of this life, appeared the FIRST MAN in three groups according to the Vedic concepts: The first group of a few chosen people, called Rsis or Seers, through whom the divine knowledge passed on to man to be understood, followed and to be carried down to posterity by the second group of people who were a band of Rsis of the second order, receptive of divine knowledge, and lastly, the third group of men just evolving out of the wild life. About the Rsis of the first and the second groups, Yaska, the author of the Nirukta says:

साक्षात्कृतधर्माण ऋषयो बभूवुः । तेऽवरेभ्योऽसाक्षात्कृतधर्मभ्य उपदेशेन मन्त्रान्तप्रादुः । उपदेशाय ग्लायन्तोऽवरे बिल्मग्रहणाये-मं समाम्नासिषुः । वेदं च वेदाङ्गानि च ।

(Nir. I.20)

Seers had direct intuitive insight into Dharma or duty. They by oral instruction handed down the hymns to later generations who were destitute of direct intuitive insight. The later generations, declining in (power of) oral communication, compiled this work, the Veda, and the auxiliary Vedic treatises, in order to comprehend their meaning.

The word veda, when it means divine enlightenment, is ādi-udātta, आदि-उदात्त; it has the udātta accent on the first syllable. It has a second meaning, an accessory of yajña, a material relating to yajña or sacrifice, when the udātta accent is on the last syllable (anto-dātta अन्तोदात्त) as in the Vedic literature of the latter age. (वेदः अति — Yv. II.21); पत्नी वेद प्रमुचति — Kātyā. Śr. Sū. III.8.2)

Such a rare phenomenon occurred only once in human history. Men with tremendous memory, receptivity and intuitive enlightenment were born as the FIRST MEN; deterioration came later on to the group, and henceforth knowledge passed through, from one generation to other, through instruction. The group which was least receptive consisted of such people, human in form and appearance, but wild and backward in wisdom. It was necessary to have the alabhana or domestication or evolution of such a group. This group in the terminology of the White Yajurveda was known as mayu, मद (Yv. XII.47). Mayu may be called the ape-man; he was the precursor of the gramva-pasu(domesticated) purusa. a species totally now extinct, as if it has been completely immolated in the cosmic evolution, and all mayus became 'tamed' and evolved as men or human beings. Mayu is also named as kim-purusa (man-like, किंप्रुच्यो वै मयुः - ŚBr.-VII.5.2.32.).

The alabhana of MAYU, to raise him from the wild life to the status of MAN is referred to in the verse:

(Yv. XIII.47)

The animal gaura গাঁt was the precursor of our important cattle aśva or horse; it was a wild small animal with one hoof (एকয়फ) which on account of good speed and strength was known as aśva and vājin both. The ālabhana or taming and domestication led to our present day horse which is one-hoofed, एकशफ. Its precursor, gaura, has been in the cosmic evolution, as if, immolated and the parent race is now extinct. We have the following verse in reference to this ālabhana and a ceremony connected with it:

Introduction 165

इमं मा हिंसीरेकशफं पशुं किनक्रदं वाजिनं वाजिनेषु । गौरमारण्यमनु ते दिशामि तेन चिन्दानस्तन्वो नि षीद । गौरं ते शुगृच्छतु यं दिष्मस्तं ते शुगृच्छतु ॥

-Yv. XIII.48.

The third ālabhana is of gavaya, a wild animal, which when domesticated, nurtured and reared gave to our society the milch-cow; this ālabhana is indicated in the verse:

इमें साहसं शतधारमुत्तं व्यच्यमानं सरिरस्य मध्ये । घृतं दुहानामदितिं जनायाग्ने मा हिंसीः परमे व्योमन् । गवयमारण्यमनु ते दिशामि तेन चिन्वानस्तन्वो नि षीद । गवयं ते शुगृच्छतु यं द्विष्मस्तं ते शुगृच्छतु ॥

-Yv. XIII.49.

The fourth similar  $\bar{a}labhana$  is of another wild animal called ustram (now extinct), and this animal was harnessed for its  $\bar{u}rn\bar{a}$  or wool. This ustra has a name hiranya also in the Atharvaveda; this animal is the precursor of our sheep (this ustra is different from camel). For this  $\bar{a}labhana$ , we have a verse:

इमंमूर्णायुं वरुणस्य नामि त्वचं पशूनां द्विपदां चतुष्यदाम् । त्वष्टुः प्रजानां प्रयमं जनित्रमग्ने मा हिंसीः परमे व्योमन् । उष्ट्रमारण्यमनु ते दिशामि तेन चिन्वानस्तन्वो नि पीद । उष्ट्रं ते शुगृच्छतु यं द्विष्मस्तं ते शुगृच्छतु ॥

-Yv. XIII.50.

The fifth important ālabhana is of another wild creature, now extinct, known as sarabha( करम), which when tamed and domesticated gave us aja or goat. For this, we have the verse:

अजो ह्यप्नेरजनिष्ट शोकात्सो अपश्यज्ञनिनारमग्रे। तेन देवा देवनामग्रमायस्तेन रोहमायनुष मेध्यासः॥ शरभमारण्यमनु ते दिशामि तेन चिन्वानस्तन्वो नि पीद। शरमं ते शुगृच्छतु यं द्विष्मस्तं ते शुगृच्छतु॥

-Yv. XIIÌ.51.

Thus were evolved the five gramya paśavah (domesticated creatures) out of the five wild precursors:

cursor C	Cattle
P	uruşa or man
	sva or horse
G	o or cow
A	Avi or sheep (umāyu)
	ja or goat.
A	ja or goat.

All the five cattle are inviolable, aghnya, not to be killed or tortured. They constitute the paśavah (tamed animals) of the yajamāna or the householder (यजमानस्य पश्चः), and they are to be assured security and afforded protection (यजमानस्य पश्चः पादि — Yv. I.1). In the case of all of them, we have repeatedly been told "मा हिसीः" i.e. do not kill, do not torture; no immolation. For details of this ālabhana, one may see the Satapatha Brāhmaṇa, VII. 5.2.32-39.

One who kills or tortures our cows, horses or men even deserves to be shot with lead shells:

यदि नो गां हॅिस यद्यश्वं यदि वा पूरुषम् । तं त्वा सीसेन विष्यामो यद्या नोऽसो वीरहा ॥

Av. I.16.4

Such a torturer or immolator is called a vīrahā, or a murderer.

Immolation of a horse is considered as undesirable in the following verse also:

वातस्य जूर्ति वरुणस्य नामिमश्वं जज्ञानश्वसिरस्य मध्ये । शिशुं नदीनाश्वहिरमदिबुध्नमग्ने मा हिछ्सीः परमे व्योमन् ॥ Yv. XIII. 42.

The horse is supposed to possess the strength and speed of wind; it is the navel of Varuṇa; it is born in the midst of water. It is not to be immolated. For cow, we have in the Rgveda: मा गामनागामदिति विषेष्ठ —VIII.101.15; the cow is aditi, not to be cut into pieces; she deserves our affection and reverence.

The long list of animals, as given in chapter XXIV of the Yajurveda, indicates the reverential reference to our fauna on the occasion of festivities and national activities. and just as today we have a respect even for wild life, by introducing ordinances and discipline, similarly on the occasion of big yaiñas, wild life was exhibited with care, and the animals were released and set free after the display. The vaiñas provided occasions of national activity and in a way. they were precursors of our Zoos and National Parks. The word alabhana in the Chapter XXIV refers to several processes like procuring, catching, domesticating if possible, and arranging for public display. The word "ālabhate" has been used in this context; the animals were brought with care and caution, and were displayed in the prescribed camps. They were bound with posts or kept in security-cages, as the case may be. We had different wards for different types or species of creatures. We have such phrases for alabhana in this Chapter:

Introduction 167

1.	धूमान्वसन्तायालमते ।	(11)
2.	अग्नयेऽनीकवते प्रथमजानालमते ।	(16)
3.	वसन्ताय कपिञ्जलानालमते ।	(20)
4.	समुद्राय शिशुमारानालभते ।	(21)
5.	सोमाय हथ्सानालभते ।	(22)
6.	अग्नये कुटरूनालमते ।	(23)
7.	सोमाय लबानालभते ।	(24)
8.	अहे पारावतानालभते ।	(25)
9.	मूम्याऽआखूनालभते ।	(26)
	वसुम्यऽऋश्यानालभते ।	(27)
11.	ईशानाय परस्वतङआलभते ।	(28)
12.	प्रजापतये पुरुषान्हस्तिनऽआलभते ।	(29)

Not one specimen, sometimes a variety of specimens of animals were brought to the yajña campus and their public display must have been very interesting and instructive to the visitors, not acquainted with fauna and wild life in their urban area. The big exhibits of the wild life were bulls, rhinoceros, tigers, lions and elephants, and creatures of great interest were frogs, serpents, marine life, birds, pigeons, boars, jackals, owls, peacocks and host of others.

METRES OF THE YAJURVEDA

The Thirteenth Chapter of the Introduction appended to our Translation of Rgveda Samhitā (Vol. I, pp. 225-237) gives an account of the prosody of the Veda. The same may, or may not, satisfy the reader of the Yajurveda Samhita. The verses (ऋक्) of the Rgveda are essentially different from the yajūmsi (यज्धिष) of the Yajurveda. Apart from the verses which, as such or with certain variations, are common to the two Samhitas, (their number is over three hundred or so), and some other metrical compositions which are very much like the Rgvedic verses, we have yet a very large number of yajūmsi, which are neither prose nor metrical. And perhaps, this is the reason that the scholiasts like Mahidhara and Uvata do not mention the metres of the kandikas or the mantras of the Yajurveda while commenting on them. Svāmī Dayananda is the only acarya who has definitely given the metre (chanda) and svara of the Yajuh texts. Of course, musical notes or svaras (like sadja, rsabha, gandhara, madhyama, pañcama, dhaivata, and nisāda) are meaningless, since they entirely depend on the metre. For example, all the gayatri metres are in sadja svara, all the usniks in rsabha svara, all the pańktis in the pañcama svara and so on. Same parallelism occurs in respect to the devatas, colours or varnas and rsis (seers). This parallalism is exhibited in the following table and a sanction for this is available in the Pingala Sutras:

अग्निः सविता सोमो वृहस्पतिर्मित्रवरुणाविन्द्रो विश्वेदेवा देवताः

(Pingala II. 63)

The devatās (gods) are in the following sequence: agni, savitr, soma, bṛhaspati, mitra, varuṇa, indra and visvédavās.

स्वराः षड्जर्षभगान्धारमध्यमपञ्चमधैवतनिषादाः (Pingala III. 64) The svaras (or notes) follow the sequence; sadja, ṛṣabha, gāndhāra, madhyama, pañcama, dhaivata and niṣāda.

सितसारक्षिपशङ्गकृष्णनीललोहितगौरा वर्णाः (Pingala III. 65)
The colours (varṇas) are in the following sequence:
sita (white), sāraṅga (green), piśaṅga, (yellow), kṛṣṇa
(dark), nīla (blue), lohita (red), and gaura (fairly white).

(Pingala III. 66)

The traditional rsi families (seers) or the gotras follow the sequence:

Families of Agniveśa, Kaśyapa, Gotama, Ańgiras, Bhrgu, Kuśika and Vasistha.

This collateral parallelism (or the samhitā tarka or group analogy) has no scientific basis, but our literature - the Vedic, the Brāmanic and the Upaniṣadic abounds with such analogical studies. The seers of the Six Systems of Indian Philosophy and also Svāmī Dayānanda did not encourage this type of logic beyond a certain extent.

The collateral parallelism is tabulated below:-

Metre and Syllables	Devata	Svara	Varņa	Ŗși
Gayatri, 24	Agni	Sadja	Sita	Agniveša
Usnik, 28	Savitr	Rsabha	Saranaga	Kaśyapa
Anustup, 32	Soma	Gandhara	Piśańga	Gotama
Brhati, 36	Brhaspati	Madhyama	Kṛṣṇa	Ańgiras
Pankti, 40	Varuna	Pañcama	Kṛṣṇa Nila	Bhrgu
Tristubh	Indra	Dhaivata	Lohita	Kuśika
Jagati, 48	Viśvedevah	Nisada	Gaura	Vasistha

Katyayana's Sarvanukrama Sütram and Yajuh metres

The Sukla Yajurveda (White Recension of the Yajuh) belongs to the Mādhyandina school, of which Yājāavalkya was the distinguished leader. We are fortunate, that today we not only possess an authoritative text of this school, we have also an Index Book known as Sarvānukrama-Sūtra, of five adhyāyas (chapters), compiled by Kātyāyana, perhaps the same person who gave us the Kātyāyana Śrauta Sūtras, also known in short as Kātīya Śrauta Sūtras. We are obliged to these scholars who carefully edited the Yajuh texts, and kept for us an account of the relevent chandas, devatās and rṣis (as far as available); they counted the syllables and verses of the text, and thereby preserved the texts in their traditional forms, otherwise they could have been lost to us.

Needless to say that Katyayana's Sarvanukrama Sutra is not very old. The Yajuh texts and their traditions are older, much older than normally we can think of. In our cultural and literary history, there was never a time when mankind was not familiar with Rks, Yajuhs and Samans and the Atharvan texts.

The Sarvānukrama text in Chapter I states that the Yajurveda starts with words ise tvā and ends with words kham brahma (इमेलादि खम्बह्मान्तम्). Like so many other scholars, Kātyāyana, the author of the Sarvānukrama Sūtra, is definitely of the opinion that is is absolutely essential to be familiar with the Rsis, Devatās and Chandas (metres) of the mantras before one can really understand the sense of the Vedic texts.

एतानि (ऋषिदैवतच्छन्दांसि) अविदित्वा यो 5 धीते इनुद्रूते जपति जुहोति यजते याजयते तस्य ब्रह्म निर्वीर्यं यातयामं भवति ।

Most of our traditional commentators agree with this, and hence, it is usually customary to know the rsi, devatā and metre of every passage in the Vedas.

According to Dayananda, and to most of others also, the rsi assigned to a Vedic passage is not the author of the text, it is usually the name of a historical person who could for the first time comprehend the inner meaning of the text. The verses or the mantras pre-existed these rsis (who in fact, are the men of history). But in most of the cases, we do not possess a reliable list of the names of these persons. In such cases, the names, given in this index are merely conceptual (and thus evidently non-historical). The names of rsis assigned to such verses may be a word already existing in the verse.

Not the rsis, but the devatās assigned to these texts are really of value in interpreting these verses. Then, what about the metre or the name of the chanda? Most of the authorities do not attach any importance to naming the chandas of a Vedic text; only in a few exceptional cases, the interpretation of a text appears to depend on your identifying the chanda. It has been correctly postulated that in the case of the Vedic verses, the interpretation of a word depends on the udatta, anudatta and svarita svaras assigned to syllables. For example, word bhrātruya, भातूच्य, has two meanings: (i) an opponent (or a rival), (ii) a nephew, e.g. भातूच्यस्य वपाय (Yv. I.18). If the initial syllable is udātta, then it would mean a rival, otherwise a nephew. In the Vedic text, the udātta is on the initial syllable, and hence it means a rival.

Neither Dayananda, nor Mahidhara or Uvata discusses the subject of accents in details in their commentaries to avoid confusion and unnecessary extravagance. Mahidhara and Uvata give the names of the metres, mostly only where the Sarvanukrama Sūtras have given — not everywhere. Dayananda, however, clearly assigns metres in all the Yajuh verses. Mahidhara exhaustively discusses the first mantra, इमेलोज्जे ला - its grammar, the etymology, the viniyoga, but later on, he avoids all such details. In principle, he, however, agrees with other scholars that the interpretation of a verse should depend on what the devata of the text is and what chanda, rsi and svara are:

"तच्चाध्ययनं प्रतिमंत्रमृषिछन्दोदेवताज्ञानपूर्वकं विधेयमन्यया दोषश्रवणात्।"

In theory, it is all right, that the interpretation of a verse could depend on its metre, but in practice it is not usually so.

So far as the Yajuh texts are concerned, we are forced to deal with several types of texts:-

(a) Texts, actually in metrical verses ( as in the Rgveda), e.g. Yv. XXV.10-45; the usual metres are pankti, tristubh, brhafi, and jagatī; also Yv. XXVII.

- (b) The metrical verses are interspersed with one of more prose-type of texts. They are not verses in the usual sense. One can, however, count the number of syllables, and assign them a metre accordingly. The number of syllables could be as high as 106. (svarād-utkṛti e.g. (i) XXVII. 45 nicṛdabhikṛti (निचृद्-अभिकृति)with 24 + 44 + 12 + 19 = 99 (see संवत्तरोडिंति). (ii) XXII. 22 106 syllables svarād utkṛti (see आबहान् बाह्मणी)
- (c) In some of the Vedic texts, the number of syllables may exceed 106 even. Then as Dayananda has done, a passage is broken into two or more fragments, and each fragment is given a relevant name of the metre, e.g.

(i) Yv. I.1. - इपे त्वा॰ etc.: (a) इपे to भागे (38) (b) प्रजावती to पाहि (42) = svarāṭ - bṛhatī + brāhmī- uṣṇik, 38 + 42 = 80.

(ii) Yv. IX. 2 - पुवसदं त्वा॰ = (i) पुवसदं to जुष्टपदं (40) + अप्सुपदं to जुष्टतमम् (92) = बाईा-pankti + vikṛti 40 + 92 = 132.

(iii) X.4 - सूर्यत्वचस स्य॰ = (i) सूर्यत्वचस to दत्त स्वाहा (48) + (ii) सूर्यवचस to अमुष्मै दत्त (42) + (iii) वजिसत to अमुष्मै दत्त (56) + (iv) शविष्ठा to अमुष्मै दत्त (36) + (v) जनमृत to अमुष्मै दत्त (30) + (vi) विश्वमृत to अमुष्मै दत्त (45) + मधुमती (vii) to दमतीः = jagatī + svarāṭ- paṅkti + svarāṭ-brāhmī-bṛhatī svaraṭ-brāhmī bṛhati + ārcī- paṅkti + bhu-ik - triṣṭup + bhu-ik - + (45) triṣṭup = 48 + 42 + 56 + 56 + 30 + 45 + 45 = 322.

Mahīdhara (and also Uvaţa) does not give the names of Yajuḥ - metres on his own. He has no hesitation in assigning the name to a metre in case the treatise Sarvānukrama Sūtras does so. For example:

Yv. XXXVII. 19 - हदे त्वा॰ - paroṣṇik (or virāḍ-usṇik)

7 + 7 + 12 = 26

Yv. XL. 1 - ईशावास्य - anuştup, 16 + 16 = 32

Yv. XL. 4 -अनेजदेक - tristup, 22 + 21 = 43

Yv. XL. 8 -स पर्वगा॰ (svarāṭ) jagatī 23 + 27 = 50

Vedic Metres and their Classification

Our classification of metres depends on the number of syllables in a verse. In counting syllables, only those letters are considered as end in a vowel. (Vowel, short or long, is itself a syllable for counting. A consonant without a vowel is out-right rejected); e.g.

ज्योतना - jyotsnā, J-YO-T-S-NĀ, has five letters in all but only two vowels — and the word has thus only 2 syllables (यो, ना; yo and nā) अग्निज्यंतिरगिनः -A-G-NI-R-J-YO-TI-RA-G-NIH The phrase has eight vowels, and hence it is of eight syllables. (iḥ in "agniḥ" is considered as one vowel, not two i and h.)

Each metre of eight types

The gāyatrī metre belongs to eight types, known as ārṣī-gāyatrī, daivī-gāyatrī, āsurī, gāyatrī, prājāpatya gāyatrī, yājuṣī gāyatrī, sāmnī gāyatrī, ārcī gayatrī, and brāhmī gāyatrī.

Similarly usnik, anustup, brhatī, pańkti, tristup and jagatī have eight types:

arṣī, daivī, āsurī, prājāpatya, yājuṣa, sāmnī, ārcī and brāhmī.

Thus in all we have  $7 \times 8 = 56$  types of metres. The following table summarizes the classification.

Table I Metres with number of syllables

	Gayatri	Usnik	Anustup	Brhati	Pankti	Tristup	Jagati	+ 01-
A rsi	24	28	32	36	40	44	48	+4
Daivi	1	2	3	4	5	6	7	+1
A suri	15	14	13	12	11	10	9	-1
Prajapatya,	8	12	16	20	24	28	32	+4
Yajusi,	6	7	8	9	10	11	12	+1
Samni,	12	14	16	18	20	22	24	+2
Arci,	18	21	24	27	30	33	36	+3
Brahmi	36	42	48	54	60	66	72	+6

Thus, by referring to the vertical and horizontal columns, one can easily find out the number of syllables pertaining to any metre. For example:

( i) samnī tristup - 22 syllables.

(ii) prajpatya anustup - 16 syllables.

(iii) brāhmī jagatī - 72 syllables.

We shall quote here a few examples from the Yajurveda text: Arṣī Gāyatrī - विश्वानि देव सवित दुरितानि परा सुव यद् भद्रं तन्त्र आ सुव

(XXX. 3)

Daivī Gāyatrī-ओं (ओ३म्) -24 syllables -1 syllable,

Daivī Uṣṇik - मुवः -2 syllables Daivī Bṛhatī - मूर्मुवः स्वः -4 syllables

Prajapatya Gayatri - अग्निज्यातिज्यातिराग्निः

(Yv. III. 9) - 8 syllables.

Daivī Anustup - इपे त्वा -3 syllables (I.1)

ऊर्जे त्वा -3 syllables (I.2) Daivī Bṛhatī वायवस्य -4 syllables (I. 1)

Asurī Gāyatrī - उपयामगृहीतोऽसि मित्रावरुणाम्यां त्वा

(VII. 9) - 15 syllables

Ārṣī uṣṇik - उपयामगृहीतोऽस्यन्तर्य्यच्छ मधवन् पाहि सोमम्।

उत्तव्व रायङएषो यजस्व ॥ (VII. 4) -28 syllables

Ārṣī-Tristup-

अग्नेर्वोऽपन्नगृहस्य सदिस सादयामीन्द्रग्न्योर्भागधेयी स्य मित्रावरुणयोर्भागधेयी स्थ विश्वेषां देवानां भागधेयी स्थ । (VI. 24; first fragment from अग्नेर्वो to भागधेयी स्य) - 44 syllables Brāhmī-uṣṇik (i) रक्षसां भागोऽसि निरस्त छ्रह्म ६ इदमह ्ँ ५ रक्षो ववाधऽइदमह

रक्षोऽधर्म तमो नयामि । (42 syllables)

(ii) घृतेन द्यनापृथिवी प्रोर्णुवायां वायो वे स्तोकानामग्निराज्यस्य वेतु स्वाहा स्वाहाकृतेऽऊर्ध्वनमसे माहतं गच्छतम् । (VI. 16) — 42 syllables

Nicrt, Bhurik, Virat and Svarat

All the fifty-six types of metres tabulated above (Table I) have an assigned number of syllables with the least number in the daivī series: 1, 2, 3, 4, 5, 6, and 7; and the highest number in the brāhmī series: 36, 42, 48, 54, 60, 66, 72.

Of course, the number of syllables is prescribed, but the observation to this number is not rigid.

We have two Sūtras, given by Pingala in his Chandaḥ-Sāstram. (The first is):

जनाधिकेनैकेन नियृद्भुरिजौ । (III. 59)

i.e. (N-1) gives nicrt and (N+1) gives bhurik;

(One syllable less than usual gives nicrt, and one syllable more gives bhurik). The second is:

द्वाप्यां विराट्-स्वराजौ । (III. 60)

i.e. (N-2) gives virat, and (N+2) gives svarat, (two syllables less than the usual gives virat, and two syllables in excess gives svarat).

(A) Nicrt (N-1)

Any metre which is deficient by one syllable, is further known as nicṛt; e.g.

(i) Jagati metre is of 48 syllables, and hence nicrt jagati has

48 - 1 = 47 syllables.

अदित्यै रास्नासि, Yv. I.30; 24 + 23 = 47

(ii)  $Br\overline{a}hm\overline{i}$  bṛhat $\overline{i}$  has 54 syllables, and hence nicṛt bṛ $\overline{a}hm\overline{i}$  bṛhat $\overline{i}$  has 54 — 1 = 53 syllables, e.g. समिदिस सूर्यस्त्वा, Yv. II.5, 19 + 34 = 53 syllables.

(B) Bhurik - (N + 1)

A metre with an extra syllable is known as bhurik;

(i) Uşnik metre has 28 syllables.

Bhurik-uṣṇik has 28 + 1 = 29 syllables

वातो वा मनो वा गन्धर्वाः सप्तवि । शतिः (14)

ते अग्रेडश्वमयुञ्जॅस्तेड अस्मिन् जवमादयुः। (16) -Yv. IX.7.

(14 + 15) = 29

(ii) Brāhmī bṛhatī has 54 syllables.

Therefore bhurik Brāhmī brhatī has 54 + 1 = 55 syllables, e.g.

देवस्य त्या सवितुः प्रसवे अश्वनीर्याहुम्यां पूष्णी हत्ताभ्याम् । (20)

उपांध्शो वीर्येण जुहोमि हतं रक्षः स्वाहा (15)

रक्षतां त्वा वधायावधिष्य (10)

रक्षो ६ वधिष्यामुमसी हतः॥ (10)

(20 + 15 + 10 + 10 = 55)

-Yv. IX. 38

(C) Virat - (N-2)

Virat metre is deficient by 2 syllables.

(i) Bṛhatī has 36 syllables, and therefore, virāt bṛhatī has

36 - 2 = 34 syllables:

वस्व्यस्यदितिरस्यादित्यासि रुद्रासि चन्द्रासि । (16)

बृहस्पतिष्ट्वा सुम्ने रम्णातु रुद्रो वसुिमराचके (18)

(16 + 18 = 34)

- Yv. IV.21

(ii) Brahmi tristup has 66 syllables, and hence virat brahmi tristup has 66 - 2 = 64 syllables,

अग्नि । होतारं मन्ये दास्वन्तं वस् सुन् । (14) सहसो जातवेदसं विग्रं न जातवेदसम् (16)

य 5 अर्ध्वया स्वध्वरो देवो देवाच्या कृपा। (14)

घतस्य विमाष्टिमन् वष्टि (10)

शोचिषा ८८ जुह्नानस्य सर्पिषः॥ (10)

(14 + 16 + 14 + 10 + 10 = 64)

-Yv. XV. 47

Svarat - (N + 2)

Svarāt metre has two syllables in excess.

(i) Anustup has 32 syllables, and hence svarat anustup has 32 + 2 = 34 syllables.

चिद्यसि तया देवतयाङ्गिरस्वत् पूवा सीद । (16)

परिचिद्ति तया देवतयाङ्गिरस्वत् यूवा सीद ॥ (18)

(16 + 18 = 34)- Yv. 12.53

(ii) Brāhmī tristup has 66 syllables, and therefore svarāt brāhmī tristup has 66 + 2 = 68 syllables.

देवान् दिवमगन्यइस्ततो मा द्रविणमध्द (16)

मनुष्यानन्तरिक्षमयन्यज्ञस्ततो मा द्रविणमध्य (19)

पितृन प्रयिवीमगन्यज्ञस्ततो मा द्रविणमध्द (17)

यं कं च लोकमगन्यज्ञस्ततो मे मद्रममृत् ॥ (16)

(16 + 19 + 17 + 16 = 68) -Yv. VIII. 60

Some general rules of the metres

The unit of a metre is a syllable; the total number of syllables in a verse decides the type of the metre. Again a verse may be broken into a number of feet (pada, पाद or carana, चरण). This number may be one, two, three or four, but never more than four. Each pada would have a definite number of syllables. Sometimes, though rerely, a poet takes a little license, and he may phonetically break up a syllable into two syllables to fulfil the requirements of the prescribed rule.

(इयादि पुरणः - Pirigala III. 2) as

(i) तत्सवित्वरिण्यं (7 syllables) is broken as तत्सवित्वरिणियं

(8 syllables), (XXX, 2)

(ii) दिवं गच्छ स्वं पत दिवं गच्छ सुवं पत (7 syllables) is changed to (8 syllables). (XII.4)

- (a) In the gayatri metre, each pada has eight syllables (जायत्र्या वसव:- Pingala III. 3) vasu denotes the numerical figure 8, because vasus are said to be eight in number.
- (b) In the Jagatī metre, each pāda has twelve syllables (जगत्या आदित्या:PiṅgaladII. 6) āditya denotes the number 12, since ādityas said to be 12 number.
- (c) In the virāj metre, each pāda has ten syllables (विराजो दिस: Pingalā III. 5) dik or directions are said to be 10 in number.
- (d) In the tristup metre, each pada has 11 syllables (সিন্দো চয়: -Pingala III.6 -rudra stands for the number 11, since rudras are said to be 11.

Special Varieties of Gayatra

1. Gayatri, Arsi Gayatri - Normally, Gayatri is a three-footed metre, with 8 syllables in every pada: <math>8 + 8 + 8 (i.e. three gayatra padas).

विश्वानि देव सवितर् (8)

दुरितानि परा सुव। (8)

यद् मई तन्न आ सुव ॥ (8) -Yv. XXX. 3

2. Nicrd gāyatrī - 24 — 1; i.e., with one syllable less, a gāyatrī metre becomes nicrd gāyatrī.

तत्सवितुवरिण्यं (7)

मर्गो देवस्य पीमहि (8)

िययो यो मः प्रचोदयात् (8)

(7 + 8 + 8 = 23) -Yv. XXX. 2

3. Bhrik gayatri - 24 + 1 = 25, i.e. with one syllable in excess to the usual 24 syllables.

उक्ताः सञ्चरा ६ एता६ (7)

ऐन्द्राग्नाः प्राज्ञक्ता माहेन्द्रा (9)

बहुसपा वैश्वकर्मणाः (9)

(7 + 9 + 9 = 25) -Yv. XXIV. 17

4. Virāt gāyatrī - 24 - 2 = 22, i.e. with two syllables less than the usual syllables in the gayatrī.

आदर्धषद् वृषण्वसू। (8) दुःश ्तौ मत्यौँ रिपुः॥ (7)
$$(7 + 8 + 7 = 22)$$
 -Yv. XX. 82

 Svarād gāyatrī - 24 + 2 = 26, i.e. with two syllables extra, कृष्णा भीमा धूमाङआन्तरिक्षा (10)

बृहन्तो दिव्याः शुक्ला (8) वैद्युताः सिष्मास्तारकाः (8)

(10 + 8 + 8 = 26) -Yv. XXIV. 10

6. Dvipadā virāt gāyatrī - The gāyatrī metre is usually tripāda, i.e. having three feet, but we have here a dvipadā gāyatrī (virāt, since, here we have two syllables less than the usual 24 ones, i.e. 24 - 2 = 22).

क्षत्रस्य योनिरित क्षत्रस्य नामिरित । (14) मा त्वा हि ्ैसीन्या मा हि ्ैसीः (8) (14 + 8 = 22 syilables) -Yv. XX. 1

7. Pipīlikamadhyā nicrd gāyatrī - 8 + 7 + 8. This is also ordinary nicrd gāyatrī (24 - 1) with the 7-syllable-metre placed in the middle (a special case of nicrd gāyatrī).

देवस्य सवितुर्मति- (8) मासुवं विश्वदेव्यम् (7) पिया मगं मनामहे (8)

(8 + 7 + 8) - Yv. XXII. 14

8. Pipīlikamadhyā gāyatrī - In this variation of gāyatrī, the middle pāda (the second one) is of the least number of syllables (त्रिपादणिष्ठमध्या पिपीलिकमध्या-Pingala III. 57).

परि सुवानश्यक्षते (8) देवमादनः (5) क्रतुरिन्दु विचक्षणः (8) (8 + 5 + 8) - Rv. IX. 107.3

9. Yavamadhyā (virāt) gāyatrī - This variety of gāyatrī is reverse of the pipīlikamadhyā in the sense, that the first and the third pādas are short, whereas the middle pāda is the longest one (विपरी ा यवमध्या -Pingala III. 58).

सुनावमारुहेय (7) भस्रवन्तीमनागसम् । (8) शतारित्राश्स्वस्तये (7) (7 + 8 + 7) -Yv. XXI. 7

Similarly गन्तारा हि स्यो ६ वसे (7) हवं विप्रस्य मावतः (8) धर्तारा चर्षणीनाम् (7) - Rv. I. 17.2. Again—

सुदेवः समहासित (8) सुवीरो नरो मरुतः स मर्त्यः (11) यं त्रायध्वे स्याम ते ॥ (7) -Rv. v. 53.15

10. Catuṣpāda gāyatrī (6+6+6+6=24) - Usually the gāyatrī metre is of three pādas, but one may have a four-footed variety also: (आद्यतुष्पाद् ऋतुभिः -Pin gala III. 8)

दोषो गाय बृहद् (6) गायद्य मद्धे हि (6) आयर्वण स्तुष्ठि (6) देवं सवितारम् ॥ (6) -Av. VI. 1.1

11. Pāda nicṛt gāyatrī - 7 + 7 + 7 - It is a three-footed gāyatrī, with every pāda short of one syllable (क्वचित् त्रिपाट्टिपिः -Pińgala II. 9); the term "ṛṣi" stands for numeral 7.

युवाकु हि शचीनां (7) युवाकु सुमतीनाम् (7) भूयाम वाजदाव्नाम् ॥ (7) (7 + 7 +7) -Rv. I. 17.4

12. Pāda niert gāyatrī or a atipāda niert gāyatrī - 6 + 8 + 7—In this variety of gāyatrī, the gāyatra pāda (of eight syllables) is placed between a pāda of 6 syllables, and another (the last pāda) of 7 syllables.

सा पादिनचृत्। (10) षद्क सप्तकयोर्गध्ये ६ ष्टावितपादिनचृत् - Pingala III. 10, 11. प्रेष्ठं वो अतिथिं (6) स्तुषे भित्रमिव प्रियम् (8) अग्निं रयं न वेद्यम् (7) -Rv. VIII. 84.1

13. Nāgi gāyatrī - 9 + 9 + 6 - Pińgala describes this gāyatrī, having the first two pādas of nine syllables each, followed by a pāda of six (9 + 9 + 6 = 24): (ही नवकी पट्कश्वनागी - III. 12).

अग्ने तमद्याश्यं न स्तोमैः (9) क्रतुं न भद्रं हृदिस्पृशम् (9) ऋद्ध्यामा त ओहैः ॥ (6) -Rv. IV. 10.1

14. Vārāhī gāyatrī - 6 + 9 + 9 - The converse of the nāgī gāyatrī is the vārāhī. (विपरीता वारासी, III. 13).

अग्ने मृह महाँ (6) असि य ईमा देवयुञ्जनम् (10) इयेष बर्हिरासदम् (8) (6 + 10 + 8 = 24) -Rv. IV. 9.1

15. Vardhamānā gāyatrī, 6 + 7 + 8 = 21 - A metre in which the number of syllables stands in the progressive series of six, seven and eight, is called vardhamānā gāyatrī; (षट्क स्पतकास्टकैवर्धमाना - Pingala III. 14).

त्वमग्ने यश्चानां (6) होता विश्वेषां हितः (7) देवेमिमानुषे जने ॥ (8) —Rv. VI. 16.1

(6 + 7 + 8 = 21; this metre is also known as  $\bar{a}rc\bar{c}i$  usnik).

16. Pratiṣṭhā gāyatrī - 8 + 7 + 6 = 21; this is reverse of vardhamānā gāyatrī. (विपरीता प्रतिष्ठा - Pingala III. 15)

वस्तवं तन्ते ३ मम (7) ज्योक् च सूर्यं दृशे। (6) Rv. IX. 107.6 इन्द्रस्य स्यूरसीन्द्रस्य (8) धुवोऽति ऐन्द्रमिस (7) वैश्वदेवमिस। (6) Yv. V. 30 (This is also known as arci-uṣṇik.)

17. Dvipāda virāt gāyatrī - 12 + 8 = 20 syllables (तृतीयं द्विपाज्जागत गायत्राभ्याम् -Piṅgala, III. 16). This is a metre of 2 pādas, the first of which is a jāgata (of 12 syllables), and the second a gāyatra (of 8 syllables).

नृभिर्येमानो हर्यतो विचक्षणो (12) राजा देवः समुद्रियः (8) — Rv. X. 107.16 This may also be classed as pipīlikamadhyā gāyatrī

नृष्मर्येमानो हर्यतो (8) विचक्षणो (4) राजा देवः समुद्रियः (8) (8 + 4 + 8 = 20)

Usnik Metres

The Pingala Sūtras III. 18 to III. 22 describe uṣṇik metres, which are usually of three pādas of 8+8+12 syllables (उष्णिग् गायत्री जागतश्च, i.e. of two gāyatras and one jāgata-II. 18). They may be of four pādas also.

- 1.  $\overline{Arsa}$  usnik or simply usnik 7 + 7 + 7 + 7 = 28, but may be of 2 padas or 3 padas even.
- (a) स्वयंमूरिस श्रेष्ठो (7) रश्मिर्वर्चीदाङजिस (7) वर्ची मे देहि। -सूर्य- (7) स्यावृतमन्वावर्ते (7) — Yv. II. 26

This may be written in two padas also of 19 + 9 syllables.

- (a) स्वयंमूरिस श्रेष्ठो रश्मिवर्चोदाङअसि वर्चो मे देष्ठि । (19 सूर्यस्यावृतमन्वावर्ते (1)
- (b) प्रेडोडअग्ने दीदिष्ठि पुरी नोडजस्रया सूर्म्या यदिष्ठ । (18) त्या ध्शारवन्त ६ उपयन्ति वाजाः । (10) (18 + 10 = 28) -Yv. XVII. 76
- 2. Nicrd usnik 28 1 = 27 syllables.

अभ्यावर्त्तस्य प्रथिवि यज्ञेन प्रयसा सह। (16) वर्षा तेऽअग्निरिषितोऽअरोहत्।। (11) (16 + 11 = 27) -Yv. XII. 103

- 3. Bhurik uṣṇik (28 + 1 = 29) One syllable in excess to the normal number.
  - (i) अग्ने वतमति वतमचारिषं (12) तदशकं तन्येऽराधीदहं (11) यङएवाऽस्मि सोऽस्मि ॥ (6) (12 + 11 + 6 = 29) -Yv. II. 28 (ii) परमस्याः परावतो रोहिदश्वऽइहागहि । (16) पुरीष्यः पुरुप्रियोऽग्ने त्वं तरा मुषः ॥ (13) (16 + 13 = 29) -Yv. XI. 72
- 4. Virad usnik 28 2 = 26 syllables.

होता यसत्प्रजापित ् सोमस्य महिम्नः। (14) जुषतां पिबतु सोम ् होतर्यज ॥ (12) (14 + 12 = 26 syllables) -Yv. XXIII. 64

5. Svarād uṣṇik - 28 + 2 = 30 syllables.

देवा गातुविदो गातुं विश्वा गातुमित । (14) मनसस्पतऽइमे देव यज्ञं स्वाहा वाते धाः ॥ (16) (14 + 16 == 30) -Yv. VIII. 21 6. Kakubh uṣṇik - Whereas 8 + 8 + 12 is the common uṣṇik (one jāgata between two gāyatras,), in kakubh uṣṇik, there is a jāgata between two gāyatra pādas: 8 + 12 + 8:

युष्मार्क स्मा रयाँ अनु- (8) मुदे दये मरुतो जीरदानवः। (12) वृष्टी द्यावो यतोरिव ॥ (8) (8 + 12 + 8 syllables) -Rv. V. 53.5

7. Puraḥ uṣṇik पुर उष्णिक्- When the first pāda is jāgata (i.e. of 12 syllables), and then followed by the two gāyatras (8) (8), then it is puraḥ- uṣṇik = 12 + 8 + 8:

अपवन्तरमृतमप्तु मेषजम - (12) पावृत प्रशस्तये। (7) देवा मवत वाजिनः॥ (8) (12 + 7 + 8, निचृद् पुर उष्णिक् = 27) -Rv. I. 23.19

- 8. Paroṣṇik 8 + 8 + 12 = 28, i.e. the jāgata pāda (of 12 syllables) is the last one, the first two being the gāyatras (परोध्णिक् पर:- Piṅgala, III. 21) -This is not a new type, since it refers to the very definition of common usnik (उष्णिग्गायत्री जागतत्रव, III. 18)
- 9. Catuspāda uṣṇik, i.e. 7 + 7 + 7 + 7 = 28

नदं व ओदतीनां (7)

नदं योयुवतीनाम्। (7)

पतिं वो अप्न्यानां (6)

पेनूनामिषुच्यसि ॥ (7) -Rv. VIII 69.2.

(An extra-syllable has been provided in the third quarto (license according to इयादिपूरण: -Pingala III.2); otherwise the whole verse may be called as nicid - catuspada - uṣṇik.

Anustup Metres

1.  $\overline{Arsi}$  anustup or merely Anustup - They have the four padas of 8 syllables each : 8+8+8+8=32 syllables (अनुष्टुब् गायत्रैः - the word gayatra denotes 8 syllables - Pingala, III. 23).

विराजो ६ अधिपूरुषः । (8) स जातो ६ अत्यरिष्यत (8) पश्चाद् भूमिमयो पुरः ॥ (8) — Yv. XXXI. 5

2. Nicrd anustup - (32 - 1) = 31 syllables, i.e. ono syllable less

पुरुष ६ एवेद ् सर्वं (8) यद्भूतं यच्च भाव्यम् । (7) उतामृतत्वस्येशानो (8) यदन्नेनातिरोहति ॥ (8) (Yv. XXX 1.2) (8 + 7 + 8 + 8 = 31)

3. Bhurik anustup - (32 + 1) = 33 syllables, i.e. one syllable more than usual.

त्वे ६ अग्ने स्वाहुत (7) प्रियासः सन्तु सूरयः। (8) यन्तारो ये मघवानो (8) जनानामूर्वान्दयन्त गोनाम्। (10) —Yv. XXXIII.14 (7 + 8 + 8 + 10 = 33 syllables)

4. Virat anustup - (32-2) = 30 syllables, i.e. 2 syllables less than usual.

तस्माद्यक्षात् सर्वहुतः (8) सम्मृतं पृषदाज्यम् ।(7) पशूँस्ताँश्चक्रे वायव्या-(8) नारण्या ग्राम्याश्च ये ॥ (7) —Yv. XXXII.6 (8 + 7 + 8 + 7 = 30 syllables)

5. Svarād anustup, 32 + 2 = 34, i.e. 2 syllables more than usual.

अनह्वाहमन्वारमामहे (10) सौरभेय ्स्वस्तये। (7) स न ६ इन्द्र ६ देवेम्यो (9) विह्नः सन्तरणो मव॥ (8) (Yv. XXXV. 13) (10 + 7 + 9 + 8 = 34 syllables). 6.  $Trip\bar{a}da$  anuṣṭup - Sometimes, one may have an anuṣṭup of three pādas, i.e. with two jāgata lines (of twelve syllables each) and one gāyatra line of eight syllables: 12+12+8=32; or 12+8+12 or 8+12+12. (त्रिपात्क्विचिन्जागताम्यां च (24) मध्ये  $s \to \bar{a} = (25) - Pingala$ , III. 24-25)

पर्यूषु प्रयन्व वाजसातये (11) परि वृत्राणि सक्षणिः (8) द्विषस्तरच्या ऋणया न ईयसे ॥ (12) (11 + 8 + 12, nicrd) (Rv. IX. 110.1)

7.  $Pip\bar{\imath}likamadhy\bar{a}$  vir $\bar{a}t$  anustup - Vir $\bar{a}t$  anustup has 32-2=30 syllables. In the following verse, these are divided as follows in 3 p $\bar{a}$ das;

अजीजनो हि पवमान सूर्य (11) विचारे शक्मना पयः। (8) गोजीरया र $^*$  हमाणः पुरन्थ्या।। (11) (11 + 8 + 11 = 30) -Yv. XX11.18

Kātyāyana's Sarvānukramaņī of the Rgveda gives the following eight variations of the anustup-metre:

Anuṣṭup - 8+8+8+8=32 syllables.

Mahāpada paṅkti, महापदपिक, 5+5+5+5+6=31 syllables,

Virāṭ, विराद, 10 + 10 + 10, 11 + 11 + 11 = 33 syllables. Naṣṭarūpi, नष्टलपी, 9 + 10 + 13 = 32 syllables. Krti, कृति, 12 + 12 + 8 = 32 syllables.

Pipīlikāmadhyā, पिपीलिकामध्या, 12 + 8 + 12 = 32 syllables.

Kāvirāt, काविराट, 9 + 12 + 9 = 30 syllables.

Brhafi Metres

According to Pingala, one jagata line followed by three gāyatra lines constitute the bṛhatī metre: 12 + 8 + 8 + 8 = 36 syllables in all - बृहती जागतस्त्रयश्व गायत्रः - III. 26.

Thus the brhatī metre has normally 36 syllables:

one syllable less means  $nicrd - brhat\bar{\imath} (36 - 1) = 35$ ; one syllable more means  $bhurik-brh\bar{a}t\bar{\imath} (36 + 1 = 37)$ ; two syllables less (36 - 2 = 34) means  $vir\bar{a}t - brhat\bar{\imath}$ , and two syllables more means  $svar\bar{a}t - brhat\bar{\imath}$  metre.

1. Ārṣī bṛhatī, or simply bṛhatī - 36 syllables:

2. Nicrd brhatī - 36 - 1 = 35 syllables, i.e. one syllable less than usual.

3. Bhurik bṛhatī - 36 + 1 = 37 syllables, i.e. one syllable more than usual.

नमस्ते हरसे शोचिषे नमस्ते ६ अस्त्वर्चिषे । (16)
अन्याँस्ते अस्मत्तपन्तु हेतयः (11)
पावको ६ अस्मप्य ्शियो मव ॥ (10)
(16 + 11 + 10 = 37) —Yv. XXXVI. 20

4. Virāt bṛhati 36 - 2 = 34, i.e. 2 syllables less than the usual.

शारदेन ऋतुना देवा ६ एक वि ्शक्षमय स्तुताः । (18) वैराजेन श्रिया श्रिय ्हिविरिन्द्रे वयो दयुः ॥ (16)  (18+16=34) \qquad \qquad - \text{Yv. } \text{XX}1.26

5. Svarāt bṛhatī - 36 + 2 = 38 syllables, i.e. two syllables more than usual.

आजुह्वान ६ ईह्यो वन्छश्चा (9) याह्यग्ने वसुभिः सजीयाः । (9) त्वां देवानामित यह होता (10) स ६ एनान्यसीयितो यजीयान् (10) (18 + 20 = 38 = 9 + 9 + 10 + 10) —Yv. XXIX. 28

6.  $Pip\bar{i}lk\bar{a}madhy\bar{a}$   $Brhal\bar{i}$  - 14 + 8 + 14; the shortest pada being at the centre.

पृथिव्या ६ अहमुदन्तरिक्तमारुहम-(14) न्तरिकाहित्यमारुहम् । (8) दिवो नाकस्य पृष्ठात् स्वज्योतिरगामहम् (14)—Yv. XVII. 67

7.  $Pathy\bar{a}$   $Brhat\bar{i} - 8 + 8 + 12 + 8 = 36$  syllables. Here in this metre, the first two and the fourth padas are gayatra (of 8 syllables) and third pada is jagata (of 12 syllables): पच्या पूर्वश्चेत् तृतीया। -Pingala, III. 27.

कदाचन स्तरीरित (8) नेन्द्र सश्चित दाशुषे । (8) उपोपेन्नु मघवन् भूय ६ इन्नुते (12) दाने देवस्य प्रच्यते ॥ (8) —Yv. III. 34

8. Nyańku sāriṇī bṛhatī - 8 + 12 + 8 + 8 = 36 syllables i.e. the jāgata pāda (of 12 syllables) comprises the second pāda; whereas the first, third and the fourth pādas are gāyatra (of 8 syllables). (न्यंकुसारिणी द्वितीय: -Pingala, III. 28). Krauṣṭuka Ācārya has named the same metre as skandho-grīvī (स्कन्योगीवी क्रीस्टुके: -Pingala, III. 29) स्कन्योगीवी = a neck between two shoulders.

According to Yāska, the same metre is known as urobṛhatī (उरोबृहती वास्कस्य - Pingala, III. 30)

9. Upariṣṭād bṛhafī - 8 + 8 + 8 + 12 = 36, the jāgata pāda (of 12 syllables) is the fourth one, the first three being the gāyatra pādas of 8 syllables. (उपरिष्टाद बृहत्यन्ते - Pingala III. 31). Here we have a nicṛd upariṣṭad bṛhatī.

अश्विनकृतस्य ते (7) सरस्वितकृतस्येन्द्रेण (9) सुत्राम्णा कृतस्य उप (8) हूत ६ उपहुतस्य मक्षयामि ॥ (11) (7 + 9 + 8 + 11 = 35) —Yv. XX. 35 Here is another illustration of bhurik-uparisṭād bṛhatī:

सं वां मना ्सिसं वता (8) समु चितान्याकरम्। (7)

अग्ने पुरीष्याधिपा मव (9) त्वं न 5 इषमूर्जं यजमानाय येष्ठि । (13) (8 + 7 + 9 + 13 = 37) An uparistad brhatī:

-Yv. XII. 58

ऊर्घ्य ६ ऊ षु ण ६ ऊतये (8) तिष्ठा देवो न सविता । (8) ऊर्घ्यो वाजस्य सनिता (8) यदञ्जिमिर्वाघद्भिर्विद्धयामहे ॥ (12) (8 + 8 + 8 + 12 = 36)

-Yv. X1.42

- 10. Purastād Bṛhatī 12 + 8 + 8 + 8 In this, the Jāgata pāda (of 12 syllables) becomes the first one, the second, third and fourth being the gāyatra pādas (पुरस्ताद् बृहती पुर: Pingala, III. 32).
- 10.(a) Catuṣpāda bṛhatī I-9+9+9+9=36 syllables It has four pādas of nine syllables each क्वचिन्नवकाश्चत्वार:-Pińgala, HI. 33

युवं ह्यास्त महो रम्युवं (9) वा यम्निरततंसतम् । (8) ता नो वसू सुगोपा स्थातं (9) पातं नो वृकादघायोः ॥ (8) (9 + 8 + 9 + 8 = 34)

-Rv. I. 120.7

This catuṣpāda virāḍ bṛhatī (virāḍ since 36-2=34) it may also be called svarāḍ ārṣī anuṣṭup, svarāḍ since 32+2=34.

(b) Catuspāda Bṛhatī II — 10 + 10 + 8 + 8 = 36. The first two are the vairāja pādas (of 10 syllables), and the last two are the gāyatra pādas (of 8 syllables each) (वैराजी गायत्री च -Pingala, III. 34)

अग्ने विवस्वदुषसभ् (8) वित्रं राघो अमर्त्य । (7) आ दाशुषे जातवेदो (8) वहा त्वमद्या देवाँ उषर्बुघः ॥ (11) (8 + 7 + 8 + 11 = 34) —Rv. I. 44.1 This is known as uparistād virād bṛhatī, or catuṣpāda virād bṛhatī (upariṣṭād, since it has first three gāyatras and the fourth a jāgata).

Again, it is virad, since 2 less syllables (36 - 2 = 34), and catuspada, since the verse has four padas.

11. Mahābṛhatī - 12 + 12 + 12, i.e. having three pādas, each of which is a jāgata (i.e. of 12 syllables)- त्रिमिर्जागतेर्पहायुक्ती (Pingala, III. 35)

The metre is also known as satobrhafi, according to Tandin Acarya (सतोब्हती ताण्डनः).

अध यदिने पवमान रोदसी (12) इमा च विश्वा मुवनामि मन्मना। (12) यूषे न निष्ठा वृषमो वि तिष्ठसे॥ (12) (12 + 12 + 12 = 36) — Rv. IX. 110.9

Pankti Metres

The Pańkti metre is supposed to be containing 40 syllables, equivalent to two jāgata (12 syllables) and two gāyatra pādas (8 syllables) 12 + 12 + 8 + 8 = 40 syllables. (पीक जीगती गायत्री च - Piṅgala, III. 37). Ārṣi paṅkti, or merely paṅkti has thus 40 syllables in each verse.

- 1.  $\overline{Arsi}$  pankti or pankti = 12 + 12 + 8 + 8 or 10 + 10 + 10 + 10 = 18 + 22 = 40 syllables.
  - (a) गृहा मा विभात मा वेपध्यमूर्जं विभात ८ एमसि । (18) ऊर्जं विभाद्वः सुमनाः सुमेषा गृहानैमि मनसा मोदमानः ॥ (22) (18 + 22 = 40) -Yv. III. 41
  - (b) एततें रुद्दावस तेन (9)
    परो मूजवतो ६ तीहि । (8)
    अवतत्तपन्या पिनाकावसः (11)
    कृतिवासा ६ अहि ् सन्नः शियोतीहि ॥ (12)
    (17 + 23 = 40 or 8 + 9 + 11 + 12)
    -Yv. III. 61
- 2. Nicrd ( $\bar{a}r\bar{s}i$ ) Pankti 40 1 = 39 syllables, i.e. one less than usual.

मधुमतीर्न इषस्कृधि यते (11) सोमादाम्यं नाम जागृवि (9) तस्मै ते सोम सोमाय । (8) स्वाहा स्वाहोर्वन्तिरक्षमन्वेमि ॥ (11) (11 + 9 + 8 + 11 = 28 + 11 = 39) -Yv. VII.2

3. Bhurik ( $\overline{ars}$ ) Pankti - 40 + 1 = 41, one syllable more than usual.

त्वमग्ने व्रतपाडअप्ति (8)
देव ६ आ मर्त्येच्वा, त्वं यद्गेष्वीह्यः। (11)
रास्त्रेयत्तोमा भूयो मर (9)
देवो नः सविता वसोर्दाता वस्वदात्॥ (13)
(8 + 11 + 9 + 13 = 19 + 22 = 41) — Yv. IV. 16

4. Virāt pankti - 40 - 2 = 38, i.e. 2 syllables less than usual.

राज्यित प्राची दिग्विराहित (10)
दक्षिणा दिक् सम्राहित (8)
प्रतीची दिक् स्वराहस्यु-(8)
दीची दिग्धिपत्न्यित बृहती दिक् ॥ (12)
(10 + 8 + 8 + 12 = 38 syllables in all) -Yv. XIV. 13

5. Svarād ( $\bar{a}r\bar{s}i$ ) pankti - 40 + 2 = 42 syllables, i.e. 2 syllables more than usual.

विश्वकर्मा ह्यजनिष्ट देव5आदिद् (12) गन्धर्वोऽअभवद् ह्वितीयः । (9) हृतीयः िपता जनितौषपीनामपां (13) गर्म व्यद्धात् पुरुत्रा ॥ (8) (12+9+13+8=21+21=42) -Yv. XVII. 32

6. Sataḥ paṅkti - 12 + 8 + 12 + 8 = 40; in the first and third pāda, we have jāgata syllables (12), and in the second and fourth pādas, the gāyatra (8) syllables (पूर्वी चेदयुजी सतः पिक्तः - Piṅgala, III. 38 i.e. jāgata and gāyatras alternatively - see पिक्ति-र्जागती गायत्री च - Piṅgala, III. 37)

आ यं नरः सुदानवो ददाशुषे (12) दिवः कोशमचुयषुः। (8) वि पर्जन्यं सुजन्ति रोदसीअनु (12) धन्वना यन्ति वृष्टयः ॥ (8) (12 + 8 + 12 + 8 = 40)

7. Viparīta sataḥ paṅkti - Reverse of the sataḥ-paṅkti is also sataḥ paṅkti (8 + 12 + 8 + 12) i.e. the first and the third pādas have gāyatra syllables and the second and the fourth jāgata syllables (विपरीती च - Piṅgala, III. 39).

य ऋष्वः श्रावयत्सखा (8) विश्वेत्स वेद जनिमा पुरुष्टुतः (12) तं विश्वे मानुषा युगे-(8) न्द्रं हवन्ते तविषं यतसुचः ॥ (11) (8 + 12 + 8 + 11 - 30

(8 + 12 + 8 + 11 = 39; i.e. निचृद् सतः पिक्त, nicrd satah pańkti) -Rv. VIII. 46.12

8. Prastāra pankti - 12 + 12 + 8 + 8 = 40 with two jāgatas (of 12 syllables each) followed by two gāyatras (of 8 syllables each)- (प्रस्तार पंक्तिः पुरतः -Pingala, III. 40).

भूरित भूमिरस्यिदिति ति (11) विश्वधाया विश्वस्य भुवनस्य धर्त्री । (13) पृथिवीं यच्छ पृथिवीं (8) डुर्ष्ट पृथिवीं मा हिर्सिः (8) (11 + 13 + 8 + 8 = 40)

-Yv. XIII. 18

9. Āstāra pankti - 8 + 8 + 12 + 12 = 40, two gāyatras are followed by two jāgatas (आस्तार पंक्तिः परतः - Pingala, III. 41)

प्रतूर्तं वाजिन्नाद्रव (8) वरिष्ठामनु संवतम् । (8) दिवि ते जन्म परमयन्तरिक्षे (12) तव नामिः पृथिव्यामिष योनिरित् (12) (8 + 8 + 12 + 12 = 40)

-Yv. XI. 12

10. Viṣṭāra paṅkti - 8 + 12 + 12 + 8 = 40; two jāgata pādas in the middle, and preceded and followed by a gāyatra pāda each (विष्टारपंक्तिरन्तः -Piṅgala, III. 42; antaḥ here means the middle twos).

अग्ने तव श्रवो वयो (8) महि भ्राजन्ते अर्थय विभावसो । (12) बृहदभानो श्रवसा वाजमुक्य्यं (11) दश्यसि दागुपे कवे ॥ (8) (8 + 12 + 11 + 8 = 39; nicrd viṣṭāra pańkti)-Ŗv. X. 144 6

11. Sanstāra pańkti - 12 + 8 + 8 + 12 = 40 syllables, here the two jāgata pādas (12) are on extreme ends with two gāyatras (8) in the middle: (संस्तार पंक्तिबीहः -Pingala III. 43)

इष्कर्तारमध्वरस्य प्रचेनसं (12) क्षयन्तं रायसो महः (8) रातिं वामस्य सुभगां (8) महीमिषं दधाप्ति सानिंस रियम् ॥ (12) (12 + 8 + 8 + 12 = 40)

Rv VIII. 140.5

12. Akṣara paṅkti or ardha paṅkti - 5 + 5 + 5 + 5 = 20 syllables = 1/2 x 40 (ardha paṅkti)- (अक्षर पंक्तिः पञ्चकाश्चत्वारः, i.e. with four pādas of five syllables).

पश्चा न तायुं (5)
गुहा चतन्तम् । (5)
नमो युनानं (5)
नमो वहन्तम् ॥ (5) (5 + 5 + 5 + 5 = 20)

-Rv. I.65.1

13. Pada pankti-5+5+5+5+5=25 syllables (five pādas of 5 syllables each) (पदपोक्तः पञ्च -Pingala III. 46). Here is a bhurik pada Pankti (25+1=26), which may be regarded as virād uṣṇik also: 28-2=26):

घृतं न पूतं (5) तनुररेपाः (5) शुधि हिरण्यम् । (5) तते हक्मो न (5) रोचत स्वधावः ॥ (6) (5 + 5 + 5 + 5 + 6 = 26)

-Rv. IV. 10.6

14. Pañca-paña pańkti - 4+6+5+5+5=25 syllables, the first of 4, second of 6, and three pains of 5 (बहुक पद्की अपरय,

-Pingala, III. 47; here ca, ব, denotes pañcaka, lines i.e. of 5 syllables). There is no rigidity in respect to the order of catuşka (group of four), pañcaka (group of five) or şaţka (group of six);

- (a) अधा हान्ने (4)
  क्रतोर्मद्रस्य (5)
  दत्तस्य साधोः । (5)
  रयीर्ऋतस्य (5)
  बृहतो बभूय ॥ (6)
  (4 + 5 + 5 + 5 + 6 = 25). This may be also called bhurikgāyatrī (24 + 1 = 25). Rv. IV.10.2
- (b) एमिनों जर्क (5)
  र्मवा नो जर्बाङ् (5)
  स्वर्ण ज्योतिः ।(4)
  अग्ने जिस्वेमिः (5)
  सुमना अनीकैः ॥ (6)
  (5 + 5 + 4 + 5 + 6 = 25)
   Rv. IV. 10.3
- 16. Pathyā paṅktiḥ -8+8+8+8+8=40 ( 5 lines of gāyatra syllables (8) each (पर्या पञ्चिमर्गायक्रैः -Pingala, III. 48).

यो अर्थों मर्त मोजन (8)

(8 + 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 = 40)
-Rv. I.81.6

17. Jagatī pankti - 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 = 48 syllables. The metre has six gāyatra (8) pādas. This is in fact a special jagatī of six pādas. (जंगती पहिम: -Pingala, III. 49). (It is jagati, since the total number of syllables is 48).

Tristubh Metres

Pingala treats of tristup (or tristubh) and jagatī metres in 5 aphorisms:

(1) एकेन त्रिष्ट्व ज्योतिष्मती। (50)

(ii) तथा जगती। (51)

(iii) पुरस्ताज् ज्योतिः प्रथमेन । (52)

(iv) मध्येज्योतिर्मध्यमेन । (53)

Pañca-pad Tristup and Jagali Metres

A pañca-pād metre means a five-footed. The Sūtras from Pingala Chandaḥ-Sāstra III. 50-54 in their connection have already been given above.

They are a combination of four lines of gayatra plus one line of traistubha or jagata as the case may be.

They are called jyotih tristup or jyotismali tristup in one case and jyotih jagali or jyotismali jagali in the other.

(i) Pañcapād jyotişmalī trişţup-

4 gayatra + 1 traistubha = 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 + 11 = 43 syllables in five lines.

(ii) Pañcapād jyotismalī jagalī

4 gāyatra + 1 jāgata = 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 + 12 = 44 syllables in five lines, just as a pāda of 8 syllables is known as gāyatra (गायत्र) a pāda of 12 is known as jāgata (जागत), so a pāda of 11 syllables is known as traiṣṭubha (त्रेष्ट्रम); and also known as rudra. In further description, ज्योतिः = ज्योतिष्यती jyotiḥ = jyotiṣmatī.

Pañcapād purastād - jyotili tristup - 11 + 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 = 43This is of five feet.

The first pada is traistubha (of 11 syllables), and the rest four gayatra (of 8 syllables).

कृषी नो अहयो देव सवितः (11) स च स्तुषे मघोनाम् (7) सप्टो न इन्द्रो वहिम - (8) न्येषां चर्षणीनां (6) चक्रं रिश्म न योयुवे ॥ (8)

-Rv IV. 93.9

To meet the requisites of the metre, the second and fourth anomalous lines may be read as:

Second —त च सतुषे मघोनाम् (8) Fourth —िनयेषां चरषणीनाम् (8) (This verse, Rv. IV. 93.9 is also known as akṣara paṅkti).

Pañcapād purastād - jyotiķ jagatī - 12 + 8 + 8 + 8 + 8 = 44. Similar to the above tristubh metre, if the first pāda be jāgata (of 12 syllables), the metre is known as pañcapād purastād jyotiķ jagatī.

नमोवाके प्रस्थित अध्वरे नरा (12) विवक्षणस्य पीतये (8) आयातमश्विना गत - (8) मवस्युर्वामहं हुवे (8) धत्तं रत्नानि दाशुषे ॥ (8)

Pañcapād madhye jyotiṣmatī jagatī -8 + 8 + 12 + 8 + 8 = 44. This metre has five feet, of which first, second, fourth and fifth are gāyatra pādas, whereas the third or the middle one is a jāgata pāda.

इन्द्राय त्वा वसुमते (8)
तद्भवत ६ इन्द्राय त्वा- (8)
दित्यवत ६ इन्द्राय त्वाभिमातिष्मे । (12)
श्येनाय त्वा सोममृते६-(8)
-ग्नये त्वा रायस्पोषदे ॥ (8)
(8 + 8 + 12 + 8 + 8 = 44)
-Yv. VI. 32

Pañcapād madhye jyotih tristup - 8 + 8 + 11 + 8 + 8 = 43 syllabes. This is also five-footed tristup metre. The traistubha pada (of 11 syllables) is in the middle, with two gayatra padas each on either side.

बृहद्भिराने अधिभिः (8) शुक्रेण देव शोविण (8) भरह्याजे समिधानो यिष्ठ्य (11) रेवन्नः शुक्र दीदिष्ठि (8) धुमत्पावक दीदिष्ठि ॥ (8)

-Rv. IV. 48.7

Four-footed Arşī Tristup Metres- Now we shall give normal tristup (tristubh) metres:

1. Tristup- 11 + 11 + 11 + 11 = 44 syllables.

तनूपाडजग्नेडिस तन्त्रं मे पाह्य -(11) युर्दाडजग्नेडिस्यायुर्मे देहि वर्च्ची- (11) दाडअग्नेडिस वर्घ्ची मे देहि। अग्ने (11) वन्मे तन्वाडऊने तन्मडआपृण॥ (11)

-Yv. III. 17

2. Nicrt tristup - 44 - 1 = 43 syllables i.e. one syllable less than usual.

या ते धामानि हिवषा यजन्ति (11) ता ते विश्वा परिमूरस्तु यक्तम् (11) गयस्फानः प्रतरणः सुवीरो६- (11) वीरहा प्रचरा सोम दुर्व्यान् ॥ (10) (11+11+11+10=43 syilables) —Yv. IV. 37

3. Bhurik Tristup - 44 + 1 = 45 syllables (one more syllable than usual).

अयमिष्ठ प्रथमो धाय धाट्ट-(11) भिष्ठौता यजिष्ठोऽजध्यरेध्यीस्यः। (11) यमप्नवानो भृगवो विरुठपु- (12) वनिषु चित्रं विष्यं विशे ॥ (11) (11 + 11 + 12 + 11 = 45) Yv. II. 15

4. Virāt tristup - 44 - 2 = 42 syllables i.e. two syllables less than usual.

उभा वामिन्द्राग्नी 6 आहुवध्या ६ (10)
उभा राधसः सह मादयध्ये । (11)
उभा दाताराविषा छ्रयीणा- (10)
मुभा वाजस्य सातये हुवे वाम् ॥ (11)
(10 + 11 + 10 + 11 = 42) —Yv. III. 13

5. Svarāt tristup - 44 + 2 = 46 syllables i.e. two syllables more than usual.

षाता रातिः सवितेदं जुषन्तां (11)
प्रजापतिर्निधिपा देवोऽअग्निः। (11)
त्वच्टा विष्णुः प्रजया सर्राणा (11)
यजमानाय द्रविणं दघात स्वाहा ॥ (13)
(11 + 11 + 11 + 13 = 46)

(Normally this verse, as the other two verses VIII. 20 and VIII. 62 must have been pure and simple tristup (11 x 4=44 syllables), the ending Svāhā (the common ending when an āhuti is given after reciting a mantra, svāhoccāra). has made them svarāt.

An illustration of normal svarāt tristup, is the following:

नामा पृथिव्याः सिमधाने 6 अग्नी (11)
रायस्थोषाय बृहते हवामहे । (12)
इरम्मदं बृहदुक्वं यजत्रं (11)
जेतारमिन पृतनासु सासहिम् (12)
(11 + 12 + 11 + 12 = 46)
—Yv. XI. 76

Jagati Metres

Along with the five-footed jyotismatī tristups, we have given an account of the five-footed jyotismatī jagatī.

1. Arsī jagalī or jagalī - 48 syllables.

स त्वमग्ने सूर्यस्य वर्ष्वतागयाः (12)
समृषीणाश्चस्तुतेन (7)
सं प्रियेण बाम्ना सर्महमायुषा सं वर्ष्वता (15)
सं प्रजया सर्पायब्येषेण ग्मिषीय ॥ (13)
(12 + 7 + 16 + 13 = 48) — Yv. III. 19

2. Nicrd-Jagafi - 48 - 1 = 47. i.e. one syllable less than usual.

अदित्य रात्नासि विष्णोर्वेष्योत्पूर्जे (12)
त्वाऽदच्येन त्वा चश्चपायमस्याभि । (12)
अग्नेजिङ्कासि सुहूर्देवेम्यो धाम्ने (12)
धाम्ने मे मव यजुषे रजुषे ॥ (11)
(12 + 12 + 12 + 11 = 47) —Yv. I. 30

3. Bhurik jagatī - 48 + 1 = 49, i.e. one syllable more than usual.

वसोः पवित्रमिस शतथारं (11)
वसोः पवित्रमिस सहस्रथारम् । (12)
देवस्त्वा सिता पुनातु वसोः (11)
पवित्रेण शतथारेण सुप्या कामयुक्तः (15)
(11 + 12 + 11 + 15 = 49) —Yv. I.3

4. Virat jagati - 48 - 2 = 46 syllables, i.e. two syllables less than usual.

मनो जूतिर्जुषतामाज्यस्य बृहस्पति - (14)
र्यक्रमिमं तनोत्वरिष्टं यद्ग ्समिमं दधातु । (17)
विश्वे देवासः इह मादयन्तामो३ म्प्रतिष्ठ ॥ (15)
(14 + 17 + 15 = 46)

5. Svarāt jagatī - 48 + 2 = 50, i.e. two syllables more than usual.

मूताय त्वा नारातये स्वरमिविख्येषं (14)

इ्र*्डन्तां दुर्याः पृथिव्यामुर्वन्तारिक्षमन्वेगि । (16)

पृथिव्यास्त्वा नामौ सादयाम्य-(10)

दित्याङउपस्येङानेहव्य ्रक्ष ॥(10)

(14 + 16 + 10 + 10 = 50) — Yv. I.11

6. Madhye jyotih jagatī - 12 + 12 + 8 + 12 or 12 + 8 + 12 + 12 = 44. This is a four-footed metre, with the first and the last pādas as jāgata (of 12 syllables), and one gāyatra pāda and one jāgata pāda in the middle.

रेवेत्काण्वस्य बोयतम् (8) बृहस्पति विश्वान्देवाँ अहं हुव (12) इन्द्राविष्णू अश्विनावाशुहेपसा ॥ (12) (12 + 8 + 12 + 12 = 44)

-Rv. VII. 10.2

Special Types of Metre

Pingala gives an account of four special types of metres:

( i) Sankumalī-एकस्मिन् पञ्चके छन्दः शंकुमती (III. 55).

(ii) Kakudmatī-षट्के ककुद्मती (III. 56).

(iii) Pipīlikamadhyā-त्रिपादणिष्ठमध्या पिपीलिकमध्या (III. 57).

(iv) Yavamadhyā-विषरीता यवमध्या (the reverse of Pipīlika - madhyā (III. 58).

- 1. Sankumati-5+6+6+6=23 syllables. Of the four pādas, any one of them is of 5 syllables, and all the other three of six syllables each, then it is śankumatī gāyatrī. Similarly for other metres; if any pāda is of five syllables, and the rest following usual rule, the metre is 'śankumatī pankti', 'śankumatī bṛhatī' etc.
- 2. Kakudmatī (or Kakumatī)- In this type, any one pāda should be of six syllables, and the rest of the pādas following the usual rules of the metre.
- 3. Pipīlikamadhyā All the metres of three pādas, having the middle pāda unusually a short one (the shortest) the metre is called pipīlikamadhyā. For example,

नृभिर्येमानो हर्यतो (8) विचक्षणो (4) राजा देवः समुद्रियः (8) (8 + 4 + 8 = 20). -Rv. IX. 107.16

4. Yavamadhyā- It is the reverse of pipīlikamadhyā, i.e. middle pāda of the three should be the longest. For example,

सुदेवः समहासीत (8) सुवीरो नरो महतः स मर्त्यः (11) यं त्रायध्यं स्याम ते । (7) (8 + 11 + 7 = 26) - Rv. V. 53.15

Long Metres from Atijagatī to Utkṛti

In the Chandah Sastra of Pingala, we have the following sutras in the Fourth Chapter.

1. चतुःशतमुत्कृतिः (IV. 1)

The utkrti metre has 104 syllables.

2. चत्रश्चत्रस्त्यजेदुत्कृतेः (IV. 2).

By decreasing the above number 104 of syllables each time by four, we get the succeeding metres.

104 - 4 = 100; 100 - 4 = 96; 96 - 4 = 92 and so on.

3. तान्यभितंव्याङ्ग्रेभ्यः कृतिः (अभि, सम्, वि, आस्, प्र (IV. 3).

4. प्रकृत्या चोपसर्गवर्जितः (IV. 4).

The metres thus formed in the series would be named by the use of prefixes (i) अपि (ii) सम् (iii) वि (iv) आह (v) प्र to the root-term and (vi) finally kṛṭi itself. (without the prefix).

उत्कृतिः - 104, अभिकृतिः - 100, संकृतिः - 96, आकृतिः - 88, प्रकृतिः - 84, कृतिः 80.

(Utkrti, abhikrti, sankrti, vikrti, ākrti, prakrti, and krti).

5. पृत्यस्थिशक्वरीजगत्यः (IV. 5). Then follow the four sets of मृति, अस्टि, शक्वरी and जगती, each a set of two: (1) atidhṛti (76) and dhṛti (72); (ii) ati-aṣṭi (68) and aṣṭi (64); (iii) ati-śakvarī (60) and sakvarī (56); (iv) atijagatī (52) and jagatī (48).

Thus from gayatri (24) to Utkrti (104), we have 21 classes of metres (7 + 7 + 7) in three groups i.e. three types.

Type I	Type II	Type III
Gāyatrī - 24	Ati-jagatī - 52	Kṛti - 80
Usnik - 28	Sakvarī - 56	Prakrti - 84
Anustup - 32	Ati-śakvarī - 60	Āķṛti - 88
Brhatī - 36	Asti - 64	Vikrti - 92
Pańkti - 40	Ati-asti - 68	Sańkrti - 96
Tristup - 44	Dhrti - 72	Abhikrti - 100
Jagatī - 48	Ati-dhṛti - 76	Utkrti - 104

Let N be the prescribed number of syllables.

N - 1 gives the corresponding nicrt.

N + 1 gives the corresponding bhurik.

N - 2 gives the corresponding virat.

N + 2 gives the corresponding svarāt.

Illustrations

(i) Here we have a Rk verse, I. 133.6:

अवर्मह इन्द्र दाट्टिह श्र्यी नः शुशोच हि। (16)

द्योः क्षा न भीषाँ अद्रिवोघृणान्न भीषाँ अद्रिवः। (16)

शुष्टिमत्तमो हि शुष्टिमिर्विषेठग्रेमिरीयसे । (16)

अपूरुपघ्नो अप्रतीत शूर सन्त्विभित्रिसपौः शूर सत्विभः। (22)

(16 + 16 + 16 + 22 = 70)

This metre may be called virāt dhṛti (72 - 2 = 70), or virāt brāhmī jagalī, or svarāt-atyaṣṭi (68 + 2 = 70).

(ii) अदम्यः स्वाहा दार्घ्यः स्वाहोदकाय स्वाहा । (13)

तिष्ठन्तीभ्यः स्वाहा स्रवन्तीभ्यः स्वाहा स्थन्दमानाभ्यः स्वाहा । (19)

कूप्याच्यः स्वाहा सृद्याच्यः स्वाहा धार्याच्यः स्वाहा - (15)

र्णवाय स्वाहा समुद्राय स्वाहा सरिराय स्वाहा ॥ (17) (13 + 19 + 15 + 17 = 64)

(Yv. XXII. 25)

This is asti metre.

(iii) वाताय स्वाहा यूमाय स्वाहामाय स्वाहा मेघाय स्वाहा (19)

विद्योतमानाय स्वाहा स्तनयते स्वाहावस्फूजते स्वाहा (20)

वर्षते स्वाहाववर्षते स्वाहोगं वर्षते स्वाहा (17)

शीधं वर्षते स्वाहोद्गृह्णते स्वाहोद्गृहीताय स्वाहा (18)

पुष्णते स्वाहा शीकायते स्वाहा पुष्वाप्यः स्वाहा (16)

हादुनीभ्यः स्वाहा नीहाराय स्वाहा। (12)

(19 + 20 + 17 + 18 + 16 + 12 = 102) -Yv. XXII. 26

Since abhikṛti has hundred (100) syllables, the present mantra is  $svar\bar{a}d$  abhikṛti (100 + 2 = 102).

Long metres broken into fragments

Old commentators on the Sukla Yajurveda, like Uvata and Mahīdhara are not particular in assigning the names of metres to each and every kandikā (commonly known as mantra). These kandikās are not necessarily verses or chandas as we have in the Rgveda or even the Samaveda. Strictly speaking, they are not even prose. They belong to a category, quite different from others — they may be specifically called Yajus (yajumṣi). So often, they are appended to a verse also, and frequently they freely make use of verses, so common with the verses of the Rgveda.

The very first mantra of the Yajurveda has 80 syllables, with its own characteristic texture. We could have assigned the term Kṛti to this metre on the basis of the number of syllables. Dayānanda, however, prefers to break up the text into two fragments, the first one of which becomes svarāṭ bṛhatī (38 syllables), and the second one as brhāmī-uṣṇik (42).

I. इषे त्वोर्जे त्वा वायवस्य (9) देवो वः सविता प्रार्थयतु (10) श्रेष्ठतमाय कर्मण्ड (8) आप्यायध्वमध्न्याङ्ग्द्राय भागम् । (11) (9 + 10 + 8 + 11 = 38 - svarāṭ bṛhatī).

II. प्रजावतीरनमीवाङअयक्ष्मा (11) मा व स्तेन्ड ईशत माधश ्सो (11) धुवाङअस्मिन् गोपतौ स्यात (9) बह्मीर्यजमानस्य पश्नून पाष्टि ॥ (11) (11 + 11 + 9 + 11 = 42 brāhmī-uṣṇik)

Here is another illustration, where Dayānanda breaks up even a short verse into two fragments (Yv. IV. 28).

I. परि माग्ने दुश्वरिताद् (8) बायस्वा मा सुचरिते भज (10) (8 + 10 = 18 -sāmnī-bṛhatī). II. उदायुषा स्वायुषो (7) दस्याममृताँ २ ६ अनु ॥ (7) (7 + 7 = 14 - sāmnī-uṣṇik).

Sometimes, a very long text has been broken up into four fragments (Yv. VII.47).

I. अग्नये त्वा महां वरुणो ददातु (12) सोडमृतत्वमशीयायुर्दात्र ६ (19) एपि मयो महां प्रतिग्रहीत्रे। (11) (12 + 10 + 11 = 33, (Bhurik-Prājāpatya Jagatī) II. रुद्राय त्वा महां वरुणो ददातु (12) सोऽमृतत्वगशीय प्राणो दात्रङ (11) एथि वयो मह्यं प्रतिग्रहीत्रे। (11)

एषि वया महा प्रतिग्रहीत्र । (11)

(12 + 11 + 11 = 34, Svarad - Pra japatya-Jagati)

III. बृहस्पतये त्वा मह्यं वरुणो ददातु (14)

सोडमृतत्वमशीय त्वग् दात्र ड (10)

एचि मथो महां प्रतिग्रहीत्रे। (11)

(14 + 10 + 11 = 35 - nicrd-arci-jagati)

IV. यमाय त्वा महां वरुणी ददातु (12)

सोडमृतत्वमशीय हवो दात्र 5 (11)

एपि वयो महां प्रतिग्रहीत्रे ॥ (11)

(12 + 11 + 11 = 34 - virad arcī jagatī)

There is an anomaly in regards to the verse XXXII.2, and XXXII.3.

Vedic Text

सर्वे निमेषा जितरे (8)

न तस्य प्रतिमाङ्जस्ति यस्य नाम महद्यशः॥ (16)

(8 + 8 + 8 + 8 = 32 - Anustup) Svetašvatra, IV. 19

In fact हिरण्यगर्म, मा मा हिसी, and यस्मान्न जातः are the Pratikas (the initial words) of the mantras which are to be repeated or recited after the text (an instruction in the Karma Kanda).

हिरण्यगर्म。 -XIII.4; XXIII.1; XXV.10

मा मा ष्रिष्ठंतीः • -XII. 102

यस्मान्न जातः - VIII.36

The pralikas are similarly quoted along with several other verses in the Yajurveda, but they are not considered as a part of the verse in deciding the metre:

Nicrd-gāyatrī -आसुते सिञ्चतः —XXXIII.21 Pratika: तं प्रत्नया; अयं वेनः "Virāṭ-triṣtup -कुतस्वमिन्द्रः —XXXIII. 27 —Pratika : महां ६ इन्द्रो य ६ औमसा (VII. 40); कदाचन स्तरीरिंसः VIII.2; कदाचन प्रयुक्तिसः (VIII. 3).

OUR TRANSLATION

The translation of the Sukla Yajurveda, of the reputed school of the Vajasaneyins was included in our project of translating the four Vedic Samhitas, the Rk, the Yajuh, the Sama and the Atharva, and as soon as we had almost completed our translation of the Rgveda, we took up this venture also. In the first volume of the Rgveda, which has been published by the Veda Pratishthana, we have given an extensive introduction outlining the details of the Vedic Studies. The present work on the Yajurveda has also been taken up on the same lines, with some basic differences. While the Rgveda for most of the part (rather the whole of it) runs through well-characterised Vedic meters, the Yajurveda has the text for the major part in the form of yajūmsi (the yajus), or "the sacrificial formulae" - a very inappropriate English rendering of the term yajuh. The yajuhs include the first prose given to man; they are neither the aphorisms developed in the Sūtra age of the vedāngas and the upāngas, nor the symbolic formulas of our mathematics and physical sciences. The vinivoga associated with them in the context of sacrifices is also of much later date, when the ritual-yajñas became very common. The original purpose of the literary form could in no case have been so narrow or insignificant. The yajuhs form a vital part of the linguistic expression, the Divine Speech, vak or Voice, with which man alone has been blessed. The Atharvaveda has also the yajuhs in its Samhitā. These vajuhs enrich man's vocabulary in a simple and concise style - the vocabulary which later on became a basis of systematic disciplines of study. Through these vaiuhs, the earliest concept of lexiconography was given to man, and as the culture grew, the man enriched the stock of his vocabulary also. Giving names to the surrounding objects, coining different words from a common root, enriching terminology with the help of prefixes and suffixes, the concept of numerals, and modified terms derived from the basic numbers—these are the features of the vajuhs. The Yajurveda texts can very well be enjoyed and appreciated if looked from this angle.

The Yajurveda has several sarvānukramaņīs which give the traditional rṣis, devatās, and metres (wherever possible). These anukramaṇīs* are quite valuable and helpful, they are not very old. For a general discussion, on metres, rṣis and accents on the Vedic texts, reader may be referred to my Chapters in the Volume I of the Rgveda.

As regards to the present translation of ours, I may add a few simple notes.

(i) We have tried to take help from the several translations available in Sanskrit, Hindi and English languages, and occasionally from the Satapatha Brāhmana and the Śrauta Sūtras.

(ii) We have translated the texts, independent of the viniyogas, traditionally assigned to the mantras. The viniyogas are the later impositions on the text. For example, the particular chapter used for the performance of the Vajapeya Yajña has no indications of the performance of this yajña—but since the word vājam occured at a number of places, the traditionalists used this chapter for the performance of this sacrifice.

The viniyogas are known as rūpa samṛddha (क्ष्मसूद), where the text directly or appropriately refers to the performance or the ritualistic detail; most of the viniyogas are, however, inappropriate; the relevancy is only in reference to one or two words occurring in the text— a far-fetched relevancy. Whenever a scripture is utilized for a ritual (oriental, or occidental or semetic ritual), the viniyogas are always of this nature. Every day, our growing society is introducing new viniyogas for such purposes. A few striking viniyogas from the Yajurveda are given below:

- (a) मद्र कर्णीमः मुज्याम देवाः (Yv. XXV.21)
- (May we hear good, not evil, with ears) used for earring ceremony of a child on account of the word karna (ear) occurring in the text.
- (b) शन्नो देवीरिमिष्टय आपी मवन्तु पीतये (Yv. XXXVI.12) for the ācamana, or water-sipping purposes at the start of a ritual, since the word āpah may also mean water.
- (c) मस्मान्तं शरीरम्. (The body finally returns to dust) for the cremation ceremony (Yv. XL.15).
- (d) तद्यसुर्देविहतम् (The rising sun is the cosmic eye) in the marriage ceremony. (Yv. XXXVI.24)
- (e) अन्नपते इन्नस्य नो देहि (O Lord of food, give us nourishment,) (Yv. XI.83), recited when the baby is first fed with food at the anna-prāsana ceremony, or as a text of grace at the start of a dinner.
- (f) ঘা: মালি: (Yv. XXXVI.17)—at the conclusion of any assembly; this is a new innovation known as sānti-pāṭha.
- (g) आ ब्रह्मन् बाह्मणो ब्रह्मवर्धसी जायतामाराष्ट्रे (Yv. XXII.22) as a National Anthem.

On account of our reverential attitude towards our sacred texts, we shall always discover new viniyogas, for each sacred ritual, as an appropriate text for graceful repetition.

Since the text of the samhitā was not particularly handed down to us for these rituals, we have totally avoided a reference to these viniyogas in our translation; each verse or yajuh is to be taken on its own merit.

It is not that only the Yajuh Samhitā was used as a text of Karmakāṇḍa, the texts of the Rk and the Atharva were also used for similar purposes by different Vedic schools. Sāyaṇa, Mahīdhara and other scholiasts have laid particular emphasis on these viniyogas. Dayānanda has been the first pioneer in this direction to show, that the texts should be studied on their merits, exclusive of the traditional viniyogas. Aurobindo supported him in his venture of introducing the Vedas for their secret and sacred meanings.

(iii) It has been accepted by all oriental authorities that a good part of the Vedic verses are capable of being interpreted in multiple parameters. This presents a particular difficulty to the translators of the Vedic verses. Sometimes implicitly and so often explicitly, a verse may be interpreted on a physical plane and a metaphysical plane. Thus a verse may have an adhvatma meaning or the spiritual sense, an interpretation in relation to sense-organs, i.e. adhi-deva meaning, an interpretation, in respect to Nature's dominant forces, a social interpretation, samāja-paksa, including defence and administration (rājya-nītī-paksa); and teaching and administration (sikṣā-pakṣa), trade, technology and business (kalāpaksa and silpa-paksa); and then itihasa-paksa (the story of creation, srsti-paksa or the eternal natural history, śāśvata-itihasa). According to Dayananda, the Veda does not give an account of traditions, human history or mythology. In our translation also, we have closely followed this concept. Of course, the Veda has created history; it has given rise to the Vedic and even antivedic concepts both (as in Zoroastrian theology and Greek mythology, and the Middle-East concepts), but the Vedic verses in their content are free from such human history and mythology. Sayana, Mahidhara and other scholiasts perhaps maintained the same views, but in their translations, they could not do justice to this Vedic concept, and occasionally they refer to the traditional mythology.

Introduction 207

- (iv) The modern Vedic scholars, particularly from the West, have taken a keen interest in our literature but from another angle. They have immensely worked on comparative philology, anthropology, social history and archaeology, and have drawn peculiar conclusions. Their studies are alluring and their findings astonishing. Aurobindo has extensively written on this subject. Unfortunately, these scholars have not been able to appreciate the spirit in which the Vedas were studied and held supreme so far. There is no coherency in the Western findings, and having taken a few words or phrases from here and there, they have raised an imaginative structure with shaky foundations. The scholars of their own schools and methodology would repudiate their claims.
- (v) The entire text of the Yajurveda is divided into forty Chapters (adhyāyas) and each chapter has a number of kaṇḍikās. These kaṇḍikās at number of places are divided into mantras. We have maintained this division of kaṇḍikās into mantras in our translation. Śrīpāda Damodar Satavalekar, in his text of the Yajurveda has given this classification and we have followed this. In our prose order (anvaya), we have not confused or mingled one mantra with the other in the same kaṇḍikā. This has been our speciality in this translation.

- (vi) Usually, a Sanskrit or the Vedic term has three categories of meanings. First, based on etymology of the word; a noun has to be derived from some verb (ākhvāta); this is the yaugika (योगिक) mode of interpretation. This has been the speciality of the Nirukta school of Yaska, and has been closely followed by Dayananda. In the course of time, the yaugika terms became yoga-rūdhi (योगलिंड); they, in usage, became the terms of restricted plasticity. The third category is of the rūdhi (লাভ) terms where the term has only a restricted sense. The more the meaning of a term is yaugika (etymological), it is nearer the Vedic sense. The aitihasikas or the traditionalists occasionally adhere to this last mode of interpretation. In our translation, we have followed the Nairuktas. basing their interpretation on etymological derivations (taking the terms to be yaugika and yoga-rudhi). Thus we do not restrict the Vedic words to the rūdhi school. The Yajurveda deals with activity in general, and we believe, that originally, the words were not meant for the karma-kanda viniyogas i.e. for the performance of rituals. We do not thus subscribe to the school of Mahīdhara and Uvata.
- (vii) In very special cases, we have in our translation given the untranslated Vedic terms, particularly where the text stresses it, or has some speciality or significance. We shall illustrate this by giving some examples.
  - (a) May the mother earth bless me. I am fire, being the kindler of fire; Svāhā (II.10) (Here the Vedic term Svāhā is retained), but when the same term occurs in the middle of a mantra, the word has been translated.

(b) O earth, I surround you with the Gayatrī metre; I encompass you with the Tristubha metre. (I.27)

(c) May the fire whose name is non-shining (nabhas) know it. (V.9)
O glowing fire, who are on the earth, come with your name as alive (āyu) (V.9).

(d) You have been duly accepted (अपवासमूर्गाणों इसि). I take you for the month of Madhu (Caitra).
You have been duly accepted; I take you for the month of Mādhava (Vaišākha). (VII.30)

Here Madhu, Madhava, Sukra, Suci, Nabhas, Nabhasya, Isa, Urja, Sahas, Sahasya, Tapas, Tapasya, and amhasaspati are the names of the twelve months, (now known by the names Caitra, Vaisākha, Jyestha, Āsadha, Śrāvana, Bhādrapada, Aśvina, Kārtika, Mārgasīrsa, Pausa, Māgha and Phalguna, and the intercalary month, the thirteenth (names on the basis of constellations). Etymologically the word Madhu stands for sweet; Madhava means one pertaining to sweet; Sukra means dry, shining or bright and Suci means pertaining to dry or shining, and, hence sanctity; Nabhas means "not visible"; Nabhasya pertaining to "sun not visible", firmament. Isa means food and Ūrjā energy. Sahas means tolerance or forbearance; Sahasya pertaining to tolerance. Tapas means austerity: Tapasya means pertaining to austerity. Amhas means sin, and amhasaspati means lord of sin, and thus the evil-month or intercalary month.*

(e) Accentuate the praise-song (stoma) with Rk verses, rathantara with Gāyatrī metre and the brhat-sāman that runs similar to Gāyatrī. (X1.8).

मधु प्रमुखमत्रं वसन्ते उत्पद्यते इति मधु-माधवौ मासौ । शुक्राय शुचये गैष्मौ मासौ । उभाविप शोचतेः शुष्यत्यर्थस्य । नमसे नमस्याय वार्षिकौ मासौ । नहात्र सूर्यो भाति मेघप्रचुरत्वात्; तस्मात्रभो नभस्यश्च । इपे-ऊर्जे शारदौ मासौ । इपमत्रमूर्जं तदुपसेचनं दथ्यादि तदिह प्रचुरं भवित इति मतुब् लोपादभेदोपचारात् हो मासावुच्यते । सहसे सहस्याय हैमन्तिकौ मासौ । सहतेः प्रसहनार्थस्य । अभिभवित ह्यसौ शीतेन । तपसे तपस्याय शैशिरौ मासौ । एतयोहिं बलिप्ट तपति सूर्यः । अध्हत्सस्यत्ये त्रयोदशो मासः । अहः पापं तस्य पतिः । अयं च हादशस्विप पतित । (Uvaţa on Yv. VII.30)

Dayananda translates rea, by the Rgveda, rathantaram as "excellent chariot". (ऋचा) ऋग्वेदेन (स्तोम) स्तूयते यस्तम् (सम् अर्धय । (गायत्रेण) गायत्री प्रमृति छन्दतैव (रघन्तरं) रथैः रमणीयैर्यानैस्तरन्ति येन तत् (गायत्रवर्त्तीन) गायत्रस्य वर्तीनर्भागो वर्तन यिस्मन् गत् (शृहत्) महत् ।

For various Samans, see also XII.4. We have retained the terms as gāyatra, rathantara, stoma, vāmadeva and yajnāyajniyam. For metres and sāmans, see also XIII. 53-58, where technical terms have been retained in our translation.

(viii) The Yajurveda text refers to a large number of devatās, sometimes explicitly and often implicitly, particularly when collation or parallelism (the samhitā tarka) is implied. A list of the devatās is appended here from Adhyāya XXIV as an illustration.

Deities, Devatas and the Terms of Abstract Connotations

Whosoever goes through the texts of the Yajurveda is confronted with the difficulties of certain terms of most general usage and most common occurrence. They are like the a, b, c,..., or x, y, z terms of algebraic notations, standing for a variety of features, ranging from very concrete ideas and terminating into fine abstract concepts. Such terms are known as devas, devatās ( deities and gods), of the cosmic realm, some belonging to the terrestrial region (प्रियवी), some to the middle region (अन्तरिषा) and some to the celestial region (बी): some representing man's own physical body (अन्नमय), some the vital body (प्राणमय), some the mental region (मनोमय) and some the spiritual region (विज्ञानमय and आनन्दमय). Even Nature's bounties like fire, air, wind, cloud-bearing winds, lightning are also represented by the same terms. Simultaneously, they may refer to our Supreme Lord's attributes, nature and functions. The same terms may refer to the principle office-holders in an organized society, or the departments of a state. Again on the mystic side, the same represents our strata of consciousness and the channels of our spiritual activity. We have discussed some of these details in our introduction to the translation of the Rgveda (Vol.I), in the light of the interpretations given by Dayananda, Aurobindo and our other thinkers of the present age, drawing inspiration from the work of Yaska as outlined in his Nirukta. The yajūmsi abound in such terms, as is seen from the texts of Chapter XXIV, a chapter dealing with the fauna (wild life, marine creatures, animals, insects, pets and cattle).

39. Aditya, Mati, Aranya, Rudra, Vajin, Kama.

40. Viśvedevāh, Rakṣas, Indra, Marut, Saravya, Viśvedevāh.

The entire chapter XXIV of the Yajurveda gives a long list of over 90 deities or devatās, which have been invoked along with animals — wild and domesticated, including worms and insects. Some of these devatās are very often referred to repeatedly in all the four Vedic Samhitās, e.g. Agni, Aditi, Āditya, Aśvins, Bṛhaspati, Dhātṛ, Indra, Marut, Mitra, Mṛtyu, Nirṛti, Prajāpati, Puṣan, Rudra, Sarasvatī, Savitṛ, Soma, Tvaṣṭṛ, Varuṇa, Vasu, Viśvedevāḥ, Vanaspati, Viṣṇu and Yama. They represent on one hand Nature's Bounties, on the other hand, they become the names of the Lord Supreme, or the attributes of the Lord. In social contexts, they represent the various offices and the presiding officers of a constituted organization.

In addition to these deities, in some of the verses the six names of seasons have been invoked like Vasanta (spring), Grīṣma (summer), Varṣā (rains) Śarad (autumn), Hemanta (winter, dewy) and Śiśira (the chilly winters). In certain verses, we have the invocations to the names of seven or more metres; Gāyatrī, Uṣṇik, Anuṣṭup, Bṛhatī, Parikti, Triṣṭup, and Jagatī, and also the metres, Virāj, Kakubha, and Aticchandas. Sometimes, regions or bodies ranging from terrestrial to celestial are invoked, Bhūmi (earth), Antarikṣa (midspace), Dyau (celestial region), Vidyut (lightning) and Tāraka (stars).

To work out the rationale of associating particular cattle to the assigned devatās is extremely difficult task, Dayānanda merely suggests that one should seek out the parallelism in the attributes of the animals and the deities assigned.

Rk-Yajuh Concordance

A large number of verses in the Yajurveda have very much in common with the verses of the Rgveda, sometimes with verbal alterations, at other times with considerable variations. Verses from Books I and X of the Rgveda show this concordance very much.

CHAPTER ONE

1. We invoke you O Lord, for food.(1)

We invoke you for vigour.(2)

You are the vital breaths.(3)

May the creator Lord depute you, O sacrificers, to the noblest accomplishments.

O cows, may you flourish with the blessings of the resplendent Lord.

May you be free from disease and consumption and bear good progeny.

May no thief nor a slaughterer be in possession of you.

May you permanently multiply in large numbers in the house of the master of cattle.(4)

O Lord, preserve the cattle of the sacrificer.(5)

2. You are the purifier of riches.(1) You are heaven; earth you are as well.(2) You are the warmth of the wind. You are the sustainer of the world. Remain firm in your supreme abode. Don't you forsake, nor may the sacrificer forsake you.(3)

CHAPTER THREE

- T. Kindle the fire with dried wood and arouse the newcomer (i.e. the fire) with clarified butter. Then place your offerings on it.(1)
- 2. Offer hot and purified butter to the well-kindled shining omnipresent fire divine.(1)
- 3. O brilliant and most youthful blazing fire, we augment you with dried faggots and melted butter.(1)
- 4. O fire, let my faggots covered with offerings and dripping melted butter go to you. Accept them with favour.(1)
- 5. O being,(1) becoming(2) and bliss(3)! Vast as sky and extending as earth! O earth, seat of sacrifice for Nature's bounties, on your back I place the food-consuming fire, so that we may gain foodgrains.(4)
- 6. This fire, having strange-coloured flames, moves. He sits down before the mother (earth; in the form of domestic fire) and goes to the father, the sky as well (in the form of the sun).(1)

- 26. O most bright and resplendent adorable Lord, we earnestly solicit you for the happiness of ourselves and our friends. So please do understand us, and hear our invocation; may you keep us far from malevolent people.(1)
- 27. Come O divine wisdom, come O eternal life.(1) Come O all the desirable objects. May I obtain my heart's desire from you.(2)
- 28. O Lord, the preceptor, please make the seeker illustrious, who offers devotions to you, and make him talented too, just as those who specialize in creative activity.(1)
- 29. May He, who is opulent, the healer of the week-minded, and acquirer of riches, augmenter of nourishment, the prompt bestower of rewards, be favourable to us.(1)
- 30. Protect us, O all-wise God, so that no cruel censure of a malevolent creature may reach us.(1)
- 31. May we have great, wealth-giving and unassailable protection from the three, the sun, the wind and the waters.(1)
- 32. Over such people, may the sinful enemy never have sway either at their homes or on dangerous highways.(1)
- 33. They, the sons of Eternity, provide continuous light to mortal man, so that he may live long.(1)

- 45. Whatever sin we commit either in village or in the wild, whether in assembly or in privacy or with our bodies, we expiate ourselves from it by performing this sacrifice.
- 46. O resplendent illustrious leader, associated with your brave comrades, abandon us not in the grim struggle of life which confronts us at every step. For O mighty one, the bestower of blessings and kind accepter of our oblations, whilst we have the greatest regard for you, we have no less regard for your brave associates also, and we have all praise for them too.(1)
- 47. Experts have performed their work with delightsome voice. Having completed your work for Nature's bounties, all you friends, depart for your several homes. (1)

CHAPTER FOUR

1. We have arrived from all around at this place of the earth where sacrifices for the bounties of Nature are performed and where all the enlightened ones delight. Crossing over with the help of the hymns of knowledge (Rks), devotional songs (Sāmans) and sacred actions (Yajus) may we be pleased with food and abundant riches, and rejoice.(1)

May these divine waters be well for me.(2)

O medicinal herb, save him.(3)

O knife (of the surgeon) may you not injure him.(4)

2. May waters, the mothers of all, cleanse us.

May the purifiers of butter purify us with melted butter. These divine waters carry off all the dirt of sins. Purified with these all around, I rise up clean and pure.(1)

O Lord, you are the embodiment of consecration and penance. You the gracious and pleasing, I adopt and put on a nice appearance.(2)

3. O waters, you are the milk of the earth, bestower of lustre; bestow lustre on me.(1)

You are the pupil of the cloud's eye, bestower of good vision; bestow vision on me.(2)

 May the Lord of speech purify me.(2)

May the Creator God purify me with holeless strainer of sun's rays. O Lord of purification, purified with purity itself, may I be able to achieve my heart's desire with which I purify myself.(3)

- 5. O bounties of Nature, with this sacrifice, as it proceeds, we beg you for all round wealth. We invoke you, O bounties of Nature, for your blessings, the fruits of the sacrifice.(1)
- 6. To the sacrifice, I dedicate with mind.<sub>(1)</sub>

10. You, soft as wool, are the vigour of the austere. Bestow vigour on me.(1)

You are the girdle of the blissful Lord.(2)

You are the shelter of the sacrifice. Give shelter to the sacrificer.(3)

You are the origin of rain.(4)

Make our agriculture yielding abundant grains.(5)

Grow up, O plant, and spread. Protect me from evil till the last hymn of this sacrifice.(6)

11. Take the sacred vow. The fire is the supreme Divine; the fire is the sacrifice; the sacrificial plant is the sacrifice.(1)

We beg for the divine intellect, bestower of happiness, bestower of lustre, accomplisher of sacrifice, so that our sacrifice may be accomplished. May that intellect, an easy aid to take us across, be in our control.(2)

May the divine faculties, born of mind, endowed with mind, and determined expert workers, guard us; may they protect us. Dedications to them.(3)

- 12. O waters, having been drunk, become pleasing and refreshing in our belly. May those divine waters, free from diseases and germs, and free from dirt, be of pleasant taste, bestowers of immortality and promoters of law.(1)
- 13. This is your sacrificial embodiment.(1)
  I release the water, but not the offspring. O freers from sin, consecrated by oblations, enter the earth.(2)
  Be united with the earth.(3)
- 14. O adorable Lord, keep well awake so that we may have a pleasant sleep. Guard us without negligence. Prepare us for waking up again.(1)

- 19. You are the apprehending faculty; you are the mind, you are the intellect; you are the skill incarnate; you are protector from injuries; you are deserving sacrifice; you are the eternity with heads on both the sides. Be pleasing to us while coming forward as well as on the return. May the friendly Lord detain you by holding your foot and may the nourisher Lord guard your pathway to the resplendent Lord, the Overseer.(1)
- 20. May the mother allow you; may the father, may the brother born of the same mother, and may the friend of the same clan allow you. O illuminating intellect, go to the Lord and fetch bliss for the aspirant. May the dreadful Lord enable you to return safely. Come back along with bliss.(1)

CHAPTER FIVE

1. You are the embodiment of the fire; I dedicate you to the Lord omnipresent.(1)

You are the embodiment of the moon (bliss); I dedicate

you to the Lord omnipresent.(2)

You are the hospitality offered to guests; I dedicate you to the Lord omnipresent.(3)

I dedicate you to the Lord omnipresent, who in the form of a hawk brings nectar (divine bliss). I dedicate you to the adorable Lord.<sub>(4)</sub>

I dedicate you to the Lord omnipresent, the bestower of riches and nourishment.(5)

- 2. You are the birth place of fire.(1)
  You two are the showerers.(2)
  One of you is the mother.(3)
  One of you is the child.(4)
  One of you is the father.(5)
  I rub you against each other with the gayatri metre.(6)
  I rub you against each other with the tristubh metre.(7)
  I rub you against each other with the jagati metre.(8)
- 3. Be both of you single-minded, single-hearted, free from sin. Do not cause injury to the sacrifice as well as the sacrificer. O omniscient ones, be gracious to us this day.(1)
- 4. The adorable Lord enters the fire and moves. He is the progeny of seers, and is protector from curses. May He, the bliss incarnate, fond of sacrifices, carry our oblations to Nature's bounties always alert and attentive. Svāhā.(1)

You are inviolate. You are the inviolable might of the bounties of Nature, free from evil, protector from evil, and never to be cursed. May I attain the truth by an easy way. Put me in a world of comfort.(2)

- 6. O fire divine, you are the protector of vows. Let your this form, which protects the vows, become mine, and let my this from, which I have got, be yours. O Lord of vows, let your and my vows proceed side by side. May the Lord of consecrations approve of my austerities.(1)
- 7. O divine bliss, may each and every part of yours flourish for the sake of the resplendent Lord, who is the only knower of real riches. May the resplendent Lord flourish for you; may you also flourish for the resplendent Lord. Make us, your friends, prosper with vigour and wisdom. May all be well with you. O blissful Lord, may I enjoy the delight flowing from you.(1)

I desire riches for the sake of sublimest wealth. May the people speaking truth arrive at the truth. We bow in obeisance to heaven and earth.(2)

CHAPTER SIX

1. At the impulsion of the creator God, I take you up with the arms of the healers and with the hands of the nourisher.(1)

You are a woman.(2)

Here I verily sever the necks of the wicked.(3)

You are the separator. Keep us away from malice. Keep us away from miseries.(4)

You for heaven; you for midspace; you for earth.(5) May the worlds, the abodes of the elders, be purified.(6)

You are the abode of the elders.(7)

2. You are the leader. You are a comfortable support for the senior leaders. Know this. He would stand superior to you.(1)

May the creator Lord enrich you with honey;(2)

Also with plants laden with nice fruit.(3)

May you touch the heaven with your topmost point; fill the mid-space with your middle; and steady the earth with your base.(4)

3. We long to approach those abodes of yours, where multihorned cows (multifarious rays) move. There the highest seat of the wide-striding omnipresent Lord glows profusely.(1)

I comprehend you as the granter of intellect, granter of valour and bestower of wealth and nourishment.(2)

Make the intellectuals flourish; make the warriors flourish; make the longevity flourish; make our offsprings flourish.(3)

- 5. The wise sages always behold the highest seat of the omnipresent Lord, laid in the sky like an eye.(1)
- 6. O worshipper, you are worthy of being surrounded. May the divine subjects surround you on all sides. May the riches of men surround this sacrificer on all sides.(1) You are the son of heaven.(2) This shelter of yours is on the earth. The wild animal belongs to you.(3)
- 7. You are the protector of approachers. The divine subjects approach the yearning bounties of Nature, which are best conveyers. O universal architect, enjoy the riches. May your oblations be delicious.(1)
- 8. Enjoy yourselves O rich with good money. Lord supreme, make our riches lasting.(1)
  O oblation for the bounties of Nature, I release you from the binding noose of enternal law. Bold be the man.(2)
- 9. At the impulsion of the creator God, with the arms of the healers and with the hands of the nourisher, I bind you, who are pleasing to the Lord adorable as well as the blissful.(1)

I dedicate you to the waters and to the plants. May your mother, your father, your brother born of the same mother, and your companion friend grant you permission. I sprinkle you, pleasing to the Lord adorable and blissful.(2)

I enhance you so that ocean may never wane.(2)
May the waters be united with waters and the plants with plants.(3)

- 29. O adorable Lord, that mortal, whom you protect in battles and whom you favour in struggles, gets the never-exhausting strength. Svāhā.(1)
- 30. At the impulsion of the creator God, I take you with the arms of the healers and with the hands of the nourisher.(1)

You are the great donor. Make this solems, sacrifice most pleasing to the resplendent Lord. With the finest speech make it full of vigour, full of honey and full of milk.(2)

You are the most acceptable and cared for by the enlightened ones. Grant me full satisfaction.(3)

- 31. May ali of you satisfy my mind; satisfy my speech; satisfy my breath; satisfy my vision; satisfy my hearing; satisfy my soul; satisfy my offsprings; satisfy my cattle; satisfy my followers. May my followers never be disaffected. (1)

CHAPTER SEVEN

1. O bliss divine, being purified by the rays of the sun, may you move for the sake of vital breath.(1)

Being yourself a bounty of Nature, go to other bounties part of whom you are.(2)

2. Make our foodgrains sweet.(1)

O blissful Lord, unconquerable and ever-alert is your name; to you as such, O bliss divine, to you, the blissful, I dedicate.(2)

I move along the vast midspace. Svaha.(3)

3. Assimilated you are with all the senses, divine and physical both. May the mind pervade you.  $Sv\bar{a}h\bar{a}$ . O nobly-born, you to the sun.(1)

You to the bounties of Nature, the enjoyers of the light

quanta.(2)

O bliss divine, may you truly become that for which I adore you. From the destruction coming from above, may that (evil to be named) perish.(3)

You to the out-breath; you to the diffused breath.(4)

4. You have been duly accepted. Contain our evils, O Lord of richness, guard the bliss. Protect our riches as well. Secure food from all around.(1)

CHAPTER EIGHT

1. O devotional bliss, you have been duly accepted.(1) I dedicate you to the suns.(2) O wide spread sacrifice, this bliss is for you. Keep it secure. May the evil forces not harm you.(3)

2. O resplendent Lord, you never injure a sacrificer. On the other hand, you favour him. O Lord of wealth, your divine donation to sacrifices always increases more and more.(1)

You to the suns.(2)

3. You are never negligent. You protect our both the lives (the present and the succeeding ones). O sun, this is your fourth (purest) impelling force, immortal, placed in heaven.(1)

You to the suns.(2)

4. The sacrifice is pleasing to the enlightened ones. O suns, be bestowers of joy to us. Towards us, may your favour be inclined. Be our best deliverer from the sin.(1)

You to the suns.(2)

- 13. At the impulsion of the creator God, who is the true inspirer, may I win the strength of the Lord Supreme, the winner of battles.(1) O speedy ones, winners of the battles, blocking the pathways and measuring miles, may you reach the regions.(2)
- 14. This speedy courser, bound at the neck and flanks and in the mouth, runs fast at the stroke of the whip. Overcoming the obstacles on the way, following the intentions of the rider, the horse (the morning sun) traverses the uneven paths to reach the destination quickly. Svahā.(1)
- 15. The trappings of this swiftly running courser (the morning sun), dashing like a hawk, traversing the path with vigour, follow him like feathers of a flying bird determined to reach its prey. Svāhā.(1)
- 16. May the speedy horses (of the sun) be for our comfort at our call. Moving pleasantly in the sacrifice, beautiful in appearance, destroying snakes, wolves and pests, may they quickly banish all the calamities from us.(1)
- 17. May all those vigorous horses (of the sun), moving pleasantly, listeners of calls, hear our invocations. They are winners of thousands, enrichers of the place of sacrifice, and they have brought great riches from the battles.(1)
- 18. O horses (of the sun), wise immortal, and skilled in eternal law, protect us in each and every battle for riches. Drink of this sweet mead. Be delighted; being satisfied go on the paths on which the enlightened ones travel.(1)

I move forward urged by the creator, the inspirer, by the learning divine of good speech, by the supreme mechanic, the giver of forms, by the nourisher with cattle, by this resplendent Lord, by the Lord Supreme of the intellectual power, by the venerable Lord of vigour, by the adorable Lord of radiance, by the blissful Lord, the sovereign, and by the tenth divine power, the omnipresent Lord.(1)
- 31. Get dressed for the healers.(1) Get dressed for the learning divine.(2) Get dressed for the resplendent Lord, the good protector.(3) Cleansed by the purifying power of the wind the pressed out devotional bliss is a bosom friend of the resplendent Lord.(4)
- 32. O friends, as the farmers reap the plentiful barley crop in proper order, so get the meals prepared here itself for the people who in this sacrifice are chanting hymns of homage.(1) O devotional bliss, you have been duly accepted. I offer you to the healers;(2) to the learning divine;(3) and to the resplendent Lord, the good protector.(4)
- 33. O you twins-divine, masters of weal, may you drink together the devotional bliss, and assist the beautiful resplendent lord in His functions against the wicked and unsocial element.(1)
- 34. O resplendent Lord, may the twins divine nurse you with their wonderous powers and actions, as parents nurse their child. So you have drunk the gladdening draught of devotional bliss with your might. O Lord of riches, may the speech divine always refresh you with praises.(1)

Chapter 1-10 अध्याय १-१०

NOTES

Chapter I

Adhyāyas I and II, according to the ritualists, contain mantras and formulas for darśapaurnamāsa yajña, i.e. the sacrifices performed at New Moon and Full Moon (amāvasyā and pūmamasī). These sacrifices are required to be performed by a house-holder after establishment of his separate household for thirty years or throughout rest of his life. Usually each of these sacrifices took two days to perform. On the first day fire-places for āhavanīya and dakṣināgni were prepared and the sacrificer took the solemn vow (vrata). On the second day the main sacrifice was performed.

1. According to the ritualists, a branch of palāsa or samī tree is addressed as  $v\bar{a}$  in this verse. This branch used to be cut and trimmed to drive the calves away from the cows whose milk was to be used for preparing offerings in the sacrifices. However, there is no word in the mantra to suggest cutting of the branch and the word chinadmi, according to the ritualists, has to be taken as understood.

Om, symbolic undeclinable name of God. A combination of three sounds, a, u, and m. This auspicious symbol is recommended to be used in the beginning of every Vedic verse as well as at the end. बाह्यणः प्रणवं कुर्यादादावन्ते च सर्वदा।—Uvaṭa.

Ise, for food. From √इष, to wish. Food that is wished by all. इषमित्यन्ननामस् पठितम्—Dayānanda.

Ūrje, for vigour. From y जर्ज, to invigorate.

Vāyavah, winds; here it means the vital breaths, which are a form of the wind element. सर्वीक्रयाप्राप्तिदेतवः स्पर्शगुणाः प्राणादयः— Dayānanda.

Devah, देवो दानात् द्योतनात् वीपनात् वाः donor, shining or illuminating.

Savitā, the creator Lord; also the inspirer Lord. From  $\sqrt{\eta}$ , to create; also to impel or inspire. Sometimes Savitr is identified with the sun; sometimes it is distinguished from it as the divine power lying behind the sun. According to Sayana, before rising the sun is called Savitr and from sun-rise till sun-set Sūrya. Savitr is one of the prominent aspects of God.

Sresthtamaya karmane, the noblest accomplishement. Srestha is the superlative of prasasta, good. Sresthatama is the double superlative. This most noblest deed is considered to be the sacrifice. 'यहा व श्रेष्टतन कर्म' ছবি প্রবি:—Satapatha I.7.1.5.

Aghnyā, cow; हन्तुनयोग्या, one which never should be killed. In a sense, the speech, vāṇī, of a wise man is also aghnyā; it never should be killed, i.e. suppressed.

वर्षीयतुमर्हा हन्तुमनर्हा गाव इन्द्रियाणि पृथिव्यादयः पशवश्व-Daya.

Indra, the resplendent one. God is the highest resplendent self. So Indra is God. But a soul resplendent with energy is also Indra. The sun and the lightning also sometimes are meant by Indra. A resplendent king or leader also, according to the context, may be meant by this term.

Anamīvāḥ, free from disease. Amīvaḥ is disease. From √अम

Ayaksmāh, free from consumption or the wasting disease. यहमा रोगराज:--Uvata.

क्ष्मिक amsah, slaughterer. Agha is sin or evil. अधेन शंसति, one who kills in an evil way; who kills maliciously or painfully. Secondly, one, who praises sin, is also aghasamsa, अधं शंसति. A wicked person.

Gopati, go is kine or cattle in general, so gopati is the master of cattle. Secondly, go means sense-organs; one, who is the master of his sense-organs, is also gopati. Here the sacrificer is meant by this word.

Dhruvah, permanent, constant.

Bahvih, many; in large numbers.

Pasun, animals in general. Here domestic animals are meant. In a larger sence, men also may be included in pasus.

Yajamāna, one who performs sacrifice. Ritualistically, the householder performing a sacrifice is the yajamāna. He is expected to observe some vows. But in a broader sense, any person engaged in actions beneficial to others is a yajamāna.

The first verse of Yajurveda shows great concern for cows, their proper care and multiplication.

Vasu, riches, wealth, property. Bright and radiant is also vasu. In legend, vasus are a particular class of gods, usually eight in number, chief of whom is Indra. The sacrifice is also mentioned as vasu, 'यज्ञो वे वसुः' इति श्रुतेः (Satapatha, I.7.1.9).

Dyauh, the sky or heaven. Shining outer space is meant by this term. It is above the midspace (अन्तरिक्ष), which is above the earth (प्रय्वी). In the Veda, sometimes dyauh is mentioned alone, but frequently it comes jointly with prthivī, the earth. The dyauh is considered as father and the prthivī as mother. The former is great and brilliant and the later vast and firm.

Prthivi, the earth. From  $\sqrt{y}$ पु, to extend. As it extends far and wide, so it is called prthivi or prthivi.

Matariśvan, the wind, मातिर अन्तरिक्षे श्वसिति; as it breathes in the midspace, so the wind is called matariśvan.

Gharma, warmth, heat. घर्मः अग्नितापयुक्तः शोघकः, purifier with the heat of the fire.—Daya. Gharma is a synonym of yajāa also.

Pavitram, purifier; a strainer is also called pavitram as it purifies the liquid (milk or soma).

Viśvadha, sustainer of the world. The word viśva means 'the world' and also 'all'. So this word may have two meanings, the sense more or less being the same.

Paramena dhamna, supreme abode. Parama the highest. Dhama is abode. धामानि त्रीणि भवन्ति स्थानानि नामानि जन्मानीति च, i.e. dhama has three meanings, an abode, a name, and a life.

Drahasva, remain firm.

Hvah, forsake. (Dayananda.)

Yajfiapatih, Lord of the sacrifice, i.e. the person performing the sacrifice. Same as yajamāna. God also may be called yajñapati, because He is the Lord of the sacrifice.

3. Yasoh, of vasu. Vasu is wealth, or riches. God is also called vasu, because in Him all the beings reside, and he resides in all the beings. Derived from /वस् to dwell, meaning the original donor of dwellings.

Satadhāram, having a hundred streams.

Supvā, शोभनं पुनाति इति सुपूः तेन सुप्वा, i.e. with the excellent strainer.—Uvata.

Kām adhukṣaḥ, कां दोग्घुं इच्छित (Dayā.). Which one would you like to milk?

4. Viśväyuh, life of all, i.e. bestower of full life-span.

Viśvakarma, karma is activity. Viśva is all. Performer of all actions.

Atanacmi, दघ्यर्थं कठिनीकरोमि।—Mahīdharā, I curdle with Soma, i.e. herbal juice.

Viśvadhāyā, nourisher of all. Dhāyā is derived from √डुधाञ् धारणपोषणयोः to sustain or to nourish.

Soma, is the herbal juice. Soma is a creeper or plant noted for its exhilarating extract. The plant was cut into small pieces, crushed with two stones i.e. pestle and mortar, pressed for filtration, and stored in large vessels. Soma juice was offered in sacrifices. It was consumed after mixing it with milk, curds or honey.

5. According to the traditionalists the sacrificer recites this mantra while taking the vow of abstinence during the performance of sacrifice. But to us, this is a commendable resolve of a devotee to forsake the falsehood and embrace the truth.

Vrntapate, O upholder of vows! Agni, the adorable Lord, is considered to be the upholder of vows.

Tacchakeyam, may I be able to accomplish that.

Anrta, false, unreal, untruth. मिथ्याभाषण, मिथ्याकरण, मिथ्या आत्ममान-Daya.

Satya, truth, in its widest sense.

6. Karmane, for work.

Veṣāya, for dressing up and finish, i.e. accomplishment. According to the traditionalists, here the ladle and the winnowing basket are addressed with the word  $y\bar{a}m$ , but to us, here man and his wife are exhorted to work and accomplish.

7. Pratyustam, प्रति उप्टम्, प्रत्यक्षं उप्टम् । उप्टं दग्धम्, burnt. उप् दाहे ।

Raksah, रक्षः रक्ष्तरजातिः ।--Mahīdhar. रक्षःस्वमावो दुष्टो मनुष्यः ।-Dayā. Demons or evil-minded persons.

Arātayah, दाने रातिः। रातेः प्रतिवन्यका अरातयः। Those who do not give others' dues, and therefore, the enemies.

Nistaptam, तप संतापे। नितरां तप्तम् निष्टप्तम्; scorched or grieved.

Antariksa, midspace, the space between the earth and the heaven (बो). Dyauh is the space where the sun and the stars shine.

8. According to the traditionalists, here the yoke of the cart is addressed to. But it is only belittling the beauty of the mantra. We think that the Lord is addressed here and that makes a better sense.

Dhūh, पूर्वतिर्वधकर्मण; from the √पूर्व, which means to kill. Destroyer.

Dhürvantam, him, who is destroying.

Vahnitamam वहति प्रापयति यथायोग्यं मुखानि, म विह्नः ; bestower of blisses, the best among such.—Daya.

Sasritamam, अतिशयेन शुद्धं शुद्धिकारकं च। Absolutely pure as well as purifier.

Papritamam, one who fills with all sorts of knowledge; the best among such.

Justalamam, जुपी प्रीतिसेवनयोः most beloved; most welcome.

Devahūtamam, most praised or invoked by the learned (devas). देवः दानात् द्योतनात्, दीपनात् वा–यास्क। Devas as donors are the bounties of Nature. The greatest donor, God, is deva. Learned and enlightened persons are also devas.

9. Ahrutam, not crooked. ह्वृ कौटिल्ये।

Havirdhanam, depository of oblations; place of sacrifice; earth; place of Soma-pressing; a cart in which Soma plants are carried.

The word havirdhana is used to denote all these meanings. One who receives oblations is also havirdhana.

Viṣṇu, विष्णुः व्यापको यज्ञः—Uvaṇa; व्यापनज्ञीलः सूर्यः—Dayā; all-pervading Lord is also Viṣṇu.

Vātāya, Vāta is wind.

Apahatam, driven away.

Yacchantam, may grasp, may grant.

Five, these may be five fingers or five sense-organs, or five elements.

10. Tva, you; here the sacrificial material is indicated by  $v\bar{a}$ .

Savituh, of the creator God. Savitr is the creator as well as the impeller.

Prasave, at the impulsion.

Asvinoh, of the two asvins. Asvins are two legendary healers. They are described as the physicians of the gods. The word suggests that they were skilful riders and fond of their horses. We have translated asvins as the two healers—physicians and surgeons.

Pūṣṇoḥ, of the Pūṣan. Puṣan is the Lord of nourishment. पुष्णाति इति पूषा; the nourisher.

Agni, the adorable Lord. जग्ने नीयते, one who is invoked first; the foremost leader, one of the names of God.

According to Śākapūni, the word জাল is derived from the verb /ই to go, from /জন্ম to shine, from /বই to burn, and also from /বী to lead. (Nir. VII. 14.15). According to Dayānanda, Agni is the Supreme Lord, who is venerable, adorable, omnipresent and respected by the learned and glorified by sacred texts. Aurobindo has translated Agni as God-will.

Agnīsomābhyām, for Agni and Soma. Agni is the Supreme Lord in His adorable aspect, while He is Soma in His blissful aspect. Therefore, Agnīsoma is the Lord adorable and blissful.

11. Bhūtāya, for happiness of all beings; उत्पन्नानां प्राणिनां सुखाय; Dayā.

Arataye, for misery. Rati, generosity. Arati, miserliness, wretchedness.

Svah, light of heaven; or the region of light.

Duryā h, houses. दुर्या इति गृहनामसु पठितम्-Nigh. III. 4.

Prthivyāh nābhau, in the navel of the earth. The sacrificial hearth is considered as the navel or centre of the earth.

Adityबॅंh upasthe, in the lap of the Eternity. Aditi, in legends, is the mother of gods; अदितिः देवमाता। The Nighantu describes Aditi as a synonym of earth. (I. 1). Aditi is heaven; All-gods are Aditi; the five clans are Aditi; the past is Aditi; the future, is Aditi. Aditi means indivisible or infinite, some thing beyond the visible world.

12. Āpaḥ, waters; the verb in dual number indicates the two types of water, (1) which is on the earth, and (2) which is in the sky.

Vaisnavyau, belonging to Visnu, i.e. all-pervading God. Visnu, is one of the names of the sun also.

Pavitre, (two) purifiers. पवनक्रियाशीलौ-Uvata.

Utpunāmi, purify you while sending you upwards.

Acchidrena Pavitrena, with a strainer without pores. Water is cleansed by sun's rays through the process of evaporation; it is purifying with a strainer without pores.

Yajñapatim, the lord of the sacrifice, i.e. the sacrificer. Sometimes this word means the Lord of the sacrifice, i.e. God.

Sudhātum, one of good mettle, i.e. character. Uvata and Mahīdhara have translated it as 'a person with much precious metal and consequently giver of good priestly fees.

Devayum, one who is devoted to gods, i.e. the enlighteened ones. देवान् कामयते इति देवयुः । Similarly, इदयुः इदं कामयमानः (Nir. VI. 31).

13. Indra, the resplendent Lord.

Avraīta, selected; also encompassed or surrounded. The word is derived from পৃত্ব which has two meanings, to elect or select and to cover or encompass. Griffith suggests here a play on words as the word ভূস also is derived from the same verb. Indra selected you and encompassed Vrtra.

Vrtra, nescience, ignorance. The word वृत्र is derived from √वृ to cover, or from √वृत् to roll, or from √वृत् to grow. Vrtra is so called because he covered, he rolled and he grew. (Nir. II. 17). A cloud is also called vrtra, for it covers the rays of the sun, rolls and grows.

For legendists Vrtra was an asura, son of Tvaṣtā. Indra was his enemy and after a fierce battle killed him. The battle of Indra and Vrtra is the topic of many verses in the Veda. But to etymologists, whatever covers is vrtra, and whatever pierces or destroys that cover is indra.

Vrtraturye, in the battle with Vrtra. वृत्रतूर्य इति संगामनामसु पठितम् (Nigh. II. 17).

Proksitah, consecrated; sprinkled.

Yad vaḥ aśuddhāḥ parājaghnuḥ, so that your impurities may be removed away.

Devayajyāyai, for pleasing gods, i.e. the enlightened ones.

Daivyāya karmane, for divine function, i.e. the sacrifice. c.f. श्रेष्ठतमाय कर्मणे (Yv. I. 1). Sacrifice in its abstract sense is a divine and most sublime sentiment, which may be put into action in countless ways.

14. The ritualists recite this mantra while spreading the black-buck skin for putting wooden mortar on it, so that no part of the rice husked for the sacrifice is lost. According to Dayananda this verse is addressed to a house which provides shelter.

Sarma, happiness. Home or shelter is also sarma, as it gives happiness. शर्म इति गृहनामसु पठितम् (Nigh. III. 4). Also, चर्म इति मानुपं, शर्म इति दैवं नाम (Mahīdhara).

Raksah, evil-minded creature; any evil power.

It appears that originally the rakṣas were the protectors, a sort of police force. In course of time they indulged in malpractices, bullying and extortion, and spending their ill-earned wealth on sensual pleasures, which earned a bad name for them. They were feared and detested.

Arāti, an enemy, who does not pay our dues to us. Hence the inimical tendencies are also arāti.

Tvak, skin.

Adrih vānaspatyah, cloud belonging to vegetation. Clouds nourish the vegetation; on the other hand, they are born from vegetation also. अदिः इति मेघनामसु पठितम् (Nigh. I. 10).

Grāvā pṛthubudhnaḥ, broad-based cloud. ग्रावा इति मेघनामसु पठितम् (Nigh. I. 10).

Prthubudhnah; prthu is wide or broad; budhna is base.

Aditi, is the Eternity; also the earth.

15. Agneh tanuh, body of the fire, the fire embodied.

Visarjanam, √विहुज् to release; visarjanam is the release. Releaser or the source of the speech is meant here.

Devavitaye, वीतिः तर्पणम्, i.e. enjoyment or satisfaction. Devas are the bounties of Nature such as the sun, air, the moon, clouds etc.

Grāvā, is the stone, generally used for crushing Soma stalks or for husking rice. Sometimes the word is used in dual number as grāvāṇau, two stones, i.e. mortar and pestle. According to Uvata a wooden pestle is meant by grāvā vānaspatyaḥ. But according to Yāska, grāvā is one of the names of cloud. (Nigh I. 10). So we have translated grāvā as cloud, beneficial for vegetation.

Havih, whatever is offered to the sacrificial fire is havih, i.e. the oblation or the offering, संस्कृतं सुगन्ध्यादियुक्तं द्रव्यम्, (Dayananda). In a wider sense of the sacrifice, whatever a seeker gives up for others is havih.

Samīṣva, दुःखनिवृत्तये सुखसम्पादनार्थं कुरुष्य, i.e. prepare it for removing distress and bringing happiness (Dayānanda).

Haviskrt, one who offers the oblations, as well as he, who prepares them.

16. According to the ritualists this verse is addressed to a peg or wedge with which the pressing stones are beaten.

Kukkuṭa, a cock. Uvaṭa gives an interesting etymon of the word: असुराज्ञी वाचमुपादाय क्व क्व असुरा इति यो अटित असौ कुक्कुटः (Acquiring the demon-killing speech, he goes on crowing where are the demons, so he is called kukkuta.)

Madhujihvah, sweet-tongued.

Isam ūrjam, food and vigour.

Avada, shout (i.e. crow) aloud for bringing.

Sanghātam Sanghātam, each and every battle. सम्यग्धन्यन्ते जनाः यस्मिन् तं संग्रामम् (wherein men are killed in plenty)—Dayānanda. संघात इति संग्रामनामसु पठितम् (Nigh. II. 10).

Varsavrddham, grown in i.e. old in years.

Raksah, evil powers.

Arātayah, inimical tendencies.

Vayuh, the wind.

Vivinaktu, may scatter or disperse.

Savitā, the sun.

Hiranyapanih, golden-handed, also one who has gold in his hands.

Acchidrena, having no hole or pore, i.e. not leaking.

17. According to the ritualists, a branch of a palāśa tree, used as fire-shovel is addressed in this verse, while in fact the fire is addressed to.

Dhṛṣṭiḥ, the word is derived from √िञधूपा प्रागल्भ्ये, i.e. boldness. Boldness personified is meant here.

Amadam agnim, आमं अपक्वं अति स आमात्, तं, the fire, which consumes the uncooked, i.e. which is used for cooking, so the house-hold fire (गार्हपत्य अग्नि).

Kravyādam agnim, one who consumes flesh, i.e. the fire of the funeral pyre.

Devayajam agnim, the fire used for the worship of gods, i.e. the sacrificial fire. देवान् विदुषे दिव्यगुणान् पजित संगतान् करोति, तम्, one that brings together the divine faculties of the learned people (Daya.)

Brahmavanim, brahma is knowledge. Persons engaged in pursuit of knowledge are brāhmaṇas the men of intellect. What is pleasing to them is brahmavani.

Ksatravani, pleasing to men of defence. क्षतात् त्रायते इति क्षत्रः, one who protects from injury is kṣatra.

Sajātavani, pleasing to the persons like us.

Bhrātṛvya, an enemy; a rival. Bhrātṛ is brother or cousin. When the interests clash, brothers and cousins turn enemies and those are bhrātṛvyas. 'व्यक्तपरले' (Paṇini, IV. 1.145).

18. Dharunam, धारयतीति घरुणं, one that sustains, or supports, or contains.

Antariksam, the midspace. The earth, the midspace and the heaven (sky) are the three regions mentioned frequently in Vedic literature. Sometimes a fourth region, the region of light, स्वः, is also mentioned.

Dhartram, घरति यत्, येन वा, that which supports or that by which is something supported. (Dayā.).

Āśābhyah, for the regions or directions.

Bhrgunam, according to the legendists Bhrgu is the name of a rsi and his descendants. However, Dayananda thinks that those who burn all the evils to ashes are bhrgus, hence the cosmic elements.

Angirasām, Angiras also is the name of a rsi and his descendants. According to Dayānanda, vital breath, प्राण, is angirā. प्राणो दे अद्वित्र (Śatapatha, VI. 5.2.3). According to Yāska, those shining like burning coals are angiras, अङ्गारेष्विद्धरा अङ्गाराः अंकना अञ्चनाः, angiras is that which is in burning coals (अङ्गार); and angāras are called so, because they shine, or because they mark the spot where they fall.

Tapasa, with the heat, i.e. energy or force. Austerity is also tapas.

19. With this mantra the ritualists place the mortar on the black buck-skin.

Parvatī dhisaṇā, speech full of knowledge. धियं सनीति व्याप्नोति ददानि वा सा धिपणा (Mahīdhara).

Divah skambhani, support of the celestial worlds.

20. Dhānyam, धिनोति प्रीणाति इति धान्यम्, that which pleases, i.e. food-grain in general and rice in particular.

Devan, इन्द्रियाणि (Dayananda). The word देव has been used in different meanings in different contexts. It may mean the bounties of Nature; also the learned or enlightened persons; sense-organs also are devas

Prāna, in-breath, the breath we inhale. प्राणः श्वासवायुः।

Udana, up-breath or out-breath; a breath that is pushed upwards. उद्अनिति ऊर्घ्यं चेष्टते इत्युदानः, उत्क्रान्तिवायुः।

Vyāna, is diffusing breath. व्यनिति व्याप्य चेष्टते इति व्यानो व्यापको बलहेतुर्वायुः, i.e. the breath which is diffused throughout the body and so gives strength.

Dīrghām prasitim, a long life-span.

Hiranyapānih, one with golden hands. The sun is called so, because its hands, the rays, are golden.

Acchidrena pāninā, literally, with a hand without holes, meaning without a leak.

Caksuse, caksuis the eye, as well as the eye-sight. Good eye-sight may be the symbol of the fitness of all the sense-organs.

Mahīnām payah, milk of cows. (Uvata). Mahī means good or great; so malīnām payah is the essence of sublime faculties.

21. Sam vapāmi, Uvata has translated it as 'pour you in the vessel', while the verb 'vap' means to sow. But the wording of the mantra indicates that sowing and growing of herbal medicinal plants is meant here.

Sam preyantam, प्रची संपक्ते, i.e. to be mixed together.

Revatyaḥ, रेवत्यः आपः, जगत्यः ओपधयः इति श्रुतेः (शतपथ I, 2. 2. 2). Waters.

Tejas, brilliance.

Śukram, spiendour.

Devayajanam, (means of) of worship of gods (i.e. the bounties of Nature).

Chapter II

1. According to the ritualists, with this mantra the adhvaryu addresses the fire-wood (idhma), unties and sprinkles it.

Kṛṣṇa, attractive. From √कृप् to pull or to attract.

Akharesthah, जा समन्तात् खरे कठिने वृक्षे तिप्ठति इति आखरेप्टः, one that lies in a tree hard all over.

Agnaye justam, pleasing to fire.

Vedih, altar.

Barhih, sacred grass; darbha or kusa grass, used for covering the altar, and also for making mats for sitting.

Sruk, ladle.

2. Aditi, the earth.

Visnu, sacrifice; विष्ण्वै यज्ञः।

Stupaḥ, mound. प्ट्रये स्त्यै शब्दसंघानयोः; स्त्यै means to make into a heap.

Svāsasthām, one that is comfortable to sit upon.

Devebhyah, for learned persons.

Bhuvapataye, to the Lord of the earth.
